Sound Advice on Russia.
Standard Oil in New Lines.
... Guggenheim in the Air.
Squealing Means Death.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PAUL D. CRAVATH, able New York lawyer, says this government should recognize Russia's government, which he calls "responsible and enduring."

An ambassador "like Morrow," could adjust mutual claims in Russia as was done recently in Mexico, says Mr. Cravath.

MR. CRAVATH thinks Russia would recognize Kerensky debts. But that worries few Americans, outside of Wall street. Any banker, childish enough to buy bonds from Kerensky while that gentleman was getting himself married to an actress lady would surely buy gold bricks or electric-sugar stock later, and deserves little sympathy.

OUR GOVERNMENT, admitting Russian pulpwood, in spite of protests, will investigate the matter of Russian convict labor for itself. Consideration also will be given to charges of "dumping" Russian goods, regardless of value.

In some cases, gouging here may offset dumping from abroad.

STANDARD OIL of New Jersey, and affiliated companies, covering much of the country, will sell tires, at gas stations, and at lower prices.

This will annoy retailers, on a small scale, but it was inevitable. Distribution at retail costs too much. One mail order house, cutting retail prices, sold more tires than any concern in America, except General Motors and Ford, that sell them on the cars.

STANDARD OIL, presumably, will arrange to sell standard makes of tires, which cut rate dealers hitherto have not done.

It is plain that retailing is to be done, more and more on a "big business" basis, as proved by chain stores, one of them selling a billion a year of food stuffs. As labor was once forced to establish unions, for self defense, so retail merchants may find unions necessary.

MR. DANIEL GUGGENHEIM, supplying funds for Prof. Robert H. Goddard's experiments with "rocket propulsion," renders public service. Prof. Goddard, of Clark University, plans his rocket, not for human flight, but for information about the upper part of the atmosphere in which we live.

At present we are like fish in the deepest parts of the ocean, not knowing what is above us, unable to live in the upper layers of our ocean air, as deep sea fish are unable to live near the surface.

OUR ATMOSPHERE is about 500 miles deep, or high, and we are acquainted with it only 20 miles up from the earth's surface.

The Goddard rocket, shot upward by liquid gases, will come down supported by a parachute, bringing samples of upper air and information about it. Much is to be learned above the "ozone belt," 50 to 75 miles up, and above "the ceiling" under which the radio waves travel, that is believed to be a belt of air heavily charged electrically.

Men ought to know their air ocean. Some day, around the world travel will be carried on far up where thin atmosphere will offer little resistance to a moving airship.

GANGS WORK smoothly. Jack Zuta, Chicago gangster, living at a Wisconsin hotel under an assumed name, was feeding five-cent pieces to a mechanical piano, in a ballroom, smiling.

Five men pushed their way through the crowd, warned onlookers aside and poured 15 bullets from machine guns into Zuta's body. The five walked away, calmly. No one asked any questions. It was all "regular." Zuta had squealed.

Police found $1,980.90 in his pockets. The killers had disdained to rob him. Their pay came from elsewhere.

PROF. BONBRIGHT, of Columbia, expert on utility rates, says the New York Edison Company, in its new schedule, makes charges lighter for big users of current, and will add $2,700,000 to the burden of small consumers.

IF TRUE, that may prove a serious mistake for the power company. To supply current in small lots is of course expensive. To read a meter in a little flat costs as much as in a big factory. But public opinion has its importance. The little consumers have the votes, and, while they amount to little, under government by corporations, that might change, if honest political leadership should appear. Conservative judges and political machines combined might not be able to resist a government ownership program, especially with hard times compelling the little people to think.

FRICTION BETWEEN the Vatican and Mussolini's government may be increased by a recent incident. Fascist guards firing on St. Bernard monks.

The monks had been accused of guiding through the mountain groups of anti-Fascists fleeing from Italy. Later, when other monks, seeking the body of a woman lost in the mountains, came within range, the Fascist guards opened fire, the monks barely escaping with their lives.

The Pope will not endure, without protest, an attack on a religious order famous for its benevolence toward all distressed.

COAL PARLEY AGREES ON SURVEY

'Rib' Price Won't Be Fixed Until Measurement Is Made, Conferees Decide

Mt. Lebanon Township and the Pittsburgh Coal Company today agreed on a survey of the coal situation.

The survey, by township and coal company engineers, will determine the location and extent of coal pillars in the area involved—about 5 per cent of the township area—which are required for protection of municipal buildings, streets and sewers.

Expected to occupy a day or two, the survey will precede any discussion of price.

INJUNCTION THREAT

The conference followed threat of injunction against the coal company by the township to stop further undermining in the strip at issue. Ninety-five per cent of the township surface are is not involved.

Meanwhile, the suspension of mining operations of the company, ordered Saturday in contemplation of the conference, has been lifted. So far as private property is concerned, the work of undermining will continue, with Suddenly he broke away and fled. Mrs. Condoleo chased him five blocks, yelling to passersby to stop the man. Nobody did.

AIRPORT'S FUND NEED SURPRISE

Members of City Council expected a complete airport would be provided with the $500,000 they appropriated in conjunction with the $1,500,000 authorized in a people's bond issue sponsored by county officials.

W. Y. English, chairman of Council's Finance Committee, has said he was not familiar with the detailed distribution of city funds but that he believed the joint appropriation from city and county

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN ANNEX

Plans for a $500,000 addition to the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, today were revealed as being under consideration.

Several tentative sketches have been submitted by Janssen and Cocken, architects. The plans would call for remodeling the rear of the present building, facing Oliver avenue, to permit erection of additional floors but retaining the architectural design.

The tentative plans are being worked out by the Rev. Clarence Edward Macartney, pastor, before submitting suggestion to the board members. The additional space would be devoted to social and welfare activities.

Engelsburg Slugged, Job Loser Blamed, Fined

Joe Englesberg, Republican committee chairman of the Third Ward and lieutenant in Mayor Kline's political regime, "took the count" in the Sentinel Club, 1601 Center avenue, and his assailant, Max Levine, 30, of 1806 Center avenue, took the count for $10 today when the brawl was aired in Center Avenue Police Court before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Patrolman Art Baker, a brother-in-law of Englesberg, who also was arrested after he was alleged to have struck Levine with a blackjack, was discharged.

The brawl started when Levine, who is alleged to have been trailing Englesberg for the past three weeks, "found his man" in the Sentinel Club.

Levine was dismissed from his post as inspector for the Department of Highways and Sewers, allegedly on Englesberg's recommendation.

When Englesberg refused to listen to Levine's plea for reinstatement, it was testified Levine struck him with his fist.

Patrolman Baker then appeared, and, when Levine refused to apologize to Englesberg, struck Levine with a blackjack, it was charged. Patrolman Karl Kiel then entered the club and placed both Levine and Patrolman Baker under arrest.

Levine told police a relative of Englesberg had taken his place in the Department of Highways and Sewers.

SOUTHERN ITALY IN PANIC OVER NEW QUAKE

Melfi and Rio Nero Rocked But First Reports Assert Little Damage Resulted

POTENZA, Italy, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The Giorgnale D'Italia correspondent telegraphs that a new earthquake shock was felt at Melfi and Rio Nero at 12:10 p. m. today, producing a great panic in the city.

The City Hall at Rio Nero suffered damage, but none was caused at Melfi, the report said.

Melfi and Rio Nero were in the heart of the earthquake zone of two weeks ago, when the tremors ranged over a wide section of Southern Italy.

Both cities suffered heavy tolls and almost complete destruction was caused at Melfi, which is situated on the rim of an extinct volcano crater high up in the Appenine Hills.

GOLF OPERATOR FINED AGAIN

Magistrate William Soost, in East End Police Court, today fined Emanuel Rose, owner of the midget golf course at Bartlett street and Murray avenue, $10 for operating his course yesterday in spite of police orders.

Rose had been arrested July 20 for a similar offense, and had been fined $25. He had appealed the first case, for which a hearing is scheduled for October 6.

Rose admitted he had operated his course yesterday, but insisted he had violated no law because he did not charge patrons anything for playing.

He said:

"I intend to keep open every Sunday until a decision is announced on my appeal."

Rose was the only person in the city reported as disobeying Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh's order that midget golf courses remain closed, police said.

At Hutchinsan and South Braddock avenues, Edgewood, just across the city line, and at other places in Turtle Creek and the South Hills, the small courses were well patronized, owners said.

Both managers today refused to pay fines of $10 and costs and were sentenced to 30 days in the county prison.

HIT-RUN DRIVER HELD FOR MURDER

Killed Child on Sidewalk; Coroner's Inquiry Charges Companion Was Accessory

Frank Kubiszewski, 38, of Niagara street, driver of the automobile which ran into a group of children playing on the sidewalk last Monday, killing William Harris, 5, of 310 Lawn street, was held on a murder charge by the coroner's jury today.

His companion, Frank Novak, 36, same address, was held on the charge of being an accessory to murder.

Kubiszewski is the first person ever held here for murder as the result of an automobile death, the records disclose.

DECLARES IT MURDER

Coroner W. J. McGregor, charging the jury, declared if the evidence was conclusive that the driver of the car was guilty of "wanton, reckless and heartless disregard of the rights of others" he should be held for murder.

Both defendants were remanded to jail pending a hearing on habeas corpus proceedings, to obtain their release on bail, scheduled for late today.

Sergt. Samuel Wheeler, of the homicide squad, testified both admitted they had taken one drink at 2448 Forbes street, which subsequently was raided.

SAYS BOTH "VERY DRUNK"

Dr. Daniel E. Sable, city physician, testified both men were "very much intoxicated." Several witnesses declared Kubiszewski was too drunk to answer questions.

Novak pushed away persons trying to stop the car, according to testimony, while Robert Stock, 5, of 314 Lawn street, was being carried on the fender of the car. The lad is still in a hospital.

Sidney Taxay, of 53 Lawn street, testified that he jumped on the running board, but was pushed off. He later beat the driver before police arrived, he said.

3 DROWNINGS AS DROUGHT CONTINUES

Promised Showers to Bring Slight Relief; Prayers for Rain Made; Many Fires

As the drouth continued unabated, a heat record for August 4 which had stood for 49 years was toppled. Showers predicted for tonight are not expected to afford relief from the drouth, according to weather officials. Only scattered showers are expected, and not in sufficient volume to more than dampen the parched earth.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon the mercury mounted to 98, three degrees above the high mark of August 4, 1881, which temperature was equaled at 1 o'clock today.

A dozen brush fires were reported in Pittsburgh and vicinity today.

THREE DROWNINGS

Three drownings occurred and two near-prostrations were reported. Hundreds of firemen and volunteers worked throughout the day and night extinguishing brush fires which swept over large areas, causing damage to property, crops and livestock. Six horses were burned to death.

Those who met death while seeking relief in the rivers are George E. Kennedy, 19, of 96 Hazlett street, Lincoln place; Mar-

Coolidge Asks Business, Government Co-Operate

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Aug. 4.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

This is the greatest business country in the world. The welfare of our people, especially the wage earners, is entirely dependent on prosperity. Yet we have the peculiar spectacle of business being in chronic fear of government. A great apprehension is felt about the action of the Congress and more or less about the attitude of the executive and regulatory departments.

Calvin Coolidge.

This trouble arises because business men do not understand public relations and officeholders do not understand economic relations. They do not speak the same language. Many good business men in office do not know how to talk about business. Some men in business and some demagogues in office need to be restrained and controlled. But in general men in business and public office are trying to be fair.

Now that the people can see more plainly the great service that business renders, furnishing employment to dependent wage earners and supplying the public needs, they ought to make it plain that they are equally opposed to unfair practices in trade and demagoguery in office and they ought to insist upon that co-operation between the government and legitimate business which will remove fear and distrust and promote good will and prosperity.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

MEARS, UNDAUNTED BY DISASTER, PLANS ANOTHER FLIGHT

PLANE LOOKS TOTAL LOSS, HE AVERS

Lucky to Escape Injury He Declares; Wonders Where Dog Went After Crack-Up

By JOHN HENRY MEARS.

Who established two round world speed records and whose attempt to break the Graf Zeppelin's record ended Sunday at Harbor Grace, when his plane, the City of New York, cracked up while taking off for Dublin.

HARBOR GRACE, Aug. 4.—My attempt to bring back to the United States the globe-circling record held by the Graf Zeppelin ended here at dawn Sunday, when our plane, the City of New York, cracked up as we started the second leg of our flight to Ireland.

The gods of chance saved both Henry J. Brown, navigator and pilot, and myself from serious injury, but it appears that our plane is a total wreck. Tailwind, our terrier mascot, disappeared in the wreckage. It is probable that he still lives, but is too frightened to again come near an airplane.

WEATHER FAVORABLE

When we boarded the plane Sunday morning a beautiful dawn was breaking and we had every reason to expect favorable weather for our 1,900-mile trans-Atlantic hop to Baldonnel airport, near Dublin.

Although it was still dark, the lighting of the Harbor Grace airport with flares and the headlights of parked cars was sufficient for the purpose of taking off. We taxied toward the western end of the field.

Almost immediately the machine was out of control, from what cause I cannot explain, unless it was a punctured tire. The plane swerved to the southern side of the runway. With the impetus attained, despite the fact that the engine was cut off, it crashed its way through the scrub rocks and hillocks bordering the airport for 60 feet.

FORTUNATE TO ESCAPE

Our escape was most fortunate and can be explained only by the fact that the machine did not turn over and catch fire. The only injury I received was a bruised shoulder and apart from a shaking up Brown came through unhurt.

When we surveyed the tragic result which meant the postponement of all our plans it was found that the propeller blades were smashed, six feet broken off one wing, three feet off the other, the undercarriage torn off, one tire burst, and the body, one wheel and a strut broken.

Lying some 30 feet from the plane, which was facing in the direction of the field, were the instruments, radio set and engine. They appeared unbroken.

RUSSIAN QUAKE LIFE TOLL 500

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Five hundred persons were reported killed and 4,000 injured in a terrific earthquake shock said to have wrought havoc in Russian Turkestan, according to Riga dispatches to the Morning Post.

The temblor, according to meager information received, devastated the towns of Vritzky and Tchapaevo on the northeast shores of the Caspian Sea. Disrupted communications foretold probable extensive damage to the whole countryside, with government relief detachments sent into the stricken region to determine more closely upon the actual extent of the disaster.

'3-X KILLER' SENDS NOTE

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—A letter signed "3-X" was received by the Evening Journal today and investigation was underway to determine if the letter was from the "necker-killer" of Queens.

Although sent to the Journal, the letter was addressed to a life insurance company and said:

"Hector Avallone paid with his life because he was a Smart Alec. He returned a forged document instead of a genuine one—made me come all the way back from Russia to get him and it."

Avallone was killed in the hallway of a Bronx apartment on July 24, while making collections for the insurance company.

The "necker-killer" of Queens, who has never been apprehended, has taken the blame in similar letters to the Journal, for the murder of Joseph Mozynski and Noel Sowley several weeks ago.

HUTCHINSON'S PLANE WRECKED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4—(Universal.)—Disaster—the injury of two women, the wrecking of his plane and another and an automobile—interrupted the plans of George R. Hutchinson for a nonstop flight from here to New York and thence to Paris.

Now, instead of being in the air en route to New York as scheduled, the noted airman is "grounded" for at least a week.

As he "taxied" over the municipal airport for a final test flight before taking off yesterday for the East a sudden gust of wind struck his ship.

It went into a wild ground loop, knocked down Mrs. G. W. Johnson and another woman, tore a wing from a second plane, wrecked Hutchinson's automobile and stopped with a demolished wing and a broken propellor.

3 GIRLS QUIZZED ON SLAYING OF ZUTA

Police Believe One of Trio May Have 'Put on Spot' Supposed Lingle Figure

International News Service.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 4.—Three women, including one whom the police believe may have put Jack Zuta, Chicago gangdom's latest victim, on the "spot," were being held in jail here today following a severe grilling.

Zuta was "burned down" by seven gunmen, including two machine gunners, Friday night at a summer resort hotel near Delafield, Wis. The police are seeking to link his murder with the slaying of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

The girls said they were Mildred Tosch, alias Peggy Kelly; Betty Apperson and Marjory Roberts.

PHONE CALL GIVES CLUE

A telephone conversation between Miss Tosch and Miss Apperson is said by police to have led to the arrests. They are said to have discussed the Zuta killing, and to have arranged to meet in Milwaukee to talk about it with greater safety.

The police have ascertained Zuta made several telephone calls to women a few hours before he was killed, and have been following the theory that his movements were betrayed to his slayers by a woman in whom he confided his plans. He was said to have been preparing to leave the Delafield resort at the time his assassins took him by surprise.

CAPONE AID SOUGHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—The name of Al Capone, reputed lord of the Chicago underworld, was brought into the police investigation of the gangland killing of Frank Zuta today. A search was under way for Sam Hunt, indirectly connected with Capone.

Police determined to find Hunt when given a description of the leader of the gang which shot Zuta to death. This description tallied perfectly, they said, with that of Hunt, and their suspicion were strengthened by the finding of a golf bag containing five shotgun shells.

Hunt was identified several weeks ago as a gangster who used an empty golf bag as a holster for a sawed-off shot-gun, and police are sure he can shed light on the present case.

Widow on Trial In 'Attic' Slaying

AIRPORT COST SURPRISES

was to furnish a site equipped to receive airships.

The same belief was expressed by Robert Garland, former chairman of Council's Finance Committee.

HOLDS SIMILAR BELIEF

George J. Kambach, who became a member of Council last December, explained he was not familiar with the details of the city's appropriations but he was of the opinion that the money from the city and county was to provide an airport equipped to handle passengers and freight.

Other members of Council were inaccessible last night, being absent from the city on vacations or week-end trips.

Most of the money provided for the airport has been used for acquisition of land and to finance the grading of the site, which was let to the Vang Construction Company on a bid of $1,471,000.

DECLARES IT BUNGLED

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern has charged that the airport project is a "colossal bungle," in that the public was led to believe the available funds were to provide a complete airport, whereas the expected acreage has not even been acquired and no money is available for construction of the necessary buildings.

The next step in the airport program, according to Commissioner E. V. Babcock, is the work of resurfacing. He said:

"Now that the grading is done, we will go right ahead on the work of resurfacing."

Babcock was unable to state how future financing of the airport will be done, whether by the sale of people's or commissioners' bonds or by another airport bond issue, since the funds appropriated for the airport have been exhausted.

SILENT UPON PLANS

He expressed no definite plans for the further development or financing of the airport, saying he and Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong would decide about them.

As to the ultimate cost of the undertaking, Babcock would not give an opinion. He said:

"I have an idea but I'm not going to say what I think. It depends a lot on how much of the development we finally decide upon."

The price of $965 an acre for land for the airport was paid in only one case, and the high awards will be fought in court, Babcock said.

Opposes Extradition Of Van Loan, Writer

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Deputy Attorney General J. Charles Jones today announced he would recommend that Gov. Young deny the extradition to New York of H. H. Van Loan, writer, to face a charge of child abandonment.

This decision was reached after Van Loan, under arrest in Los Angeles, had offered to testify he had been paying $50 a week for the support of his 13-year-old daughter. The charge was brought by the author's estranged wife, Mrs. Gertrude Van Loan, in New York.

ROBBERS AWED BY FAIRBANKS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Douglas Fairbanks' prominence as an actor so awed three robbers who entered his beach home yesterday they overlooked jewelry valued at $100,000 belonging to Mary Pickford, the actor's wife, he revealed later to reporters.

Fairbanks did not report the robbery to police in an effort to keep it secret.

The robbers thrust a gun in his side, the actor said, when he started to the door which he had forgotten to lock. Fairbanks said he turned on the light, was immediately recognized by the three young bandits who became embarrassed.

The bandits said they were sorry, Fairbanks told reporters, but said they had to have money.

"I gave them $20 or $30 and they left hurriedly. I guess we got off easy at that."

LANGFITT GETS VOTE CHARGES

Maj. W. T. Rees and Ralph H. Frank, observers of the recent ballot recount in behalf of the Pinchot forces, today submitted a report to Acting District Attorney G. F. N Langfitt calling attention to alleged irregularities in the Fourth District, Sixth Ward.

The recount board gave its official approval to the May primary election returns from this district. Rees and Frank point out what they term apparent irregularities which the recount board failed to report to court.

The total number of registered voters was 205, they assert, whereas the number of ballots cast was 203, a circumstance so unlikely as to be suspicious. Names of two persons entered by the election board as having voted do not appear on the list of those registered.

A list kept by the election board of those voting, in the order of casting ballots, disclosed several groups to have voted in alphabetical order, also a palpable irregularity, according to the observers.

THREE READY FOR SENATE VOTE QUIZ

Macfarlane and Armstrong Not in City, to Be Called Later in Primary Probe

Leaders of various factions in the campaign in Western Pennsylvania culminating in the May primary election are prepared to appear in Washington tomorrow to tell Senator Gerald P. Nye's investigating committee what they know of expenditures and conduct of the campaign.

Among those who have announced they will journey to the capital in response to the invitation of Senator Nye are State Senator James J. Coyne, who managed the campaign here for Senator Joseph R. Grundy; County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and Attorney Ralph H. Frank, active in the campaign for Gifford Pinchot, and Walter Bonita, brick manufacturer who contributed $96,000 on behalf of the Davis-Brown ticket.

MACFARLANE AWAY

President Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court, who appointed the special recount board headed by Leander Trautman which uncovered irregularities, is not expected to appear tomorrow before the committee in response to Nye's invitation. Judge Macfarlane is touring in Nova Scotia, according to information at his home, and no address is available. Senator Nye said he expected to call the jurist later.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Allegheny County chairman for the Davis-Brown campaign, is not expected back from a vacation trip until Tuesday or later, and may not appear at this week's session of the investigating committee.

HUMES OUT OF CITY

Attorney E. Lowry Humes, whose complaint to the state highway department recently on behalf of independent brick manufacturers resulted in the elimination of a clause in specifications for brick alleged to favor Bonita's companies, is reported out of the city until the middle of the week.

Trautman was reported to have been invited to appear by Senator Nye, but has not received the summons. The invitations to Judge Macfarlane and Trautman indicates that the investigating committee proposed to inquire into irregularities unearthed by the recount board, including the unexplained disappearance of the voters list of the First District of the Sixth Ward, while the box was in custody of the board, as well as the results of Judge Macfarlane's investigation of the disappearance.

TO SIFT REES' CHARGES

The investigating committee also is expected to inquire into the charge of Attorney Frank and Maj. William T. Rees that the recount board failed to mention in its official report frauds in the Fourth District of the Sixth Ward.

Political leaders from Harrisburg and Philadelphia have also been summoned before the investigating committee.

Nye was quoted as saying invitations have been issued and that subpenas will be served if witnesses fail to appear. No announced election officials from Allegheny, Philadelphia and Luzerne counties would be questioned concerning ballot recounts.

Twenty-eight witnesses have been called in connection with the Pennsylvania investigation, and Nye stated he expected to conclude the hearing Wednesday noon.

He declared:

Bodies of Aged Pair Found on Tracks

LINDEN, N. J., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The bodies of Henry Martels, 76, and his wife, 60, of Jersey Shore, Pa., were found early Sunday on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in front of the Linden station. Both had been shot through the head. Police believe Martels killed his wife and himself.

Shaw Rebuked for Telling Of Father's Drinking

FOLKESTONE, Eng., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The Rev. J. C. Carlile, former president of the Baptist Union and prominent English preacher, in a Sunday sermon took Bernard Shaw to task for the writer's references to his father's drunkenness, made in a preface to a new edition of his works. The preacher said:

"No doubt all that Mr. Shaw says about the old man's manners and drunken habits is true, but it is not chivalrous to bring back from the dead and exhibit his nastiness as an excuse for his son's rudeness."

The Rev. Mr. Carlile added it would be easy to forgive Shaw's manner if he had anything worth talking about, but that he is preferable without the family skeleton.

In the preface the writer said that in the early days of his youth his family suffered social ostracism because of his father's weakness for drink.

Long Skirts for Street Not Wanted, Paris Told

PARIS, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The most modernistic of the Rue de la Paix dressmakers this morning told a packed house what she thought about winter styles, saying that she is convinced women do not want to wear longer skirts on the street.

Suits, coats and ensembles for general wear at her house still are at the top of the calf, 6 to 10 inches below the knee—depending on the knee.

The outlook for a dull winter deepened as model after model was shown. The clothes ran to dull black, navy blue or brown in rough or tufted wool. Wool coats have the same material as skirts or dresses.

For warmth there are blouses and vests of leather or washable chamois in white or yellow. They are meant for women motorists, golfers, and other sport participants. One modernistic golfing costume has chamois knickers and blouse in one, with a tweed wrap-around skirt and short jacket.

WILL WALES MARRY?

DUCHESS OF YORK — PRINCE OF WALES

The Duchess, wife of King George's second son, with her first baby, Princess Elizabeth, now heir presumptive to the English throne. If her expected baby is not a boy to become a male heir presumptive, the Prince of Wales, direct heir and the world's "most eligible bachelor," will shortly marry because of a "secret pact."

JUDGES' LIST READY FOR PUBLIC

Tremendous Interest Shown In Contest; First Prizes Amount to $500 Each

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—It won't be long now! The judges in the Marion Davies style contest announce that they will have the names of the winners ready to publish by August 11—next Monday!

Miss Davies, you know, offered two prizes of $500 each—one for the best letter from a man, the other for the best letter from a woman, expressing their opinions as to whether they would like to return to the styles of the Gay Nineties—the frills and furbelows, and trains and ruffles—such as Miss Davies wore in her picture, "The Florodora Girl."

ADDITIONAL PRIZES

There are 10 additional prizes of $100 each.

So you, who wrote your letters to Miss Davies and entered this fascinating discussion with so much enthusiasm, soon will know the names of the lucky dozen contestants who will receive prizes.

The judges—Eleanor Meherin, Louella O. Parsons, Helen Koues, Amos Parrish and Henry Clive—had a gigantic task in reading and sorting the thousands of letters which came in from all over the world.

SEEKS PUBLIC VIEW

Miss Davies, feeling that the silhouette of this season—the softening and embellishing of women's clothes of the present mode—might possibly presage a return to the extreme, waspwaisted, befrilled styles of that earlier day, was interested to know how the public would react to such a change.

She wondered whether women, having once known the freedom and the ease of modern dress, would be willing to return to the restrictions of the "helpless and feminine" era.

So she invited the public to discuss the matter and offered the 12 cash prizes for the best letters.

INTEREST TREMENDOUS

The interest displayed in this ever-fascinating subject—women's dress—has been tremendous. People of both sexes and of all ages and nationalities plunged into the discussion with tremendous enthusiasm, some pleading for a return to the "gentle femininity" of the Gay Nineties—others stoutly defending the advantages of the modern woman's apparel. The contest closed June 14.

Remember the date—August 11, and watch for the announcement of the winners. Maybe your name will be among them.

SECRET PACT WITH DUKE REVEALED

Considerate for Duchess, Prince Agrees to Assume Lineage Responsibilities

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service.

LONDON, Aug. 4. — The Prince of Wales, an intimate friend declares, has promised to marry within a year should the child expected by the Duchess of York prove to be a girl, thus leaving the British throne without a male heir presumptive.

The prince's promise is said to be in the nature of a pact existing between him, the Duke of York and the prince's sister-in-law, the Duchess of York.

The existence of the pact, a carefully-guarded secret in the intimate circles in which the three royal principals move, was disclosed virtually on the eve of the Duchess of York's becoming for a second time a mother.

CHILD EXPECTED HOURLY

The birth of the baby is expected hourly at Glamis Castle, ancient Scottish residence of the duchess' family.

The Prince of Wales is known to have the deepest admiration and closest affection for the duchess, and realizes that should the child be a girl, his sister-in-law's physical condition is such to almost preclude her undergoing a third experience in bearing a child for the purpose of supplying the throne with an heir presumptive.

DELICATE HEALTH

Intimates of the prince declare he would not have the duchess risk her life again for the purpose of providing the throne with a male heir, who is regarded as important for the maintenance of the prestige of a reigning house.

For this reason, though the prince's inclination is against marriage at the present time, it is said he is engaged to fulfill the pledge to marry within a year, if the baby is another girl.

The duchess' first child, the Princess Elizabeth, 4, now is heir presumptive to the throne.

PINCHOT PICKED AS KEYNOTER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The selection of Gifford Pinchot as the keynote speaker at the formal opening of the Republican state campaign at Fogelsville, Lehigh county, August 16, was regarded by many political leaders today as indicating the Republican state organization is preparing to recognize him as the party's nominee. His title to the nomination has been clouded, due to the situation in Luzerne County, where anti-Pinchot factions allege irregularities in the vote at the May 20 primary due to the use of perforated ballots. Whether the ballots were legal will be determined by the State Supreme Court.

State Chairman Edward Mortin is scheduled to attend the Lehigh County meeting, along with A. Boyd Hamilton, assistant to the chairman. State Senator Horace W. Schantz, who was an outspoken anti-Pinchot man during the campaign, will preside. The latter fact gave added support to the theory here that the state organization will indorse Pinchot.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, Republican nominee for United States senator, will speak, along with Edward C. Shannon, candidate for lieutenant governor, and other Republican candidates.

50th Steamer Crash Victim, Woman, Dies

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Head Keeper John Toomey, of the Bronx Zoo, was alternating between grief and joy today. The grief was occasioned by the death of Wallace, the zoo's lone mongoose, and the joy by the birth of an 18-pound offspring to Wilhelmina, the yak.

MELLON SEEKS SOVIET DATA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Working under a severe handicap, the Treasury Department today was attempting to set up machinery for the investigation of Russian manufactures.

In barring imports of Soviet pulpwood, the department depended entirely upon hearsay evidence, with the result that it was forced to reverse its position and recall the embargo.

As a result of this situation, Secretary Mellon is anxious that the department be placed in a position where it can depend upon its own investigations in determining what goods are to be barred from any country under the "convict-made" clause of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act.

At the same time absence of diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia has hedged the situation with considerable difficulties.

CLAIM REMEDY FOR PNEUMONIA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Universal.)—A revolutionary medical discovery was made known here today when authorities at St. Elizabeth's Hospital announced an electrical treatment for lobar and bronchial pneumonia so overwhelmingly positive in 200 tests that it is "virtually a specific."

Medical authorities expressed the opinion that the discovery ranks with that of smallpox vaccination and pointed out that thousands of lives can be saved annually by its use.

In lobar pneumonia cases discovered within 12 hours after infection, a cure was effected in virtually every case. In cases discovered after 12 hours the percentage was slightly lower, but still very high. Due to the fact that bronchial pneumonia comes on much more gradually than the lobar type, it was difficult to detect these cases early, and the percentage ran about the same as the later diagnoses lobar cases.

Bobby Jones Swims First Time in Decade

CALLS MERGER COMPULSORY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company "had to merge," Thomas J. Bray, director of the concern, testified today at the hearing of the injunction suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to prevent a merger with the Bethlehem Steel Company.

His testimony supported that already given by James A. Campbell, veteran chairman of Sheet and Tube, and Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem.

Bray, who formerly was president of the Republic Iron and Steel Company was called by the plaintiffs as the hearing entered its sixth week today.

He said there is no possibility of Sheet and Tube increasing its dividends in the near future because of changing conditions in the steel industry, which would involve, on the part of the local company, a great expenditure of money.

SAFETY DISPLAY SHOWS WRECK

A wreck-twisted automobile perched on a pedestal was on display in the traffic island in Bigelow boulevard near Herron avenue today, as part of the Better Traffic Committee's war against careless and wreckless driving.

Erected by the educational section of the committee, the statue of warning is 22½ feet high, and 19½ feet at the base. It is all done in white, and will be illuminated after dusk, it was said.

Approximately 30,000 vehicles pass the statue each day, officials of the committee said, and it was hoped that the battered machine will bring home to motorists the need for care in driving.

The lettering on the statue asks:

"Why? Did he cross the Yellow Line?"

The question will be changed every month, it was said.

HURT IN FIGHT, MAN DIES

Beaten on the head with a bottle, Wassell Paucrate, 40, of 2205 Watson street, died this morning in the Mercy Hospital, a short time after he had been found unconscious in his home. Homicide detectives are holding his son-in-law, Traffin Yenchenkow, 35, of 356 Armor avenue, New Homestead, and Harry Kubic, 36, of 214 McClure avenue, Homestead.

According to detectives who questioned the men, Paucrate and Yenchenkow quarreled yesterday in Paucrate's home and during the fight, both men wielded bottles. Police say Paucrate had slapped his daughter, Mrs. Yenchenkow, because she resented his beating her son when the child broke a pitcher in their home yesterday. During the fight between Paucrate and Yenchenkow, the older man was struck on the head several times, police said.

BILLINGS QUIZ HEARS WOMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Cross-examination of Estelle Smith, whose testimony has overshadowed in sensationalism that of John MacDonald, recalling "key" witness, was to open today's session of the California State Supreme Court's hearing on the pardon application of Warren K. Billings, convicted with Tom Mooney in the 1916 preparedness day bombings here.

Edwin V. McKenzie, attorney for Billings, who has been exercising the utmost restraint since the unusual "retrial" began Monday, will submit Miss Smith to the most severe grilling given any witness so far in the hearing, it was learned.

Miss Smith, a surprise witness at the present hearing, declared in a statement in 1916 that she had seen Billings on the day of the bombing, carrying a suitcase which he handled with extreme care. In 1929 she stated in an affidavit that she was not certain the man she saw was Billings, and last week she told the seven justices of the Supreme Court that she was confident of her first identification.

Society Girl Jilts Son Of Diplomat for Clerk

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Jilting a distinguished foreign diplomat's son, to whom she had formally plighted her troth, Miss Marjorie Mairs, wealthy young society girl, eloped with a handsome but obscure young Wall street man, whose millions are only dreams, it was revealed today.

Complications, since then, have beset what she believes is the path of true love, for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olney B. Mairs, are said to be urging her to have the wedding annulled.

But Miss Mairs—now Mrs. Martin Henry—has no intention of doing so, she said last night.

Her engagement to Daniel Francois-Marie Hubrecht, son of Dr. Jan Hubrecht, counsellor of the Netherlands legation to the Court of St. James, and Mme. Hubrecht, was noted in the society columns in September, 1929.

It was the twentieth of June. Mr. Hubrecht, her fiance, was abroad. The American was dancing attendance upon Miss Mairs. There was a party.

She and Henry announced their engagement. They decided to be married that night. So all jumped into motor cars and sped to Harrison, N. Y., where the town clerk Henry is a customers' man for a brokerage firm.

YOUTH HELD, 7 FREED IN RIOT AT POOL

Victim Cut During Melee Tells Magistrate of Free-for-All Fight

One youth was held for court for felonious cutting, and seven others were discharged today at a hearing before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court on a free-for-all fight which was alleged to have started at the new Paulson avenue swimming pool because Negroes were admitted.

Leon Martin, 22, Negro, of 6607 Bower street, was held after he admitted cutting Joseph Heh, 28, of 1340 Paulson avenue. Heh, his brother, Sylvester; Leonard Yarborough, 21, and his brothers, Sidney, 16, and Thaddeus, 18, Negroes, of 6632 Bower street, and Sam Ponds, of 1220 Montezuma street, also a Negro, were discharged.

TELLS OF CUTTING

Heh said he was cut when he remonstrated with Negroes who were ducking white boys in the pool. Martin ran from the pool during a free-for-all fist fight, obtained the knife from his wife, Alice, and jumped back into the crowd in the pool, Heh testified.

Martin and Ponds said that the white boys started the fight by jostling and pushing the Negroes when they attempted to dive into the pool. They both said there was just six Negroes in the pool.

POLICE PROTECTION

MEXICO SCORNS MORROW PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Universal.)—Ambassador Dwight Morrow's proposal to sell Boulder Dam water to Mexico as a means of liquidating American claims against that government, has been rejected by Mexico City, it was learned today.

Under Morrow's plan, half of the water derived by the Colorado River project would be sold to Mexico and then re-sold to the United States, the proceeds being applied against the claims.

Although no reason was ascribed for the rejection, it is understood that Mexico took the stand that the proposition was in some nature an infringement upon her national sovereignty.

The plan, when it became known, was vigorously opposed by Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, and Representative Swing (Rep.), of California, in communications to Secretary of State Stimson.

GERMANS MAY HALT SEA HOP

REYJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller, German aviators, indicated today that they probably would abandon the remainder of their proposed trans-Atlantic flight from Berlin to the United States, because in Greenland there is no suitable landing place.

They were considering sailing for the United States aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Minnedosa.

PARLEY DECIDES ON COAL 'RIB' SURVEY

PRICE REDUCTION

The Coal Company is prepared to make a sharp reduction in the price it is asking for its coal pillars, according to a report.

Powerful influences among large stockholding groups, dissatisfied with the attempt of the company to exact an alleged exorbitant figure for the coal pillars under threats to undermine the township area involved, are reported to have demanded that a settlement of the controversy be effected.

The company receded from its original demands in the call for the conference issued by Don Rose, general counsel, whose office was the place of meeting, which began at 10 o'clock.

READY TO LISTEN

The township representatives, G. J. Irwin, township manager; Edwin B. Goldsmith, township solicitor, and W. F. Vegeler, township engineer, were merely to listen to what the company had to offer.

Irwin said:

"Because we are going into a conference, it does not mean that we are backing water in any respect. We are merely going to hear what the company has to offer. Out of courtesy to the company we have withheld the court action intended to be filed today."

BIG DROP IN PRICE

The company is reported to be willing now, in the face of the widespread public indignation aroused by its move and the determined resistance organized among the township inhabitants, to accept 25 cents a ton or less for the coal pillars for which it originally asked 50 to 75 cents a ton.

Such a reduction will be sufficient, according to township leaders, to bring about an agreement whereby the company may gracefully retire from the field and leave adequate surface support.

Property owners demand to be informed how the company can reconcile its demand of 75 cents a ton for coal which is valued on the tax records of the township at five cents a ton.

This value was allowed upon contentions of the company year after year for lower values of the coal, claiming that it should be valued lower than the amounts fixed by assessors.

LOW ASSESSMENT

The township assesses an acre of the company's coal at $400, which is at the rate of 5 cents a ton on the basis of 8,000 tons to the acre. In 1925 the value was assessed at $450 and in 1926 at $430, the reductions having been sought by the company.

Township records are enlightening in disputing the contention of the company that its mining operations in the Mt. Lebanon field were continuing during past years and that notice of the "retreat" from the field was only announced recently.

PROSPECT HAS WEIGHT

During recent years the company has mined as little as 10 acres of coal under the township in one year.

The prospect of prolonged litigation, and the possibility that condemnation proceedings by the township may result in the fixing of price for coal far below the sum asked is reported to be a factor in influencing the company to seek an amicable settlement of its conflict with the township.

Attorney Harold M. Irons, formerly assistant city solicitor and an expert in condemnation cases, voiced the opinion that a jury would award the company a meager sum for its coal supports. There is considerable opinion that the company would be allowed not more than 10 cents a ton, and perhaps less.

At 10 cents a ton the owner of the average piece of property in the township would be called upon to pay $60 to clear the coal rights and acquire adequate surface support, and it is believed that in the end a settlement no higher than this rate might be effected en bloc for all property owners involved.

$5,000,000 AFFECTED

The coal company charts show that the pillars underlie a strip of the township extending about a mile east and west centering on the Municipal Building, and from 400 to 600 feet in width, with five other strips crossing the main strip at right angles, two about one-fourth of a mile long and 250 feet in width, one about one-half mile long and 200 feet in width and two about one-half mile long and 250 feet in wdth.

Virtually all the township area outside the section now involved in the "retreat" from mining operations has been mined out. This is roughly considered to be 90 per cent of the township area. In some of this area pillars have been left supporting the surface, by agreement with surface owners, but under the great bulk of it the supports were withdrawn after the mining operations, generally years ago when the surface was farm land and unimproved, and any resulting subsidence had little effect.

15-DAY WORLD FLIER IN AIR

BURBANK, Cal., Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Ted S. Lundgren, film aviator of Hollywood, and W. H. Seiler, a test pilot, took off at 6:31 a. m., today in a specially built Emsco monoplane, bound for New York, and a projected 15-day globe-circling flight.

The plane arrived from Downey, where it was built, after battling fog for two hours. The initial hop started perfectly, according to United Airport attendants.

Lundgren prepared for his trip secretly and revealed his plans for the first time today. He said his aim was to circle the world on a 20,000-mile route in 15 days.

If he succeeds he will cut six days from the circumnavigation time of the Graf Zeppelin last summer.

At New York, Lundgren was to take on Roger Q. Williams, noted pilot, and a relief pilot, whose identity was not revealed. Lundgren will act as radio operator and navigator.

WARWICK, R. I., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Charles Weaver, president of a flying field here, joined the caterpillar club when he took to his parachute after a wing of his plane was torn away Sunday.

The plane crashed into the yard of Lemy Palin, only 10 feet from where Palin's 2-year-old twins were playing.

Weaver had been up nearly three hours in a test flight when a wing buckled in a power dive and was sheared from the plane. For nearly 4,000 feet Weaver worked in vain to free himself, finally clearing the plane at a scant 1,000 feet from the ground. He escaped with minor bruises.

CHICAGO 100 YEARS OLD

In spite of the fact that elaborate preparations are under way to celebrate the official centenary of the city's founding in 1933 with a world's fair, the history of the town really dates from August 4, 1830.

On that day the settlement known as Fort Dearborn disappeared from the marsh flats along the Chicago River, and for the first time the name "Chicago" was applied to the community after James Thompson completed, published and filed for record his plat of the town.

The plat, which is still in the possession of the Chicago Historical Society, showed a "city" three-eighths of a mile square along the banks of the river, bounded by State, Desplaines, Kinzie and Madison streets.

The seven families residing here lived within the limits of the military reservation which was not included in the survey.

Drought Unabated, With Promised Showers to Give Little Relief; Many Fires

Kennedy was drowned in the Monongahela River at Dravosburg, the girl at Nadine Station on the Allegheny River and Laber in the Ohio River at Franklin street. Laber was a former football star at Oliver High School.

FIREMEN WARNED

Edward Eids, president of the Allegheny County Volunteer Firemen's Association today appealed to firemen who are scheduled for parades during the next week to leave their apparatus at home to protect the various districts.

Eids, who is chief of the Brentwood fire department, said:

"I am appealing to the volunteer fire companies who are scheduled to appear in a half dozen parades during the next week to leave their apparatus at home, and sufficient men to operate the equipment. Extra precautions should be taken to prevent grass fires. Sparks easily ignite the roofs of buildings."

Four additional grass fires called out firemen in Pittsburgh and vicinity today. One threatened the John W. Waterman Hotel in Castle Shannon and another in Kennedy Township was battled by firemen from Crafton, Ingram, Carnegie and Stowe Township. City firemen extinguished brush fires at Winston street and Johnston avenue and at Pacific and Schenley avenues.

WOMAN REVIVED

An unidentified woman collapsed from the heat in Fifth avenue at William Penn way yesterday. She was revived in a drug store and taken home by friends. John Uhinger, 72, of 2017 Gregory street, South Side, was reported slightly improved at the South Side Hospital today. He was taken to the hospital Saturday after having been overcome by the heat.

Henry R. Eby, county farm agent, estimates the loss to farmers here at $100,000 through the persistent drought. He and farmers agree that unless adequate rain falls within a few days the crops will be destroyed.

Hundreds of firemen and volunteers in the city and county were kept busy yesterday fighting fires, most of them brush blazes which menaced homes and buildings in all parts of the county. The extreme dryness of the vegetation caused the flames to spread fast. Between 6 a. m. and midnight there were more than 50 alarms sounded in the city, 43 of them for brush fires, and it was estimated there were twice as many calls outside the city.

Boy Scouts Join Volunteer Firemen

Boy Scouts at Umbstaetter reservation near Sewickley, gave up their swimming meet last evening to join volunteers fighting a fire at Haysville and Glen Osborne Heights. They aided firemen from both communities in extinguishing the flames. State Fire Warden Edward A. Costello directed the work. The volunteers dug trenches and erected barricades before they could extinguish the flames. The blaze swept over a 100-acre tract.

Glendale firemen were called out last night when flames swept over a wooded hillside near Rennerdale. Firemen reported hundreds of wild animals were burned to death. Volunteers reported seeing the charred remains of groundhogs, opposums and rabbits in the brush.

Another fire was still burning last midnight along the hillside at the city side of the Glenwood bridge. Firemen from Hazelwood and Squirrel Hill fought for several hours before they could bring the flames under control.

Six Horses Burned In East End Barn

Late yesterday the Hazelwood companies were called out to fight a fire raging on the hillside near Calvary Cemetery. No great damage was caused by any one of the city fires.

Six horses were burned to death and a barn and two wagons destroyed in the East End district this morning. The barn, in the rear of 936 Chianti street, was owned by Mrs. Christine Handle of that street. The flames had gained headway when firemen arrived, and it was impossible to enter the building to save the horses. The damage was estimated at $4,000.

Firemen from nine communities battled for more than an hour before they extinguished a fire on Butcher's Hill, on the line separating Robinson and Collier Townships. Four acres of corn were destroyed and a row of six houses in Collier Township menaced. Firemen responded from Montour Valley, Bower Hill, Kerwin Heights, Carnegie, East Carnegie, Glendale, Bridgeville and Stowe Township.

Aspinwall Orchard Ruined by Flames

While Aspinwall firemen were fighting a fire at the head of Virginia avenue, in that borough another broke out near the National Amusement park on the Freeport road. Before firemen from Sharpsburg, Etna and Blawnox could bring the flames under control, a large apple orchard had been ruined.

Thousands of persons in the South Hills district watched firemen from four communities battle a stubborn fire on the 20-acre tract of the Southern Land Company at Cochran and Bower Hill roads, Mt. Lebanon. Volunteers from Heidelberg, East Carnegie and Glendale aided companies from Mt. Lebanon and Dormont in extinguishing the flames.

Two fire alarm summons in Crafton yesterday increased the number of brush fires in that borough to 14 within a week. Members of the Ingram department assisted the Crafton firemen in extinguishing one of yesterday's fires. Ingram firemen also responded to an alarm at the Windgap road near the McKees Rocks Bridge, in the city limits, and helped the city firemen extinguish a large brush fire.

Duquesne, Munhall Firemen Kept Busy

Mifflin Township and Duquesne firemen battled five hours before they succeeded in getting under control a brush fire along the hillside between Duquesne Annex and Polish Hill. Several fences were destroyed. Munhall companies answered six calls within a few hours yesterday to extinguish brush fires.

A company of McKeesport firemen battled five hours last night to extinguish a blaze near the Christy Park section. Springdale Borough and East Deer Township volunteers joined in fighting a blaze on a hillside near Springdale. Baldwin Township firemen battled one on the Buchman plan of lots.

Six Fires Reported At Once in City

Fire Alarm Operators Ollie Regan and Edward McKelvey said yesterday was one of the busiest days the fire bureau has experienced in several years. At one time six fires were burning in various sections of the city. Virtually every company in the city was moved at one time or another during the day.

In promising relief Forecaster Brotzman said light rains would fall in scattered sections of this district. He said the rain would not be sufficient to relieve the drought, but would probably reduce the temperature.

Thousands of Fish Dying in Low, Warm Water

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Any envy which may be felt by sweltering humans for the fish who spend the long days of heat and drought in cool-looking streams and lakes is misplaced, for the finny ones are dying by thousands.

Low water and rising temperatures have decimated game fish in numbers approaching a national disaster and the United States Bureau of Fisheries fears the brood it is raising at many hatcheries will be doomed to extinction unless relief comes soon.

OFFICER, MOB'S VICTIM, BETTER

Patrolman Farhat J. Saba, of 5112 Harriet street, reporting to Forty-third Street Station, is recovering in Mercy Hospital today from injuries suffered Saturday night when nearly 50 Negroes attacked him at Wilkinsburg and Penn avenues.

Although the identities of several of the mob who participated in the riot are known, no arrests have been made.

The riot occurred when Saba, with two Negroes under arrest, was waiting for the patrol at Wilkinsburg and Penn avenues. Saba arrested the men for disorderly conduct at Broad street and Pacific avenue.

Threats and jeers were hurled at Saba from a mob of Negroes who followed the officer to the patrol box. When Saba opened the box several of the Negroes leaped at him, throwing him to the ground and beating him.

Saba then emptied his revolver into the crowd and collapsed. He was taken to West Penn Hospital and was later removed to the Mercy Hospital, where he was attended for a deep laceration of the scalp.

BORIS AGAIN ON BRIDE HUNT

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—(Universal)—King Boris, of Bulgaria, traveling incognito as Count Rilsky, is shortly leaving Sofia in one more effort to find a consort, according to private advices here.

His destination, the reports add, is Coburg, seat of the Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen family of Germany. At Coburg, Boris is expected to negotiate with dowager Queen Marie of Rumania regarding a possible betrothal of Princess Ileana, whose engagement to Prince Alexander of Hohenlohe, appears now to be definitely broken.

King Carol's return to Rumania and the consolidation of the Rumanian dynasty make an alliance with the Rumanian royal family highly desirable to the Bulgarian throne. Marie and Ileana are expected at Coburg in time for Boris' arrival.

CLAIMS SWAMP VETS BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Universal)—With the reopening of more than 600,000 claims by World War veterans and the filing of 125,000 new claims by Spanish War veterans, the new veterans' administration is literally swamped, it was learned today.

In addition, countless thousands of new claims by World War veterans being filed at regional offices throughout the country will shortly be added to the avalanche, thus adding to the task of the administration.

The 600,000 claims are those which have been refused in the past because the claimants failed to prove that their disability was of service origin. Under the veterans' act passed at the recent session of Congress, however, it is not necessary to prove service origin, and thus these claims, filed away as "inactive," have again become active.

The 120,000 claims from Spanish War veterans grow out of the bill passed by Congress over the President's veto increasing their pensions.

The previous record of 13,254 feet was held by Charles Kazala, of Poland.

A PICTURE NO ROBOT CAN PAINT!

ONE cannot produce art without feeling. Hence the inadequacy of mechanical rendition of music as a substitute for Living Music.

Life—glamour—excitement are fundamental requirements of the theatre. There is drama in the artist's struggle to please and in the emotional response of the audience.

The intelligent theatre goer enjoys the thrill of the artist's presence, and the feeling that his presence, too, is felt. He is a participant in the event—a critic of the performance, empowered to reward excellence and to reprove fault.

Music supplied this life, this human contact for the motion picture theatre until the coming of Canned Music.

The purely mechanical theatre represents the climax of a new spirit in the theatrical business, one that takes the docility of the patron too much for granted. His money is required, therefore he must be given a show. "But," says the exploiter, "let's give him no more than we must."

Millions of theatre patrons believe they are wrong and are voicing a demand for Living Music in the theatre by joining the Music Defense League. It is your right, also, to vote on this cultural issue. See coupon below.

150,000 AUTO WORKERS BACK ON JOBS

Detroit Plants Resume as Vacations End; Boom In Industry Forecast

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 4.—An army of 150,000 workers today resumed their jobs in Michigan automobile factories following three weeks of idleness as the result of vacations and inventory.

Plants reopening included the Ford, Chevrolet, Oakland-Pontiac and Packard factories.

Predictions that the auto industry would start booming were made by automotive leaders, including Ford officials and Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of the General Motors Corporation.

"NORMAL SOON"

Production will be normal soon and remain so the rest of the year, leaders are confident.

Dealers, consulted about their needs, have eliminated overproduction and are placing heavy orders.

Buyers like the new offerings. Studebaker's feature, the "free-wheel drive," is bringing retail deliveries near the 1929 level at this time.

AUSTINS POPULAR

Buick's four new lines of straight eights have met a response that will bring the plant near to capacity output for the next few months.

Chrysler has announced new straight eights and stepped up production daily.

Those little American Austins are tickling the public. The Butler (Pa.) plant has more orders for immediate shipment than it can fill in three months.

'WISER NOW' -MENCKEN

BALTIMORE, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Henry L. Mencken, the magazine editor, critic and one-time staunch defender of bachelorhood, whose marriage next month to Miss Sara Powell Haardt, Goucher College graduate and writer, startled the literary world Saturday, admitted today he is becoming more wise with age. He said when friends confronted him with his own written opinions on marriage:

"I formerly was not as wise as I am now."

He said plans for the ceremony are indefinite and that the clergyman he has in mind is now out of town. He did not reveal his name.

Laughingly, he added:

"The ceremony will be very refined."

In Montgomery, Ala., the bride-to-be's mother revealed today that the betrothal is by no means culmination of a whirlwind romance and courtship, but that Mencken first met Miss Haardt at Goucher College, from which she was graduated in 1920. Mrs. Haardt added she did not believe the disparity in ages was great because, while Mencken is 50, her daughter is "around 30."

Girl, 5, Shoots Her Playmate, 6, to Death

DENVER, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Gloria Utter, 5, shot and killed her 6-year-old playmate, Rose May Etheridge, during a quarrel, authorities announced, but said prosecution was unlikely.

While playing, the girls quarreled, Gloria, it was said, ran to a garage, obtained a .22 caliber rifle, and fired once as Rose May fled. Colorado statutes make no provision for punishment of such crimes by children under 10.

JOSEPH HORNE CO

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

WEEK TO BRING 5 PRIMARIES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Universal.)—With 15 states holding primaries in August—five scheduled for this week—the issues that are to dominate the fall campaigns have been taken fairly definite shape by September 1, it became apparent today.

The primaries this week are in Kansas, Missouri, West Virginia and Virginia tomorrow, and in Tennessee, Thursday.

In Tennessee the fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination is between Andrew L. Todd, farmer, lawyer and business man, of Murfreesboro, and Cordell Hull, former representative and one-time chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Reflecting a growing tendency in the South to break away from the international policies of Woodrow Wilson, Todd has come out flatly against American membership in the League Court; Hull, on the other hand, is a pro-courter.

In West Virginia, prohibition has entered as a dominant issue, former Representative Benjamin Rosenbloom seeking the Republican senatorial nomination with opposition to the Eighteenth Amendment as his bulwark. He is opposed by three other aspirants all dry. Former Senator W. M. Neely is unopposed for the Democratic nomination to succeed Senator Goff.

3 SHOT IN CHILD GANG WAR

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Three child bystanders were shot and wounded when a juvenile "gang war" broke out in the heart of Chicago's West Side melting pot.

The story, as witnesses related it to police, was that Louis Hoda, 11, and Albert Biachi, 7—small but mighty—used their fists upon the Obazza brothers—John and Teddy, 12 and 14—with results very distressing to the Obazzas, who finally took to flight.

Louis and Albert were gloating pridefully for the benefit of Sam Sharisena, 6; Billy Korkoras, 8, and Florence Moliere, 15, when John, carrying a handful of bullets, and Teddy, bearing a rifle, returned to erase the stain from the Obazza escutcheon.

Shipping Increased On Monongahela

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 4.—Despite a low river stage that caused barge cargoes to be lightened, coal shipments on the Monongahela River here during July were 34,130 tons higher than in June. Total commerce aggregated 1,191,888 tons, an increase of 14,500 tons over the previous month.

Tuberculosis Group Elects Doctor Head

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 4.—Dr. E. M. Hazlitt, Washington, has been named president of the Washington County Tuberculosis Society, succeeding Glenn Williams, of West Middletown, whose recent resignation was accepted.

Make This at Home

For the August Vacation
Pattern 1997
Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS.

No wardrobe is complete without several sheer prints fashioned into dainty, simple models. The frock presented today achieves its grace through a flared cape collar and a charming full skirt that express the last word in fashion. The pert sash and the sleve ruffle add dainty feminine touches.

Pattern 1997 is perfectly ravishing developed in chiffon, georgette, voile or flat crepe. A light or dark ground would be equally smart. For early fall, I suggest chiffon velvet or wool voile with tiny woven designs.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4¾ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our BOOK of PATTERNS for adults and children, including transfer patterns, is FIFTEEN CENTS. Book with pattern, 25c. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.

LIFE MYSTERY FOSDICK TOPIC

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of Riverside Church New York City, spoke at a service of worship at Chautauqua assembly before an audience of 6,000 on mysteries of life.

"I would rather live in a world where life is surrounded by mystery than in a world so small that my mind could comprehend it," he said.

"Optimism and faith in spirit should be the theme of life. What our religion gives us is a kind of life and the power to sustain it that can be lived joyously, triumphantly in the midst of mystery. It gives us light enough to walk by, and hope and love."

Wife, Three Sons See Man Drowned

PORT WASHINGTON, O., Aug. 4.—While wading in Tuscarawas River, Rhodes C. Moore, 36, Alliance, stepped into a hole 15 feet deep and was drowned. The body was recovered. Moore, who could not swim, was on a picnic with his wife and three sons, all of whom saw him drown.

PILOTS BLAMED IN FAILURE

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—John S. Donaldson, promotor of the "Reds" endurance plane which was forced down after 311 hours in the air blamed failure of the flight on faulty operation of an altitude adjustment on the motor.

The pilots flew too low, he said, for the adjuster to function properly, and they did not realize their mistake in time to regain altitude before being forced down. The motor stopped when the adjuster cut off its proper fuel mixture.

Mechanics who tore the motor apart said they could find no defects.

Officer and Man Aiding Him Shot

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Joseph P. O'Brien, a policeman, and Albert Daniels, 44, were seriously wounded in a gun battle with two men.

O'Brien came upon two prowlers and ordered them to halt. Shots were fired, and Daniels, a spectator, came to the aid of the patrolman. Both were wounded and the gunmen escaped in an automobile.

START BOULDER DAM LINE SOON

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 4.—(Universal)—Construction work on the branch line of the Union Pacific Railroad from this town to the Boulder Canyon dam site is expected to begin in about two weeks, it was announced today.

Rails and ties for the branch line, which will be utilized for the hauling of materials to the world's greatest reclamation project, already have been assembled here. Crews and grading machinery will be assembled within two weeks and actual construction work under way shortly thereafter.

The first section will terminate at Boulder Dam City, and will cost $900,000 and is to be completed within four months. The second section to the dam site will require possibly six months and will cost $1,600,000.

Held for Theft As Socks Yield Alleged Loot

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 4.—Charles Kraynak, 21, is being held by city police after $17, alleged to have been stolen from a gasoline station here, was found on him. It was hidden in his socks. Police Chief J. C. Wall said the accused youth had loitered about the station and lifted the money when the attendant was summoned by a motorist.

DRINKS KILL 2, SELLER HELD

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—A proprietor of an alleged speakeasy in Harlem was arrested on a charge of homicide after two men died in his place from the effects of poisonous liquor.

Police alleged the men purchased the liquor from Dick Geratano, the proprietor, and died almost immediately after drinking it.

There were seven others in the party with Peters and Reichel, police said, but they had not touched their drinks before the other two men collapsed and fell to the floor.

CANADIAN PLANS OCEAN FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Capt. J. Erroll Boyd, Canadian World War flier, announced he would attempt a non-stop solo trans-Atlantic flight next week from Roosevelt Field to Croydon, England.

Capt. Boyd said he will fly a high-powered monoplane, capable of a cruising speed of 120 miles an hour, and equipped for blind flying. He hopes to make the crossing in 30 hours, flying the great circle route.

Capt. Boyd rose to the rank of a flight commander in the war and was credited with sinking a German submarine off Ostend. He was near the German frontier in Holland, and interned by the Dutch.

He was co-pilot with Roger Q. Williams on the recent non-stop flight from New York to Bermuda and return of the trans-Atlantic plane Columbia.

RIVER SURVEYS PLEDGED SOON

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 4.—Inspection of the Youghiogheny river within the next two weeks to expedite plans for construction of locks and dams between McKeesport and West Newton, and a survey between the latter place and this city, as authorized by the rivers and harbors bill recently enacted by Congress, has been promised by Col. Spalding of St. Louis, United States District engineer.

A wire received by Secretary John K. Blake of the Board of Trade, who is vice-president of the Youghiogheny River Improvement Association, from Congressman Adam M. Wyant, of Greensburg, says that at a conference in St. Louis he received a promise from Col. Spalding to inspect the site of the proposed locks and dams within two weeks.

OIL MEN URGED TO ADVERTISE

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 4.—The oil conservation board in the wake of a five cent boost in price of Bradford crude to $2.15, today appealed to operators to increase their allowance for advertising purposes to three cents a barrel. In a statement, the board said:

"You have been made a present of five cents a barrel. The pipe line companies elected to pass on to you the reduction in their charges and advanced the price of your oil that amount. Why not make use of it by subscribing three cents to advertise your oil?"

Real Estate

Pittsburgh realty men and builders believe that any definite improvement in the general business situation may serve to bring conditions in the construction industry back to a normal basis more quickly than has been generally predicted. Builders here are familiar with the conclusions reached in a nation-wide survey of the industry which has just been completed by the Lawbeck Corporation, a realty financing company managed by Lawrence Stern and Company, investment bankers.

According to the Lawbeck survey there seems to be a general agreement that he decisive upturn of business conditions may be expected next month. That the revival would be promptly reflected in the building industry is indicated by a number of special factors which now exist.

It is pointed out that there has been a comparatively long period of cessation of residential building and that the present available volume of space for residential purposes does not indicate an over-supply and is adapted to the demands of a time of depression. Another factor favoring residential building is in the fact that there is now going forward and under contemplation an unusually large volume of road building, governmental building and construction of public utilities.

John A. Brownlee sold for Paul Englert to Leslie M. Meyers a new brick bungalow and garage on a lot 44 by 110 feet in Annapolis avenue, Dormont, for a private consideration. The same broker also sold for Walter A. Mahler to Daniel Lillemoen a two-story brick dwelling on a lot 30 by 120 feet in Mississippi avenue, Dormont.

L. C. Miller will erect five brick dwellings in North Aiken avenue. In the application for the building permit the estimated cost is $37,500.

The Auslander-Krasnow Company co-operating with the T. E. Clinton Company sold three apartment buildings on the northeast corner of Negley avenue and Rural street for Lee Spangler to a Chicago investor. This property has a frontage of 96 feet on Negley avenue and 115 feet on Rural street. As part payment the purchaser conveyed 13 lots free of all incumbrances on Terrace and Wallace streets, Fourth Ward. The total consideration for the transaction was $140,000. The purchaser has appointed the Auslander-Krasnow Company renting agents for the property.

RECORDING THE PHOTOPLAY STARS IN STUDIO AND ON THE TALK SCREEN

Richard Dix Will Portray Hero in 'Cimarron;' No Heroine Yet

By HARRISON CARROLL.
(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4.—More to-do has been made about the feminine lead in "Cimarron" than any other part since D. W. Griffith was choosing his Lincoln.

After testing most of the available actresses in Hollywood, R-K-O is reported to have its eye upon Rose Hobart for the Edna Ferber heroine. Studio officials are now in a huddle with Universal, which controls Miss Hobart's screen destinies.

Even now, however, it would not surprise me to have the Hobart boom dissipate just as happened in the case of Fay Bainter, who was favorably looked upon at one time.

Janet Gaynor

Film audiences are not acquainted with Miss Hobart as yet. She's a New York stage actress, who stepped into Janet Gaynor's shoes when Fox got tired of waiting for the tiny star to make up her mind about "Lilliom." More recently, Miss Hobart has been working in "The Lady Surrenders" at the U. This is the provocative title under which John Erskine's novel "Sincerity" will be served up to the cinema fans.

Wesley Ruggles is to direct "Cimarron" for RKO, and the real star role, which has been temporarily eclipsed in the search for a heroine, falls to Richard Dix.

Something definite will have to be done shortly now, as the picture is scheduled to get under way about the fifteenth.

ALIMONY BLUES

When Carey Wilson, the scenarist, was divorced, the family home went to the wife.

"That house represents one million and three words," laments Carey. "The million in scripts and the three 'Yes, Your Honor.'"

ANOTHER SCANDAL

Harry Green, the comedian, has had to give up his apartment. Two Great Dane dogs were too much for the management.

BANNISTERS TOGETHER

It is planned for Ann Harding and her husband, Harry Bannister, to play opposite each other in "The Great Love."

This is a story that was written by Eugene Walter during his regime at Pathe. Since he departed this studio recently, Rollo Lloyd has taken over the script and, after the fashion of the cinema, has rewritten it. He'll direct, too, when the time comes.

Ann Harding

Though I invite disaster by saying it, Ann Harding and Harry Bannister seem to be among the happiest couples in Hollywood. They live on a hill-top above the film colony and apparently enjoy the serenity of domestic peace.

THE GAY NINETIES

When the University of Southern California football team reassembles, the line will hark back to the varsities of the Gay Nineties. Ward Bond, a husky guard, has grown a "forty niner" beard for his part in Raoul Walsh's "The Big Trail." As the college star is cast in George O'Brien's next Western, he'll be unable to visit a barber until after the season is under way.

PART FOR MIRIAM

Pathe's "Looking for Trouble," which will be the first of a number of films kidding the gangster plot, is to have the pretty Miriam Seegar as heroine. She'll play opposite Eddie Quillan.

The movie career of this actress has been a checkered one. She was under contract to Paramount, but bore such a close resemblance to Jean Arthur that they let her go. Next, she went to R-K-O, where, in this department's opinion, she acquitted herself admirably as Richard Dix's leading woman in "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

BROWN HOME

After an eight weeks trip to Europe, Clarence Brown is back in Hollywood. He made it from Paris in six and one-half days; five and a half on the boat and 22 hours in the air. Clarence shipped his own plane to Europe and back, flying across the continent to Hollywood. He'll do another picture soon, as M. G. M., is not likely to let a director be idle, whose salary is clocking up a steady $5,000 a week.

Washington County Raids Trap Four

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 4.—In liquor raids over the week end four alleged violators were committed to the county jail in default of bail. Paul Mallos and Stevan Kovacovich, Weirton, were arrested for alleged transporting near Burgettstown. William Powell, of Washington, and Pete Roberto, Charlerol, were also arrested on liquor charges.

Tree Sitters Aim At 500-Hour Mark

OIL CITY, Pa., Aug. 4.—Oil City's tree sitters are shooting at a mark of 500 hours, after having been "in the air" for 312 hours at noon Sunday. They found the heat wave endurable when friends brought ice cream and cold drinks. The boys, Varnes Borland and Norman Gortan, are enjoying the experience.

Damage Runs High In Fire at Arroyo

RIDGWAY, Pa., Aug. 4.—Fire which destroyed two bark stacks belonging to the Elk Tanning Company and the Smith Brothers store and the Tionesta Valley freight station was brought under control late Sunday at the village of Arroyo. Scores of men from the surrounding countryside were called to help fight the fire.

Damage was believed to be high, as many thousands of tons of bark were destroyed.

Crossing Crash Kills Artist, Mother, Child

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Ray McKinney, 60, an artist; his mother, Mrs. Ada McKinney, 84, and his daughter, Virginia, 8, were killed in a grade crossing accident Sunday at Varna. Their automobile was struck by a Lehigh Valley milk train.

The McKinneys had attended church services and were returning home. McKinney's wife had remained at home.

OUR NELL IS VIEWED WITH FRANKNESS IN HARRIS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Her Unborn Child," an adaptation of the stage play, is the new talk film in the Harris. It is the old theme of someone not doing right by Our Nell; the old theme, elaborated on and dressed up in the frank style of this modern day.

The heroine blames it all on love and goes through numerous reels looking peakish and tearful. At first she wants to marry the boy. Later she doesn't. At first he doesn't want to marry her. Later he does. Finally, both minds agree. Which is nice. It permits the picture to end.

Players, whose names aren't familiar to movie fans, appear in the cast. They are recruits from the stage. Most of them are keen at the emoting.

The film has received some hearty slaps from the censors. So it is a bit jumpy.

And most assuredly the picture is adult entertainment—that is, if it is entertainment. This, it seems to us, is a matter for individual viewpoint.

On the stage is Victor Graff and the RKOlians, with a magician and a dancer sandwiched in between the tunes.

Joy's Orchestra Returns to Villa

U. S. TO SCRAP 3 WARSHIPS SOON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—First in ratifying the London naval treaty, the United States today stood first also in placing its terms in effect. Three of its 18 battleships have been ordered withdrawn for scrapping this fall.

The Wyoming, Utah and Florida will see the end of their long service before the year is out. The treaty does not require their disposal until much later, but besides the international disarmament example involved, the United States will find in their retirement a saving of nearly $4,000,000.

This economy is the first to be made known by a government department since President Hoover's recent call for a reduction of all expenditures.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

'Falling Star'

IRMA GLADDEN'S BOUDOIR WAS COMPLETELY RANSACKED AND MANY VALUABLE THINGS STOLEN
THE BODY OF THE BEAUTIFUL FILM STAR WAS STILL IN THE MACHINE. IT WAS SLUMPED BACK AGAINST THE CUSHION BEHIND THE WHEEL, THE HEAD HAVING FALLEN FORWARD SO THAT THE MASS OF GOLDEN HAIR HUNG DOWN LOOSELY VEILING A PORTION OF THE FEATURES
DALE
DISTRICT ATTORNEY MAURICE
TWO OPERATIVES FROM THE D.A.'S OFFICE

CHAPTER I.

During Robin Dale's stay in California, as correspondent for the Daily Journal reporting the famous Donahue case*, two mysterious murders took place. Descriptions of them appeared on the front page of practically every newspaper in this country as well as abroad, because of the international reputations of the victims and of those who became enmeshed in the cases during the investigations.

Robin Dale's association with these investigations and the unique methods through which he arrived at the solutions of the mystery surrounding both affairs (following immediately upon his sensational expose in the Donahue affair) added an international flavor to a reputation for crime-detection already firmly established in New York.

The first of the two mysterious murders was that which became known as the Gladden case.

Dale had been making his home with Rex Forsythe in Beverly Hills, and was launching preparations for his return to the East, when he received the first word of the Gladden tragedy.

Dale and the famous author were having breakfast. From the little room in the west wing of the beautiful Riviera-type home, set on a hillside in the north portion of Beverly, Dale gazed out over Hollywood basking like a huge toytown in the morning sunlight. The slight haze which diffused the stately Sierra Madras Mountains in the distance added to the magic of the scene. To the west the blue Pacific gleamed from behind the housetops of Santa Monica.

The reporter had scarcely finished expressing regret at being obliged to leave such a vacation paradise when the telephone summoned him. It was Capt. Eugene Sommers, chief of detectives of the Los Angeles Police Department, with whom Dale had struck up a sincere and lasting friendship during a brief but thoroughly exciting association.

"That you, Dale? This is Sommers . . . if you're not set on returning to New York right away, here's something may interest you. Irma Gladden, the screen star, was just found murdered under very mysterious circumstances. I'm waiting for the medical examiner to start investigations. If you care to, come around to the Gladden place—it's on Beverly Drive north of Sunset."

When Rex Forsythe heard the news he was quite startled.

"Of course I knew Irma. It seems an odd thing to say now, but she was almost too beautiful to live. What, in the old melodramas, they would have called her 'fatal beauty' will more than likely turn out to be the hub of this tragedy. Naturally, you're going to stay."

"If I can get the okay of the boss. I'll wire him the story. Any way of identifying the Gladden place?"

"You can't miss it. There's a huge, bronze lion on the lawn to the left of the entrance gate."

It was not more than 10 minutes' walk from Rex Forsythe's home to the lawn on the bronze lion on Beverly Drive. As Rex had said, there was no possibility of missing the huge statue on the Gladden grounds.

When Dale passed through the gate, which was guarded by two officers of the Beverly Hills police department, he could not resist the impulse which took him to the side of the lion. There was something fascinating, life-like, about the reproduction of the king of beasts. Moulded in heroic proportions, it depicted the savage animal in a position to spring upon an imaginary prey, jaws open in a snarl, fangs ready to sink into its unwary victim, nostrils distended in the fury of the kill.

Whoever stood close by the bronze lion felt an uncontrollable desire to place a hand or arm between the opened paws as though it might give some vague sense of the feeling that must come to one thus actually pinioned. Robin Dale was no exception to this urge and there was a tingle in his blood as he imagined those powerful jaws shutting down upon his hand and arm. He took them out, rubbed them with a smile and then proceeded toward the house.

Irma Gladden's home was Spanish, two-storied, glistening white with bright red tiling. The driveway extended along the north side of the grounds passing under a porte-cochere which was adjacent to a tile-roofed veranda extending the length of the front patio. The star's expensive coupe was parked in the porte-cochere.

In the patio Robin Dale found District Attorney Maurice Kenton, Captain Summers, two operatives from the D. A.'s office, and the chief of the Beverly Hills police who had requested the co-operation of the Los Angeles department. The reporter was acquainted with all of them and after a few words with Maurice Kenton he was taken toward the parked coupe by Captain Sommers.

There Dale came face to face with the tragedy. The body of the beautiful film star was still in the machine. It was slumped back against the cushion behind the wheel, the head having fallen forward so that the mass of golden hair hung down loosely veiling a portion of the features.

A wrap of white transparent velvet, surmounted with a huge collar of white fox, thrown back disclosed an evening dress of jade-green chiffon. A huge, jagged red stain under the left breast, an incongrous, sinister blotch upon the bright green, gave grim evidence of the fatal wound. There were a few blood-red spots upon the white glistening velvet.

"She was found like this by the maid this morning at 9. I've already questioned the maid, but there's not much, except theories, to go on. Mathilda, that's the maid, had been away for the night. Of course, as you probably know, there are number of men tied up with Irma Gladden's life . . . also a woman or two . . . and a Filipino house boy whom she discharged a day or two ago for stealing. I've already sent a couple of men out to bring him in."

"No sign of the weapon, I suppose, captain?" Dale asked.

"Not yet . . . but a peculiar angle of the case is that we found her boudoir upstairs completely ransacked and many valuable things stolen."

(*A record of this strange case will be found among Robin Dale's adventures under the title by which it became famous: The Bride of Death.)

HONOR MEMORY OF JOHN BROWN

NEW RICHMOND, Pa., Aug. 4.—The memory of John Brown, abolitionist of the pre-Civil War days, was honored at the centennial observance at this little Crawford County town, as Dr. John Steele Duncan, of Mercer, eulogized him as a martyr to the cause of American freedom. Residents of New Richmond took part in a play depicting incidents of 100 years ago.

It was here Brown, the village tanner, lived with his first wife. Ruins of the tannery he operated are still pointed out.

A crowd of 800 attended the anniversary program. Milon Brown, of Corry, descendant of Brown, portrayed the abolitionist in the one-act drama, "An Evening in New Richmond." Mrs. Bess Heath Olmstead, of Washington, D. C., portrayed Brown's wife. In one corner of the grove where the program was held lies the body of the first Mrs. John Brown.

Burning Stomach Torture 3 Years

Misery Ends Quick with New Formula, Acidine

"For the last three years I have been bothered by food souring, causing a burning sensation, that at times I felt like jumping in the river," says Mr. E. J. Moore of Cincinnati, Ohio. "I tried innumerable medicines, consulted a stomach specialist, but no relief. Finally I heard about Acidine and got some. No more burning or sour belching and vomiting, no headaches. Acidine is certainly a marvelous medicine."

Similar reports from all over rave about this amazing new formula that succeeds where others fail. The reason is that it is different from others. Contains an effective scientific digestant, Japtase, that promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy foods under proper conditions. Five other ingredients relieve burning acid, stop gas, soothe irritated stomach lining. Acidine contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble.

Don't risk the dangerous results of acidity. Get Acidine from your druggist today. Take one dose and watch how quick acid indigestion, burning stomach, belching, pain, heartburn, fullness, short breath vanish. Eat, drink and smoke if you take Acidine to stop resulting acidity. Money back if not delighted. Get Acidine today and begin to enjoy life once more.

CURIOUS CREATURES

FOOD DETERMINES SIZE.

MANY WHO HAVE SEEN THE BLOW FLY IN DIFFERENT SIZES BELIEVE THAT THE FLY GROWS AFTER IT ATTAINS WINGS, BUT THIS IS NOT THE CASE — THE SIZE OF THE LARVA WHEN IT ENTERS THE PUPA STAGE DETERMINES THE SIZE OF THE FLY — THE LARVA WILL EAT AND GROW UNTIL IT REACHES ITS MAXIMUM SIZE OR UNTIL FOOD GIVES OUT — IT THEN GOES INTO THE PUPA STAGE, FROM WHICH THE FULL GROWN, ADULT FLY LATER EMERGES.

KILLED IN FIRST 'CHUTE JUMP

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Willard Immel, 22, Kingston, O., was killed here in his first parachute jump when he leaped from an altitude of 1,600 feet at Port Columbus.

He was a junior mechanic for the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, and was wearing two packs at the time. Both parachutes failed to open.

The plane from which Immel leaped to his death was piloted by Grant Melvin, operations manager for the Curtiss-Wright Service at Port Columbus, and Jack Fink, mechanic and licensed parachute packer.

When Immel's crushed body was found a short distance from the flying field, the ring on the back chute had been pulled only enough to take up the slack in the cord. The ring and cable on the emergency chute on his chest had been pulled entirely off.

2 DEAD, 11 HURT IN RAIL WRECK

VERNON, Tex., Aug. 4—(AP.)—Two men were killed and eleven persons injured in the derailment of an eastbound Fort Worth and Denver passenger train at an under pass at Oklaunion, eight miles east of here.

Direct cause of the wreck was attributed by officials to a truck driven by Arthur Cummings, said to have dislocated the track in passing through the under pass. When the truck's load failed to clear the structure, Cummings ran up the embankment and vainly attempted to halt the train.

Observing Cummings, the engineer slowed the train somewhat. It was believed to have been traveling about 35 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

Babies Taken Away, Mother Kills Self

YORK, Pa., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Wesley Miller, 20-year-old mother of three children, was found dead in a woodshed on a farm near Stoverstown, a suicide by hanging, according to Coroner L. U. Zech. In a note addressed to her husband, Mrs. Miller said she could live no longer because her "babies were taken from her."

Daughter Is Healthy Now

"My thirteen-year-old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired. We are recommending the Vegetable Compound to other school girls who need it. You may publish this letter."—Mrs. Floyd Butcher, R. #2, Gridley, Kansas.

Hay Fever Yields to Doctor's Discovery

Indianapolis—What is regarded as an amazing advance in medical science is the discovery of the actual cause of Hay Fever and Asthma by the well-known Dr. Fugate. He found the cause of these ailments originates from an unbalanced condition of the endocrine glands. After finding the cause he perfected an effective treatment that has already been used in thousands of cases, and the reports of immediate relief indicate that at last help for Hay Fever and Asthma has been found. An important booklet telling in detail about his discovery and treatment has been published by The Fugate Co., Dept. 6408, 126 S. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind., who offer to send it free. Those troubled with Hay Fever or Asthma should write at once.

"WILL ALWAYS BE A BOOSTER FOR KONJOLA"

Pittsburgh Resident Tells How New Medicine Put An End to Years of Neuritis.

What cheerful news this is for all who suffer from neuritis, and who may fear that they never will find relief from this most distressing ailment.

MR. J. E. CHAMBERS

But remember that Konjola's 32 ingredients—22 of them the juices of roots and herbs of known medicinal value—all work together in attacking, at the very source, ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, as well as rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola cleanses and stimulates the ailing organs. It is not a medicine to give mere temporary relief. Take, for instance, the happy experience of Mr. J. E. Chambers, 2820 Perrysville Avenue, Pittsburgh. Think over what Konjola did for him, and then hear all about this modern medicine from the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Hear of any number of actual cases of Konjola's triumphs, even when all else tried had failed, but right now read the words of Mr. Chambers, who said to the Konjola Man:

"Neuritis in my arms and shoulders caused misery for the past two years. My work is outdoors, and I am exposed to all kinds of weather. I tried many medicines that were highly recommended, but could find no relief. Friends advised me to give Konjola a trial, and this I did. To date I have used six bottles, and with the first two came signs of relief. As I continued with the treatment all my pains disappeared, and my bowels were regulated. I highly recommend Konjola to anyone who suffers as I did, and I will always be a booster for Konjola."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola is given a chance to show why seven million bottles of this amazing medicine were used in two years. Konjola is a medicine for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM DFARR

Among the Pittsburghers at Atlantic City 10 days ago were Howard Devlin, the attorney, and Joe Natali, the interpreter, whose name is a familiar one in the courthouse. The two were strolling along the boardwalk when Counsellor Devlin, ever generous, announced:

"Joe, you've always wanted a good cane. I'm going to make you a present of one."

So they went into a shop which is as exclusive as any along the boardwalk.

"Joe," suggested Devlin, "you go over there and pick out the cane you want. I want to buy some collars on this side."

Joe selected a cane, notified the clerk his friend would pay the bill and strolled into the lobby of a high-hat hotel adjoining.

The clerk later approached Devlin and suggested the cane bill.

"I don't understand," Devlin complained. "I never saw the man before."

Two clerks rushed into the hotel lobby and overtook the strutting Natali.

"Pay for that cane," one of the clerks demanded.

There were many words.

"Take it," Joe tossed the cane, "I didn't want it anyhow."

A young friend of ours who is a likeable roughneck, enjoys the so-called unemployment situation because it enables him to explain his unemployment, which is perpetual. The other day, walking along the downtown streets, he hesitated before what he said was a school for manners. He has never had any regard for manners, but when a young, attractive woman invited him in, in he went. He enrolled as a punil under an alias and studied correct table manners. His instructor was a man and at the end of the second day our hero was so outraged at the instructor that he rudely put on his hat and departed, balting at the door only to tell the instructor to go some place. He is still dunking.

Prof. "Poo" Ambler, of West Virginia University, was in town the other day to verify some of the facts he has gathered for a history of the Ohio River. Mr. Ed Sykes, of the Sun-Telegraph, who has been a newspaperman 41 years, was able to tell him that the river reporters of many years ago were Capt. Billy Evans and Robert Thornburg, both passed on; Fred Solitstone and Sir Percival Phillips, who was just plain Percy then, not having gone to London for his title. And, of course, Mr. Sykes himself.

The prominent packets of the nineties which docked along the Monongahela or the Ohio were the Kanawha, Queen City, C. W. Batchelor, Andes, Hudson, Keystone State, Annie Laurie, Adam Jacobs and James G. Blaine. Outstanding towboats were the Joe B. Williams and Peter Sprague.

The "November rise" was the much awaited event in those days, for not until the early winter rains had swelled the river could the towboats venture onto the waters with their heavy cargoes of coal, destined for points south. The good towboat could be counted on to pull 25,000,000 bushels of coal, and coal in those days was measured in bushels.

Say, that little jacking up I give Mr. Hoover about the weather did some good. You know these Republicans just get careless that way.

China is having a new war. And we are having trouble getting into it. We always have gunboats there so if there is any shooting one of our boats will get shot at and that gives us the usual alibi. But this time it seems we only had one gunboat. And it had to maneuver around for days before it could get in the line of fire.

PARTY GROUP FIRED ON BY MAN

Pair in Hospital, 2 Men, 2 Girls Jailed as Owner Resists Attempted Entry

Two youths were in the Sewickley Valley Hospital with gunshot wounds and two others and two girls were being held in the Beaver County jail today as the result of an alleged attempt to force entrance to a farmer's home to stage a party, police said.

John Volk, 23, of 1453 Melrose avenue, Ambridge, and Joseph Bennedetti, 22, of Church street, Ambridge, were in the hospital with shotgun pellets in their legs and bodies.

FOUR BEING HELD

Their companions, Nick Berky, 23, of 1204 Beaver road, Ambridge; John Moczablo, 23, of 1423 Beaver road Ambridge; Betty Davis, 20, of McKees Rocks, and Betty Sanda, 20, of the West End, were being held in jail.

According to Chief County Detective Charles O'Laughlin, the youths and the two girls went to the home of Dominick Kowalaski, farmer, of Potter Township, Beaver County, and demanded that they be permitted to come in. The farmer replied by firing a shot gun at them several times, they said.

FORMER EMPLOYE

Moczablo, formerly employed by Kowalaski, made the following statement, O'Laughlin said:

"I told them to come to the home with me. We all had a couple of drinks, but when we got there he wouldn't let us in. We started to break the door in and he fired a couple of times with a shotgun."

Kowalaski is also being held. No formal charge has been placed against any of them pending an investigation.

ACCEPTS RIDE, BEATEN, ROBBED

Beaten and robbed by a motorist who had given him a lift, Pierce Frauzenheim, 20, of 110 Bingham street, was thrown out of the machine at Capitol and West Liberty avenue early today. He was taken to the South Side Hospital, where it was reported he was suffering concussion of the brain.

Patrolman Richard Dunlap found Frauzenheim on the pavement in a semi-conscious condition. Frauzenheim told him he was waiting for a street car at Brookline boulevard and Pioneer avenue when an automobile approached. The driver offered to drive Frauzenheim to the city.

Once in the machine, Frauzenheim was hit on the head with a weapon, knocked unconscious and robbed of $30.

Nooks and crannies, up three steps and down five, up three more again, then at the very end of a dim vista, you find Joseph F. Kaye.

Penelope Redd

Usually you will find him working intently upon a violin, surrounded by fiddles that are to be and by fiddles in dry dock.

But you will also discover many paintings in Joseph F. Kaye's studio in the quaintest spot in town—the Burgwin Building.

Joseph Kaye, one of the charter members of the Associated Artists, is a painter by chance, not intention.

He knew all of the older painters. Frequently the companion of Poole, that artist welcomed Kaye's criticisms. Finally, he got together a painting kit for Kaye and persuaded him to try.

Kaye finished his first paintings a short time before the first exhibition of the Associated Artists 20 years ago. From that time on, he has exhibited in every subsequent exhibition.

BIDS ON SAFETY CURBS DUE TO BE OPENED

Proposals on Bigelow Blvd. and Mansfield Ave. Jobs Received by City Officials

City officials today were to open bids for safety curbs along several boulevards, the second opening of proposals for work designed to prevent repetition of the automobile accident in the Boulevard of the Allies recently, when two persons lost their lives as their machine was forced through the fence.

It is planned to erect safety curbs along Bigelow boulevard between Twenty-eighth and Kirkpatrick streets. This work will cost about $12,000. The city also will open bids for curbing along the curve in Mansfield avenue, West End. Numerous motorists have fallen over a steep embankment to Independence street when their machines plunged from the roadway.

Several weeks ago the city awarded contracts for similar work, including curbs on the Boulevard of the Allies and a fence on Grandview avenue.

FOUR MEN HELD IN SHOOTING

Suffering gun shot wounds in the abdomen, William O'Brien, 36, of Meyran avenue, was reported in a critical condition today in the Mercy Hospital. He was shot Saturday. Four men are being held by homicide detectives pending an investigation into the shooting.

The men held are Anthony Malone, 24, Gilmore way; Abraham Thomas, 23, of Bedford avenue; Angelo Spinelli, 18, of Gilmore way, and George Mongilise, 21, of Crawford street. The men told police they found O'Brien in the street after he had been shot.

YOUTH LYING IN STREET UNHURT

3 in Car Injured, Treated At Hospital; Autoist Accused of Recklessness

Two young women and a man, passengers in an automobile driven by Louis Miller, 23, of 6521 Hobart street, were bruised early today when Miller crashed his machine against a pole to avoid running over a youth who was stretched out in North Negley avenue near Rural street. The youth, William Marretta, 17, of 1806 Chislett street, was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital. Hospital attaches say they found nothing wrong with the boy and sent him home. The boy did not explain why he was lying in the street.

HELD AS RECKLESS

Riding with Miller were Miss Lillian Gelman, 20, of 5430 Jackson street; Betty Rubin, 23, of 718 Roberts street, and J. Zimmerman, 29, of 3330 McNeil place. They were treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises. Miller was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

James Martin, 4, of Noblestown road, died today in South Side Hospital of lockjaw induced by injuries received when he was struck by an auto at Wabash avenue and South Main street Friday. The driver, William Herman, 18, of Moffat street, Carnegie, was turned over to the coroner.

Motorcycle Policemen John Bray and William Harris escaped injury yesterday when a motorcycle driven by Bray upset while making a turn at Forty-eighth and Hatfield streets. The policemen were pursuing participants in a dice game they had broken up, when their motorcycle overturned, hurling them to the street.

AMBULANCE DAMAGED

Woodward Robinson, a Negro, of 48 First street, Leetsdale, was arrested on a reckless driving charge last night after his automobile crashed into the ambulance of the Montefiore Hospital at Center and Herron avenues, according to police. The ambulance, driven by James Friel, was en route for a patient. The damage to the ambulance was placed at $25.

William White, 32, of 6932 Hamilton avenue, was struck by an automobile today as he stepped from a Homestead-East Liberty street car at Shady and Wilkins avenues. Edward T. Slater, 45, of East Beau street, Washington, Pa., driver of the automobile, took White to the West Penn Hospital. Slater was arrested on a reckless driving charge. White is said to have suffered injuries to the neck.

FOUR WOMEN HURT

Four women and two children were in the McKeesport Hospital today with injuries following auto accidents in McKeesport and vicinity last night, according to police reports.

Mrs. Jemima Harris, 42, of 121 Twentieth street, Homestead; Robert Cotter, 1; Jean Cotter, 4, and Mrs. Anna Conner, all of the same address, and Mrs. Grace Thomas, 20, of 118 West Fifth avenue, Homestead, were hurt in an accident on the Lincoln highway near Beverly Crest.

Mrs. Catherine Harris, 45, of 1810 Evans avenue, suffered a fracture of the skull while she was riding with Michael Karpenski, of 513 Evans avenue. Police did not know the details of the accident, they said.

MISS HARD-BOILED

by JANE DIXON

Glances of Wealthy Buyer Embarrass Raquel

CHAPTER XVII.

Mrs. Bosart disappeared into the scented twilight of the corridor on which the sand-colored room opened. She moved stiffly, jerkily, as though she might be strung together and motivated by wires.

Raquel sank into a chair.

Was this the fruit of beauty?

Was this how beauty cheated those who had won it, wooed, worshiped at its shrine? Lulling one into fatuous faith? Blinding the eyes? That horrible husk of a woman!

"You are a genius, ma chere Raquel," Alphonse repeated, pacing the room, stopping to give her little clucks of encouragement. "You said exactly the right thing. In you Madame sees herself. It is as I thought she would do."

"She—she gives me the creeps," Raquel confessed.

"She represents the supreme effort of modern science against Time," said Alphonse gravely. "Vienna, Berlin, Paris, India, everywhere she has gone, fleeing before the specter of the years. The surgeon's knife, the fakir's philter, no remotest claim to the secret of rejuvenation has been neglected by her. She has undergone tortures, they say. One can see it in her face."

"Why?" Raquel, too, seemed to be seeing specters.

"She was a great beauty," said Alphonse. "She had had many admirers. She will not submit to give up either the beauty or the admirers. With her wealth—she is mistress of one of the largest fortunes extant—she believes she can command what she wills. She plays the queen of beauty and of love in a fool's paradise of her own creation."

Raquel shuddered. "She frightens me—"

The emaciated figure jerked in through the door.

"My husband, Mr. Bosart, Miss—Miss—"

"Miss Raquel," said Alphonse. "What a nice name. It suits you. Mine is Bertha. Frightful misnomer. I never use it. Elsworth—my husband calls me Bonnie, don't you, Elsworth? He says I'm always so blithe and gay."

The cackle was down in the woman's throat, moving the cords there. Exultant, warm around her laboring heart. She moved aside. A man was lounging behind her.

At first glance Raquel thought this must be a boy she was meeting. Pink, round face, round figure in ultra-fashionable attire, even a dab of a pinky mustache like a whiff of down above pouting red lips. Only the eyes, small, round, like blobs of intensely blue china beads, gave hint that in experience, at least, the man had left youth behind.

Elsworth Takes Sudden Interest in Clothes

If he'd only take those roving, gluttonous eyes off her, she'd go on smiling at Mrs. Bosart.

"Elsworth!" The woman's hands could not control their palsy. "You have not spoken to Monsieur Alphonse."

The pink man grinned sheepishly.

"Pardon, m'dear," he managed. "So like you—my word—sorry."

The woman caught his hand, swung it as a child would do, in a little eddy of delight.

"Bo you saw it too, Ellie!" she cooed. "I wondered if you would. It's really quite uncanny, isn't it? Isn't she fascinating in that flesh tint—"

"Ravishing!" The pink man put so much fervor into the word that Mrs. Bosart would have frowned did the tautness of the skin across her brow allow of such indulgence.

"You'd advise me to have it,

STORK CAUSES KIN MIXUP

Mrs. Helen Smoley and her eldest daughter, Mrs. Anna Kampe, lie in adjoining rooms in the Smoley homestead, 201 Frank street, Whittaker.

Both are smiling a great deal, these days. Occasionally, there have been anxious moments, but not often.

For Mrs. Smoley became, within a few hours Monday afternoon both a grandmother and a mother.

First, John Kampe, Jr., was announced—a bouncing baby boy around eight pounds. That was at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. That made Mrs. Kampe a mother and Mrs. Smoley a grandmother.

Then five hours later came a second announcement. This time, the recorder marked down Frances Dolores and Florence Dorothy Smoley—twin girls.

That gave Mrs. Smoley two new daughters, Mrs. Kampe two new sisters, making the Smoley count 14, with 10 living. Junior has two aunts—and everybody's well and happy.

John Kampe and his father-in-law, Andrew Smoley, both millmen from the Carnegie Steel plant down the hill in Duquesne also are happy about it all.

Mrs. Kampe is 24 and Junior is her second child. She is the eldest child of the Smoley family, and lives in a cottage down Frank street half a block from her mother's. But since most of her brothers and sisters were born in the house at 201, so was her boy.

Marriage Funds Lacking, Girl Takes Poison, Dies

Belief that her fiance no longer cared for her, deputy coroners say, prompted Marie Petros, 18, to take poison in the home of Jonas Adler, at 6370 Burchfield street, where she was employed as a domestic.

The girl, whose home was in Herminie, Pa., swallowed the poison Saturday night in the presence of Alfred Dattola, 20, her fiance, of West Railroad street, Verona, according to the coroner's report. She died a short time later in the Elizabeth Steel Magee Hospital.

Dattola, held for questioning, told police, they said, that Miss Petros became despondent when he told her he lacked funds for marriage.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question—A Broadway couple has adopted a baby as a safeguard against divorce. What do you think of the plan?

MISS GERTRUDE EBERSBERGER, saleswoman, Mt. Washington—No, I don't think they should adopt a child for that purpose. If there is any danger of a divorce, the child will be the one to suffer more than either of its adopted parents.

Miss Ebersberger

G. H. TRIPP, salesman, East End—It should not be necessary to do anything to prevent divorce because a couple rarely marries with the idea that there will be a divorce at all.

G. H. Tripp

MISS GERTRUDE FRANKLIN, saleswoman, downtown — It's a good plan, I think, because children are frequently the only reason for peace in the family. I think the couple trying this experiment will find it successful.

Miss Franklin

RICHARD WILHELM, sign painter, Mt. Oliver—I approve of that plan. Interest in the child will keep the parents from becoming too self-centered and and will give them a broader and more generous outlook on life.

R. Wilhelm

MISS EMILY COLEMONT, clerk, Mt. Washington—I don't think the plan a very good one. A child of their own might help in such a case, but some one else's child will hardly mean as much to them.

Miss Colemont

HARRY ROSENBERG, store manager, Squirrel Hill—It's a good plan and would probably work out better if they adopted more than one child. Then they would not have time to think of anything but the children—and so would have no fears of a divorce.

H. Rosenberg

SUES KIN TO GET HOME BACK

Mrs. Catherine Hess, 83, a widow of 7617 Penn avenue, has asked Common Pleas Court to enjoin her three daughters from further mortgaging the home property at that address. She also demands that they be required to deed the house back to her.

Mrs. Hess says that last Aug. 24 the daughters, Mrs. Annie C. Gilkey, Mrs. Margaret E. Sheaffer and Mrs. Lillian H. Anderson, induced her to execute a deed to them with the understanding they would provide for her during the remainder of her life.

Since, Mrs. Hess avers, she has had to keep up the interest on a $3,000 mortgage, also pay the taxes and insurance premiums, the daughters refusing to reimburse her.

She adds that she is supporting herself without their aid.

GUNBOATS WAIT RED ATTACK

The foreign vessels were considered adequate to shelter the evacuating foreigners, who are pouring into the threatened city from outlying districts without interruption. The gunboats include the American Luzon, the British Scarab and two Japanese ships.

Dispatches from the invaded districts indicated the Communists have practically overrun the districts in Northern Kiangsi province, with Nanchang almost surrounded.

SMITH, RASKOB VISIT GOVERNOR

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Avowedly for the sole purpose of enjoying each others company, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, John J. Raskob and Alfred E. Smith were assembled in the Hamptons today.

After a tour of the state parks along the south shore of Long Island, the Governor arrived last night to visit his law partner, Basil D. O'Connor, at Westhampton. Later Raskob and Smith left Canoe Place Inn, at Hampton Bays, where they were staying, for the O'Connor residence. Smith solemnly told a newspaper acquaintance:

Chicle Concessions Limited by Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—A presidential decree to be put in force immediately says that no further concessions will be granted by the government for chicle production except to co-operative organizations in which the workers share the profits.

Until now large companies, most of them American, have produced most of the chicle coming from Vera Cruz and Quintana Roo. The decree does not specify if these concessions are to be retired.

Appointments to Power, Tariff Commissions Before President

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The question of important recess appointments awaited President Hoover today upon his return from a restful week-end in the Virginia mountains.

On his desk, its contents as yet undivulged, lay the opinion of Attorney General Mitchell on whether the law setting up a new power commission permitted the President to appoint its members without Senate confirmation.

Besides a settlement of that point, Mr. Hoover hoped soon to be able to name the six members of the reorganized tariff commission. This task has given the chief executive considerable difficulty and he gave it extended thought while at the Rapidan camp this week-end.

Should the Mitchell opinion hold that recess appointments for the power commission are permissible, the President is expected to appoint Claude L. Draper, of Wyoming; Ralph B. Williamson, of Yakima, Wash., and Marcel Garsaud, of New Orleans, whose names were sent to the Senate in the closing days of the special session but were not acted upon. Two others are to be named later, and Mr. Hoover has indicated the chairman will be one of these.

Edgar B. Brossard, present chairman of the Tariff Commission, generally is expected to be placed on the reorganized group, together with Ired P. Dennis, another member of the existing commission. Four more have to be chosen for the bi-partisan group, among them a chairman. Selection of the latter is represented as the most difficult part of the President's task, as several men to whom the post had been offered are said to have declined.

DRYS PLANNING DEPORTATIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(Universal.)—Plans to deport alien violators of the dry laws—a policy decided upon at the recent conference of prohibition administrators here—are being made by Director Amos W. W. Woodcock.

Aliens convicted of large-scale violations would be sentenced as felons under the Jones law. Then they would be subject to deportation.

A survey in the larger cities has convinced the officials that in a vast majority of cases, the leaders of the big bootlegging rings are aliens. In deportation, the new administration under the Treasury Department will have a powerful weapon.

In deciding upon this policy, the dry chief is carrying out the primary object of the Jones law. When signing the measure, which carries a $10,000 fine, five years in prison, or both, President Coolidge emphasized that it was intended to reach the alien violator.

There is no intention, however, to apply this drastic course to petty violators.

Many folks summering near Long Island went to Southampton Saturday for the second annual horse show at the Southampton Riding and Hunt Club. And, of course, there were dinners and luncheons and all sort of entertainments.

And among the exhibitors was Katherine Harkness Edwards, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, who always spend the summers in the Hamptons. Katherine was a debutante of the past winter.

Among folks noted at the show, in addition to the Edwards family, were Mrs. Elisabeth M. Horne, and the Edward P. Mellons.

In the evening there was a dance at the Riding and Hunt Club, preceded by many dinners.

METEOR SHOW DUE IN WEEK

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—"Pluto's Playmates," the annual shower of perseid meteors, are due Monday night, August 11. They are dubbed "Pluto's Playmates", after the newly discovered planet Pluto, because the outer edge of their orbit is believed to be close to the path where the new planet swings.

A good show is promised—40 to 150 meteors an hour, for patient watchers who are lucky enough to get the right sky conditions. The public is invited to sit in this year and help the astronomers by getting hourly counts of the perseids. These reports should be sent to Dr. Charles P. Oliver, of the American Meteor Society and director of Flower observatory of the University of Pennsylvania.

Career for Edison To Shape—From 156 on

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Thomas A. Edison, much interested in inspiring American youth to better things, today was to shake hands with a lad bright in the point of years at least. The inventor was to meet Zaro Agha, the Turkish Methuselah who claims to be 156 years old, and show him through the Edison factory here.

At the Edison home it was denied that Agha was to be entertained at a lawn party and meet Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone. He will merely visit the factory, it was announced, and speak briefly with the inventor through interpreters.

It was believed another machine struck it. Filmer was taken to a Harrisburg hospital.

Pvt. Francis M. Palmer, 20, Scottdale, of the service company of the One Hundred and Tenth Infantry, was seized with cramps while taking an early morning swim in Laurel Lake. Corp. John Yelencksky and Pvt. Walter Hough, both of the same company, rescued him.

VELVET AND FELT HATS FORECAST FOR AUTUMN

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, AUG. 4.—We now are not only offered hats appropriate to the various seasons that they are intended to adorn, but we are being lured by the milliners to indulge in little in-between-seasons chapeaux that are guaranteed to perfectly complement either a tailleur or a dress. And so now, should we have occasion to refer to a "September hat," you will know that it is a hat that is especially designed to add charm and beauty to the cool brisk days of the month that marks the resumption of urban activities. At the present time of writing it would look as if velvet is to capture material honors in the millinery world next season, with, of course, plenty of felt dotting the sartorial landscape. That most flattering and benign aid to feminine charm and beauty, the brim, will remain with us, and the advanced autumn models show that the brim has been given various deft and novel treatments, all guaranteed to do the right thing by our faces.

TODAY YOU WILL FIND two sketches, each of which depicts an advanced model. The first will introduce you to the new "September" hat, and it is a model guaranteed to make its wearer regret that "September hath but thirty days." It is a Tallien creation of black felt and velvet, the former making the brim and the latter, the crown. The brim is caught up over the left eye beneath a smart little bow-knot made of white feathers, that is both piquant and becoming.

* * *

AGNES IS SHOWING an interesting collection of hats for late summer and early autumn wear. The model sketched is of light blue wool jersey with applique of dark blue felt. Although the felt gives a certain body to the hat, the general effect is soft, floppy and decidedly informal as the main portion of it is built of jersey.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Girls Should Not Idolize Imaginary Heroes

Has she met the blond Adonis? Does she know anything about his taste in pups or what he likes for breakfast? No, lady. She hasn't, and she doesn't!

But she's sure she's deeply, madly, irrevocably in love. She spends all her spare change on theater tickets so she can feast her eyes on him . . . and when he's on the radio, why she simply swoons!

Can you bear it? No? Well, Betty almost can't herself. It's gotten to the point where food is just so much poison to her . . . and as for sleep!!

And all this agony over a perfect stranger!

"My dear, dear Sally:

"I am writing this to you just to get it off my chest. I have to tell it to somebody and I can't tell it to my friends because they wouldn't understand. They'd just only laugh at me. And believe me, it's no laughing matter! I'm just broken-hearted over it.

"I am not a flapper, Sally, so don't think I'm just a silly little fool. I'm 25 and what one would call an intelligent person. But for the past few months I have been anything but intelligent, I guess.

INSANELY IN LOVE!

"Because I have been, and am, in love. Madly blindly, insanely in love. And guess with whom? Oh, Sally, it's Rudy Vallee!

"His voice puts me into throes of delight and I'm at the theater almost daily, watching his every move.

"I can't eat or sleep. I just sit and dream about him. And when he's on the radio, I just sit like a girl in a trance, listening, drinking in his voice till he's through.

"Please don't scold me, Sally. It's not really 'infatuation.' And honestly, the only thing that keeps me alive is the fact that he's unmarried.

"I've never been in love before, and this is awful!

"What shall I do! When I'm introduced to another man, Rudy's adorable blond, curly head comes before me and blots out the man I'm meeting, and my heart starts to jump again.

"Oh, why, why did he have to pick on little me? But I guess I'm not the only girl he has in love with him. Please, Sally dearest, tell me just what to do to ease that pain deep in my heart. I'm so blue.

"BETTY."

STOP KIDDING SELF

What'll you do, Betty?

Well, maybe an ice pack might help. But, first of all, little girl, stop kidding yourself.

Oh, yes. I know that you think that this feeling you have is a real, genuine, 100 per cent love. But love isn't what ails you, youngster. You're just suffering from a red hot case of infatuation. This Rudy Vallitis, that's going around, is a regular epidemic. Hundreds of other dreamy damsels have it, as well as you, and all for the same reason. Here's why—

The real boys you knew didn't suit you. Their ideas got your goat and your ideas probably weren't such a wow with them. You craved romance—but the pickings seemed slim. Then over the air came Rudy! And immediately, if not sooner, you decided that he was the Hero of your dreams. For, of course, it was a lot easier to adapt yourself to an imaginery hero than to make the grade with a regular male. So you hung on Rudy all the virtues you wanted and none of the faults you knew in other men. And you've built yourself a dream life that's as unsubstantial as the space that carries his croon. You call it love, but it's really laziness.

Snap out of it, kid. That's dangerous. Many a fine woman has sacrificed real happiness for a hunk of handsome hooey that never gave her two blinks. Pick out a regular guy that's on your wave length and live real.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

With Painting, Savarin Sent Letter to Lillian—a Letter of Love—His Last

I think Lillian must have sensed the troubled questioning concerning her which was running in my brain, called forth by her murmur of "Poor Robert!" At any rate she turned suddenly from her contemplation of the exquisite painting of Marion which the famous artist had sent her, and spoke with decision.

"I know what you're thinking," she said, "and I can assure you, there isn't the slightest ground for your uneasiness. I did love Robert very sincerely, but I think the spring of that emotion lay in that first romantic affection for him when I was a very young girl and he was so kind to me. And until Harry came back this last time, I did not love him, although I had been his wife for many years and for some of them had been his very good comrade."

"But—" she paused impressively, "make no mistake about what I am going to tell you, although I hope it will never be necessary to speak about it again—I'm not given to shouting my feelings from the housetops, you know—I love my husband, above everything else in the world except Marion. He is my man — my mate — and I would sacrifice anything in the world for him except something that would hurt Marion. But do you think I ought to give this up even if he does not like to have me keep it?

I wanted to shout a negative at her, but I steeled my heart.

"How could I possibly decide a question like that for you?" I asked. "But—haven't you overlooked something here?"

I stepped to the discarded wrappings of the picture and picked up an envelope which we had overlooked in our astonishment at the painting of Marion.

She held out her hand for it, but not before I had seen the words "For Lillian" in Robert Savarin's unmistakable script.

"May I?" she said, and I rose abruptly.

"I'll just go away for a little," I said, but her hand shot out and she caught my dress.

"Sit down!" she commanded. I probably shall want you to read this," she said, and I reached past her and took the painting of Marion into my hands.

"I want to set this up and look at it from the proper distance," I said, as I moved away, and for the next few minutes I busied myself with looking at the picture from different angles, becoming so absorbed that I did not hear Lillian when she called me.

"Please, Madge," she said chokingly. "I fancy you didn't hear me before."

"Oh! I'm so sorry," I said, "but this would make anybody forget anything. I never saw anything so exquisite in my life. He has put his whole heart into this."

"That is what he says," she replied falteringly, and I saw that her eyes were bright with tears. She put up her hand and dashed them away with a savage little gesture, and then held out Robert Savarin's letter to me. I shrank back instinctively.

"I musn't—surely you don't—" I began.

"But Robert himself has asked that you read it," she said. "He speaks of your 'divine understanding,' and I echo his words. And—I am afraid it does not matter much to Robert now whether his letters are shared or not."

"What do you mean?" I asked, startled, for there seemed something significant in her tone.

"Read the letter," she said soberly, "and you will see what I mean."

I picked up the letter and unfolded it with reluctance, for despite her permission I felt a disinclination to read what I felt must be the outpouring of a broken heart.

"My love," the letter began without any other heading, "for surely even your husband cannot object to my naming you this for the last time I shall ever write you. For it is in these words that I always carry you in my heart and they will be my last conscious thought of you. For they have told me—these doctor friends of mine—that it will not be very long now before I shall find out the answer to the Eternal Question of what lies behind the Dark River."

Even through the stilted phrasing of an earlier generation I caught the poignant anguish which the letter sounded. It was almost as if the spirit of the man had so breathed itself into his pen as to make the written words sentient, pulsing with pain.

"It is only since I have known that the veil would soon be lifted," the letter went on, "that I have been able to purge my soul of resentment against the fate which deprived me of you, and of bitter jealousy of your husband with whom I have been told, you are most happy. They say the approach of death makes one see clearly. I only can speak for myself. I have been realizing lately that although I have loved you so greatly, yet I never could have made you happy, and that it is better, far better, as it is."

The Tradition of the White Wedding Gown

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When sending a card or package to a little boy or girl three years of age, is it correct to address them as "Miss Mae Robbins" and "Master John Smith"?

2. A friend of mine is going to marry a widower with one child. Is it proper for her to wear a white dress and a veil? Wouldn't it be better if she wore a light colored dress with a hat? Also what color would you suggest? MISS T.

1. Yes.

2. If this is the first marriage of your friend, there is no reason why she should not wear the traditional white dress and wedding veil of a bride. I take it from your letter that you mean you think that she should adapt her costume to the fact that the bridegroom has been married before. This is not necessary. Let her have all the joy of wearing the traditional bridal costume, if she wishes. Of course, if she wishes to wear a dress of some becoming light shade, that would be correct, too.

Returning the Social Call

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Several weeks ago I met two ladies at a dinner. I invited them to call on me. Two weeks later they called and I wasn't home; so they left a note with their names on it stating that they had called. Is it too late to write? Is it proper to call on them? F.

Yes, it is proper for you now to return the call, and pay your respects by leaving cards for them. No, it is not too late—people aren't so punctilious about this kind of thing as they used to be. But make this call as soon as you can conveniently.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Tone Up' the System Before Sailing the Sea

Are you one of those unfortunate persons who suffer from seasickness? Do you miss out on the pleasure of any trip you may take because of the disagreeable symptoms from which you suffer?

Seasickness is rather common. Some persons experience the same sensations while riding on a train or car, in an elevator, or on a merry-go-round.

Nausea and vomiting are the most marked of the symptoms. Headache is common. Abnormal increase of appetite may be the first sign, though loss of appetite is more usual. Often there is pain in the back of the neck, sometimes soreness of the back and pains in the arms and legs. Flashes of heat and chilliness are sometimes complained of by sensitive persons. The sufferer falls into a state of despondency and even despair.

Many theories are held as to the cause of seasickness. Age seems to have some influence as very young children are seldom affected. It is odd that the lower animals differ in their reactions; dogs, horses, cows, sheep and chickens have been affected, but hogs, ducks and geese, as a rule, do not suffer.

Probably most cases of seasickness are aggravated by the fatigue of the traveler, by excitement, improper diet, and by constipation. It may be brought on by disturbance of the vision, due to constant motion of the surroundings. But the opinion is commonly held that seasickness is caused by irritation of the "semi-circular canals," parts of the ear.

The semicircular canals are hollow tubes associated with the hearing apparatus. They function in the same way as does a spirit level. No matter in what direction the head is turned or tilted, the brain receives the news by the movements of the fluid in these canals. On shipboard your head bobs and jerks about, and the semicircular canals go on the warpath. Then you become sick and dizzy.

To avoid trouble, it is advisable to take certain precautions in advance of sailing. You should be as rested as possible. Be sure the intestinal canal is cleared out and avoid constipation while on board.

If you are especially susceptible to seasickness, go to bed immediately. If you are able to stay up, spend the greater part of the time on deck, lying quietly in a chair, with the head steady against the chair back.

For the first day or two take light, easily digested food. Avoid excessive drinking of liquids.

There are a number of remedies of more or less value in preventing seasickness. Your doctor will advise you about this.

Answers to Health Queries

MRS. J. A. D. Q.—Would a blow on the forehead cause boils? Would too much eatdy be apt to cause these disturbances?

A.—No. It is more than likely that the excessive sweets are responsible for these blemishes. Correct the diet and keep the system clear.

P. G. Q.—What is the correct weight for a girl aged 20, 5 feet 2 inches high?

2—What causes granulated eyelids?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 119 pounds.

2—This condition is due to infection. Bathe with a mild solution of warm boracic acid several times a day and apply 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury ointment at night. However, have the eyes tested to see if glasses are needed.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

then?" Watching him narrowly.

"By all means, m'dear." The pink man's eyes began roving over Raquel again. "Have it. Yes. Have a lot of 'em."

The woman was appeased by his interest. She smirked up into his face, preening herself like a peacock before him.

"I will have this one, Alphonse," she said thoughtfully. "It is the original, is it not? And copies in green—pale green like the trees in springtime—a gold one with black fox—Mr. Bosart is very partial to gold—"

Raquel's glance flew to Alphonse.

"I'll bet he's partial to gold," her eyes told him. The corner of his mouth twitched. Good Alphonse. He had caught her message.

The parade of Fashion continued. More peignoirs. Lounging wraps. Crisp morning frocks. Luncheon ensembles.

Promptly at 1 o'clock luncheon was served. In a room across the twilight hall, Mrs. Bosart would lunch with Monsieur and Miss Raquel. Elsworth? Yes, Elsworth would join them. He had never seen such clothes. Really never cared about them. But these—the soul of art.

Crystal, lace, silver. Yellow roses scattering their petals on the cloth. Strange foods. Wines that sparkled. Raquel noticed that Mrs. Bosart scarcely touched the bewildering array. She nibbled at a curl of toast, paper-thin, beside her plate. Sipped at clear, sparkling water poured into her glass from a carefully guarded bottle.

"I'm dieting," she confided. "Isn't it absurd? Elsworth scolds me. But one never knows. We must preserve our figures."

That horrid cackle again. The cords of her throat working. A wave of red mounted up from under Elsworth's lilac collar. No matter how or where his eyes roved, they came back to feast on Raquel's face.

"Bonnie, m'dear," the pink man leaned forward, toying with his glass. "I have an idea. On my word. Never been used before."

The withered woman was all attention.

"You know my wife is frightfully original." The pink man addressed Raquel. "Most original woman in society. Really. Noted. She's giving a dance. Her granddau—that is, a young relative of hers is a debutante this year. Tomorrow night. Isn't it, Bonnie? Sybil's dance?"

"I believe it is, Elsworth. This is—why, yes, tomorrow."

"I was thinking it might be a great lark, Bonnie, if you should persuade Miss Raquel here to be your guest."

"I don't understand—" Agate eyes bulging. Withered lips an inverted seam.

"You see, m'dear." Elsworth ignored the danger signals, "you two are so frightfully much alike, no one would know the one from the other."

"I'm sure, Ellie—" Sun breaking through the storm.

"It would be a great lark, Bonnie. Miss Raquel looks so frightfully Spanish—you are Spanish, Miss Raquel? I thought so—like a Spanish princess. Like you, m'dear. We could sort of confer a title on her, just among us four. They'd love it, your guests. A title. And it would prove what I have always said—that you are the perfect Spanish type, m'dear—the royal type."

Mrs. Bosart blew Elsworth a kiss, beamed at him across the table.

"Isn't he the adoring husband?" she crooned. "If you think we could do it—I declare, I never heard of anything so novel. How did you ever think it up, darling?"

"Oh, it just came to me, looking at the two of you. If Miss Raquel will consent—"

"I'm sure she will." To Raquel Alphonse had given a command.

"Indeed, yes," she added. "I am honored."

The afternoon was divided between orders for the gowns Raquel wore—there was a prodigious, an unwearable number of orders, she was sure—and plans for the lark the Bosarts were to enjoy at the expense of a gullible society.

For Raquel it would have been a lark, too, were it not for Elsworth's roving eyes.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, August 5

A lively day, with new undertakings and singular projects engaging the attention, is presaged from the ruling planetary configurations. Negotiations with rings, mergers or secret bodies may thrive, with private agreements or sub rosa methods used to attain the ultimate ends. Despite small obstacles, all business matters should flourish, but the personal affiliations and employment may give much concern. There may be a swift development of something least expected, not unfortunately.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and important year, with new undertakings well established. It may be by private agreement or subtle methods, or in connection with close corporations, combines or secret orders. Sudden and swift developments are shown, with anxiety in employment and unsatisfactory personal associations.

A child born on this day should be brilliant, versatile, given to intrigue and stratagem, through which it will attain high position. But the personal side of its life may not be so successful or satisfying.

Around the Range

Careful washing with soda water will remove the soot that accumulates on the painted walls above and around the range, but you must not let it get too dirty before washing or it will streak and show.

Household Hints

Rub a sample of linen hard between the hands. If a fuzzy nap appears the article has cotton in it as well as linen threads.

If silencers like those put in the legs of chairs are hammered into the wooden ribs of the trunk at each end, the life of the trunk will be lengthened tremendously. All dragging will be on the silencers instead of the wood at the railway station, and the trunk can be dragged across the hotel floor without marring the floor or disarranging the rug in any way.

Yes, it is possible, too. Squeeze the juice of half a lemon into a tall glass, then pour in the dose of castor oil. Add a pinch of ground ginger, then the juice from the rest of the lemon. Now add one-fourth teaspoon bicarbonate of soda and stir briskly. It will foam up like soda water, breaking the oil into such tiny granules that it cannot be noticed. Drink while it is effervescing.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

It is interesting, sometimes, to notice the great influence of women on their men folks, especially when it comes to keeping them in the path of honesty. Take for instance that chain of men's hat stores in New York, from which eight managers were discharged recently. All because one new manager had a wife who was above petty grafting and kept her husband from it.

I suppose it started with one petty grafter becoming the manager of one of these stores. Soon he wanted company and took in with him the manager of another store. Those two gradually took in others, after studying them for the necessary qualifications. Eventually there were eight and they were looking for a ninth.

The ninth man took charge of a new store and the eight P. G.'s entertained him. The opinion was that he would do. He was told the proposition, which was this: When they took inventory, the manager held out hats, coats, sticks, handkerchiefs and a little of everything else the store carried, and they were sold by the combine for their own personal benefit.

The ninth man pretended to be interested, but uncertain. He wanted, he said, to talk with his wife.

He did.

"Nothing doing," said the wife. "You aren't going to get involved with any crooked business while you are my husband. When you begin that sort of thing, I'm through."

"That's what I wanted you to say," said the husband. "I don't want to do it."

"What?"

"You've got to tell the president of the hat company."

"Oh, no, I could never squeal on them even if they are wrong," said the husband.

"Of course," said the smart wife, "I understand how you feel. You need not do it. I'll tell him."

And she did. She had a hard time seeing the president, too, as you can imagine. She said her husband didn't want to be a tattletale, but she had no qualms in such a case.

I'm hoping the company sent her a check for what she saved them. I don't know whether or not they did, but they did discharge eight store managers.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Speaking of makeup, we would like to pass on the information that a smear of cold cream on the lips before the lip stick is used makes a neater job. Surplus coloring should be removed with a bit of cotton. Fussy ladies, who perform fastidious beauty rites, use an orangewood stick and a twist of cotton to apply rouge to lip edges.

The daily quota of drinking water is six glasses. This amount can be cut down somewhat if much tea or coffee is taken. A drink of cold water before breakfast stimulates the action of the intestinal tract and washes the stomach clean. The kidneys are the body's drains, and a certain amount of fluid is necessary for their health and well-being.

There is with us now a cult of tomato juice drinkers. Acting as a cleanser of the intestinal tract, it clears the complexion and produces a healthy color. Tomatoes contain protein, carbohydrates and mineral ingredients that include phosphorus and lime, both of which are essential to the health of the body. Buttermilk is a beautifying drink; it, too, has a good effect upon the intestinal organs.

Blackheads, Pores —how Awful!

Now don't worry over large pores, unsightly blackheads, wrinkles and perspiration that makes the skin shiny and oily. Out in Hollywood they have the recipe for an amazing lotion that quickly corrects these flaws and makes the skin beautiful. It succeeds even when the finest special soaps and creams have failed.

The very minute you pat it on the face and neck it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt that solidifies in the pores and causes blackheads. Gently it tightens up the skin, erases wrinkles and closes the pores.

Soon, very soon, this lotion makes the skin smooth, good-looking and thereafter keeps it youthfully fresh. You'll notice, too, that oiliness has disappeared and perspiration doesn't bother you any more.

Get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons. This gives you a full quarter-pint of the finest preparation you have ever used. Try it.

GIANT STAR IS RARE ONE-MAN POWER

WHEN ONE-MAN POWER on a ball club is being discussed, how about Bill Terry, of the Giants? It is unlikely that New York will win the National League pennant of 1930, but it certainly won't be Terry's fault, and the failure of the team in that direction won't prevent the slugging first-sacker from standing out among the greatest individual stars of this or any other season. If the most-valuable-player prize were still being awarded, and the voters did not adhere to the custom of confining the selection to the team winning the flag, Terry probably would walk away with the honor.

Bill Terry

Bill surely qualifies for that lofty ranking in every respect. John McGraw himself admits that on both the offense and the defense he is a power such as the Giants seldom have had. That Terry is the main cog of the present Gotham machine is demonstrated almost daily. He does not stop at being easily the greatest of all modern first-basemen, but in all-around value he appears to top every other player in the Heydler circuit, regardless of position.

WITH HIS DAZZLING first-base play and murderous hitting, Bill probably wins more ball games by individual effort than any other player in the senior loop. He is a great run-getter himself and ranks abreast of the foremost at knocking in others. Nobody hits a ball harder against all k..ds of pitching. Last week he made four home runs in four days an ' won the distinction of being the only left-hand batter ever to clout two homers to left field at the Polo Grounds in one day.

Against Lee Meadows here on June 13, 1925, Terry drove a ball over the right-center field fence beyond the end of the new grandstand extension, the longest hit ever made in Pittsburgh. For three straight years he has scored 100 or more runs per season, and will easily pass tha. mark again for 1930. Last year he made 226 hits and batted .372. This year he is in a fair way to reach even a higher total in hits and to beat his 1929 average by possibly 20 points. He has scored 98 runs and made 165 hits for an average of .398 up to today. A ball player of amazing power is Terry, presty close to being in a class of his own in the National League.

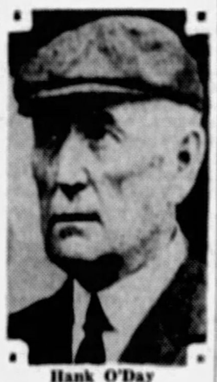
THOUGH THERE IS little chance that the major league magnates will consent to make any such radical change in pitching conditions, Hank O'Day, former hurler and umpire, says he intends to bring before them next winter his suggestion, published two months ago, that the flinging distance be reduced to 55 feet.



Hank O'Day

Two other veterans share O'Day's belief that a shorter pitching distance would prove a remedy for abnormal hitting. They are John McGraw and John Morrill. They have different ideas cn the matter of reduction, however. McGraw thinks that 58 feet would be the right hurling distance, and Morrill suggests 57 feet.

MERRILL, who played third base and later first base for the original Boston Nationals, and who managed that club from 1882 to 1887, inclusive, thinks that an additional change ought to be made whereby the pitcher would deliver the ball from the flat surface of the diamond instead of from the top of a mound as at present. The original pitcher's box was level with the bases, but now the rules permit him to throw from an elevation not exceeding 15 inches above the base lines. Morrill would return to the old conditions, though that would appear to handicap the pitcher further rather than help him. However, it's pretty safe guessing that the club owners will decline to adopt any of the proposals or to tamper with the pitching distance, permitting the latter to stand at the present figures of 60 feet, 6 inches.

THE PIRATES FINALLY reached the .500 mark again as a result of yesterday's victory in Chicago. It took them almost two months to fight their way back to that point, this being the first time they have held a .500 ranking since June 7, when they had won 22 games and lost the same number.

The Braves beat them the following day and they never got on even terms with the field again until yesterday. Their lowest point "South" was reached on June 23, when a defeat at the hands of Brooklyn left them in sixth place with a record of 25 victories and 32 defeats for a percentage of .439.

THE .500 RECORD attained by the Bucs when Erwin Brame pitched them to victory in their one hundredth game of the season yesterday is a most unusual one. It's fifty-fifty in all four possible ways—in actual figures, and in percentage at home, abroad, and for the campaign as a whole.

Ervin Brame

The actual figures are presented in 50 victories and 50 defeats. And not only does the local club hold that uncommon record for the season, but it has made it by breaking exactly even both on the home grounds and on the road. At Forbes Field, the Rovers have won 22 and lost 22 games, and away from home they have won 28 and lost 28. All of which doesn't happen very often in an even hundred games.

IT WAS ONE of the unfortunate breaks of baseball that caused the Pirates to lose ground after rising to a tie for fourth place last Thursday, despite the fact that they continued to play such a good grade of ball that they took two out of three games from the champion Cubs in an invasion of Chicago. While the Ensmen were turning in that neat bit of work, their fourth-place rivals, the Cardinals, were taking four games in a row from the Reds, so that even though they played .667 ball the Corsairs fell behind to the extent of a game and a half in their race with St. Louis for a first division berth. There is no cause for discouragement, however. The Freebooters have won seven of their last eight games, and 18 of their last 28 engagements, and if they continue to travel at anything like that pace there will be no danger of their finishing outside the select four.

THE PITCHING STUFF that makes Charley Root one of the star moundsmen of the big show, and that enables him to win the majority of his games against other National League clubs, appears to be pie for the Buccaneers. Even when they are showing little punch against lesser slab lights, they seem to find it an easy matter to beat the Cub ace.

Yesterday's game was only one more instance on a long list, covering three consecutive seasons. It was the second time they downed Root this year in three meetings. And they also took two out of three from him last season, and made the same record in 1928. As they won their final game against him in 1927, it follows that of their last 10 tilts with Root they have won no fewer than seven. And that's not counting several games in which they batted him off the hill, but in which the Bruins were victorious later or Chicago defeats were charged against other pitchers.

BROOKLYN'S PENNANT CHANCES would be looking a whole lot better if Dazzy Vance's 1-to-0 triumph over Carl Hubbell and the Giants yesterday could be an indication of a permanent return to winning form on the part of the Dazzler.

But it remains to be seen if Vance is going to keep it up. That

Ray Alvis, of Texas, Indianapolis, Chicago and lots of other places, is in town with the former "punk" who has become the star of his extraordinarily large stable of boxers. The erstwhile "punk" is none other than Tony Herrera, the Mexican lightweight flash, who meets Jackie Pilkington, of New York, in the 10-round main bout of the weekly card in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight.

When Alvis first brought Herrera around here, to the Jolly Bowl, at New Castle, more than a year ago, Tony was a fragile-looking kid, with a pair of good hop-scotching legs and a terrific right hand finishing punch. 'Twas in these parts that Herrera found himself against the Ray Newtons and others and built the foundation for his successful career. Alvis playfully introduced him to all and sundry with the remark:

"This is the 'punk' of my stable—how do you like him?"

FAVORITE WITH FANS

Well, the fans of Pittsburgh and environs have come to respect and like Tony a great deal. He's probably the be. one-man drawing card at the command of the promoters in this section, although he makes his fighting headquarters in Chicago. He's good for a fat house any time he starts around here.

In his most recent appearance at the Bowl, a few months ago, Tony was in against Eddie Elkins, a seasoned campaigner from New York. The show was postponed three times because of unfavorable weather, and, when they finally did get in there, Elkins had a boil on his right arm. Tony punched him fore and aft and spilled him for a count of nine in the first round for what Elkins said was the first knockdown of his career. In the second round, Elkins couldn't use his bad arm and the boxing commission refused to let him go out for the third round because he was taking a beating. Announcement was made that the patrons' money would be refunded and the boxers received only expenses for hanging around town for almost a full week. That ruling rankled, and, were it not for the fact that boxing conditions are bad everywhere it is doubtful if Herrera would be coming back now, although the club has promised to make up his loss with a bonus every time he draws more than $5,000 for a show in the Bowl.

FACES SEASONED FOE

Pilkington, like Herrera, arrived on the scene yesterday. Both said they were in fine shape for the battle. It will be their third meeting. Herrera broke one of his brittle hands in their first shindy, in Chicago, and lost the decision, but evened the score in a return bout. Pilkington has boxed Sid Terris, Johnny Dundee, Billy Wallace, Phil Goldstein, Georgie Day, Petey Mack, Emory Cabana and a flock of other good ones, and, in addition to his work in this country, has campaigned in Australian rings.

Chet Smallwood, southpaw mitt slinger, of Akron, O., will take the place of Frankie Chatterton,

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—They are putting on "The Shooting of John McGraw" in Flatbush this week. McGraw is shooting the works at the Robins, and he can kiss his pennant hopes bon soir if he does not lay them flat. Personally, I have predicted the Giants were out of the race, and when your Uncle Nick makes a prediction you can always paste it in your hat and then go bareheaded the rest of the season. You would think McGraw and Robbie were hatched out of the same nest of Baltimore Orioles, to see them going at each other this week. They act more like ordinary eggs.

Back from their thrilling conquests in Chicago, the Pirates didn't tarry long at home today before they headed for Ellwood City, where they are engaged in exhibition play. Another open date tomorrow will find the Pirates in Charleroi for a similar purpose, after which they will return to the home heath to take on the pace-setting Robins. The league leaders will sport themselves at Forbes Field Wednesday and Thursday.

Brave doings, indeed, were those encompassed by the Freebooters yesterday before they left Chicago. In the presence of more than 30,000 Cub supporters, the Ensmen came from behind like champions to defeat the Cubs, 12 to 8.

MRS. JOHNSON RITES TODAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Every player on the Washington baseball team will be an honorary pallbearer at the funeral today of Mrs. Walter Johnson, wife of the former pitcher, now manager of the team. It is planned to have each player carry a flower from the house to the flower limousines and form an aisle through which the casket will be carried to the hearse.

The Rev. Joseph E. Williams, pastor of the Bethesda, Md., Episcopal Church, of which the Johnsons are members, will conduct the services. Burial will be in Rockville, Md., cemetery.

Flowers and expressions of sympathy have avalanched upon the Johnson home in nearby Bethesda. They came from President and Mrs. Hoover, Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner; E. S. Barnard, president of the American League; Clark Griffith, president of the local club, and other baseball players and executives.

Today's game in New York between the Senators and the Yankees has been postponed in respect for Mrs. Johnson. She died early Friday following an illness of three days from heat exhaustion and an old attack of pleurisy. She was the mother of five small children.

PUBLIC LINKS STARS PREP

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Old Man Par had the better of the golfers shooting practice rounds yesterday for the national public links tournament, which starts here tomorrow.

The best 18-hole score of the day was turned in by a local entry, Curtis Bryan, who went one over regulation figures with a 73.

Carl Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, champion for three years, found the going hard on the greens, and his best 18-hole score was a 79. Army worms have gotten into the greens and have mowed the grass in uneven spots.

A threat for Kauffmann's title this year is A. G. Sato, San Francisco Japanese entry, who blistered the course in a practice round on temporary greens two days ago with a 68. He fell short yesterday, however, when he shot in the early 80s on two rounds.

Sixty-six players from various parts of the United States and six local men played practice rounds. There will be 114 on hand for the team matches tomorrow.

Among those who arrived and played practice rounds were O. B. Van Krevelen, St. Paul, and Larry Opalka and Edward Young, of Detroit.

The first two days' play will be by the various teams represented for the Warren G. Harding Cup, won last year by the New York City team. The next three days will be match play for the James D. Standish Jr. Cup.

ROBINS BOOST LEAD WITH WIN OVER GIANTS

YANKEES GAIN, SCORE VICTORY OVER A'S

Associated Press.

The Brooklyn Robins and New York Giants have done each other several good turns this season by beating their rivals from Chicago and St. Louis at timely moments. But when they go against each other, whatever friendly feeling they may have is forgotten, particularly when the Giants are trying to reach Brooklyn's place at the top of the National League.

There was great rejoicing in Flatbush yesterday when the Robins came out ahead of their rivals from the other side of the East River by a 1 to 0 score in one of the season's warmest pitching duels. For eight and a half innings, the teams battled without a score, with Carl Hubbell holding a slight edge over Dazzy Vance, who had not won a game or even competed one since July 14.

HERMAN STARTS RALLY

Babe Herman opened the Robin half of the ninth with a hit that he stretched into a double by brilliant base running. Moore sacrificed him to third and the Giant board of strategy ordered the move of walking Wright and Bissonette to fill the bases. The plan failed and Brooklyn won the game when Hubbell continued to pitch balls and walked Flowers also to force in the game's only run.

Despite the report that the Robins would rather beat the Giants than win the pennant, they can get a great deal of satisfaction from today's standing for the victory put them three games ahead of Chicago. The Cub machine went to pieces after sailing along ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates for seven innings, and Pittsburgh scored eight runs in the eighth for a 12-to-8 triumph. Al Bool led the victors by contributing his fourth home run of the three-game series to the rally while Hack Wilson hit his thirty-fifth of the year for the Cubs.

CARDS WIN PAIR

The St. Louis Cardinals improved their fourth-place position by winning two games from Cincinnati, clamming out a total of 27 hits to win by scores of 11 to 6 and 6 to 3. Puccinelli provided the first game feature by clouting a homer as a pinch hitter the second time he has performed the feat. The Phillies, after losing 17 twin bills this season and dividing a few more, won their first double header of the season, beating the Boston Braves, 11 to 5, and 4 to 1. Phil Collins and Claude Willoughby pitched the two games.

The theme of rivalry between neighbors was carried out in the American League by the New York Yankees and the Philadelphia Athletics, with the Yanks staging a six-run uprising in the eighth inning to win by a 9 to 3 count. Before this assault on Rube Walberg, the game had been close with Babe Ruth's fortieth homer of the year as the one big clout.

NATS DEFEATED

The first-division results in the junior circuit were all in favor of the Yankees, for the Boston Red Sox finally broke their losing streak in their second game against Washington with a 7 to 1 triumph after the Senators had carried it to 11 games by winning the first, 11 to 2. The winning pitchers, Al Crowder, of Washington, and Jack Russell, of Boston, each hurled five-hit games.

Waite Hoyt also pitched a good game, stopping all of the Chicago White Sox but Carl Reynolds to give Detroit a 4 to 3 victory. Reynolds drove in all the Chicago runs with a pair of homers. The The St. Louis Browns continued their recent streak of slugging to place themselves only a game and one-half behind Chicago. They pounded four Cleveland pitchers for 18 hits to defeat the Indians, 14 to 6.

GENERALS MAKE FINE SHOWING

Fairmont and Clarksburg each won five of seven games during the seven-day period in the Middle Atlantic League which ended Saturday, to show the way in as close a race as the league has ever experienced.

Cumberland, which won four and dropped three, counted the most runs, 62, and hit the most home runs, 10. Scottdale rapped out the most hits, 90. Clarksburg was the most effective team afield, holding the opposition to 28 scores, one less than Fairmont's total, and tying with Jeannette for the low error total of eight.

Wheeling, slumping badly after getting away to a brilliant start in the second part of the split season, committed the most errors, 16, one of the explanations as to why the Stogies won but one game in seven.

Yesterday the league-leading Scottdale club hammered out four runs during a ninth inning rally to defeat Johnstown at Johnstown, 14 to 13.

At Cumberland, the Colts defeated Jeannette in the first game of a series, 6 to 4. Jackson and Daviu hit home runs.

Ruth and Doeg Big Babes of Sport

BABE RUTH

DOEG'S SMASH

Ike and Mike—they look alike, as the cartoon has it. Notice the facial resemblance between Johnny Doeg, young California tennis star, and Babe Ruth, above. Like Ruth, Doeg is a six-footer and hefty. Like the Babe, also, he is a left-hander. And on the tennis courts he smashes 'em in much the same manner as the Babe hits the horsehide pellet in baseball.

PIRATES HURT CUB CHANCES

ning may have a far-reaching effect on the pennant race. The Cubs fell three games behind Uncle Robbie's athletes and on the whole they did not resemble the championship caliber which is theirs by right of victory last year.

Moreover, the Buccos, on the merit of their whirlwind triumph, got back at the .500 mark for the first time in moons. The Buccaneers have won 50 of their 100 games.

Once again the stalwart form of Farmer Al Bool stood out in the triumphant proceedings of the Pirates. The big catcher apparently broke the esprit de corps of the Bears in the eighth when he walloped a remarkable homer over the faraway left field fence. Al's Ruthian wallops bounded among the trees and flowers of a neighborhood back yard and Charlie Root, who had been the master of the Buccos up to that moment, faded like a morning glory in the hot sun.

COMMY, SUHR STAR

Adam Comorosky and Gus Suhr must share the honors with Farmer Al, although these two clouters will not receive watches. Albert being the recipient of three timepieces as a result of his short sojourn here.

Bool's homer didn't quite tie up the game. In the same inning the bases were loaded with Pirates and one run was needed for a tie when the Polish Flyer singled to score two runs. Suhr came along a few minutes later with the bases packed and Southpaw Teachout on the mound. Gus whacked a triple to right center, and the Pirates had the game on the ice, although the Bears fought stubbornly and actually threatened the Pittsburgh lead in the late rounds.

One was out. Bartell was on base, and the Buccos were three runs in arrears when Bool rammed his homer over the left fence. Brame followed with a single. Brickell fanned, but P. Waner singled, and when Stephenson fumbled the ball Brame went to third and Brother Paul to second. Manager McCarthy ordered a pass for Grantham, and Comorosky resented this move by hitting Root's first pitch to center, scoring two of his mates and putting the Buccos in front. Grantham pulled up at third.

GUS HITS TRIPLE

Fred Blake came in to pitch to Traynor, and Pie walked. Bartell also waited for a pass, which forced in Grantham. Teachout rushed to the scene, and Suhr clipped his first pitch for a three-sacker.

Ervin Brame worked the whole game for the Pirates. Ervin was good in spots, but he was not himself. Hack Wilson gave his Chicago boosters a big treat when he whacked out his thirty-fifth homer of the season.

Fred Brickell gave the Pirates the right sort of a start as he opened the game with an infield hit. Brick hit a high hopper to English who made a neat stop and threw but the Wichita speed boy was across the bag. Root however, took the next three hitters in a row without letting Brickell advance.

A smart play by Capt. Traynor in the second round put the Buccos in a position to jump into the lead, but the Pittsburghers failed to grasp the opportunity. Pie led off with a single. English made a leaping catch of a liner from Bartell's bat. This bad break for the Buccos was somewhat softened when Stephenson dropped Suhr's fly in a collision with Farrell. Traynor reached second.

Pie outguessed everybody, including Suhr, when he swiped third. Root made Bool hit into a double play in the crisis.

WILSON STARTS RALLY

Hack Wilson started the big second for the Cubs when he doubled down the right field line. Riggs Stephenson uncorked a double to right center to score Hack and Lefty Grimm unbuckled a hot single to center that sent Stevie over.

Bartell seemed too anxious to make a double play on Taylor's grounder and he failed to stop the ball. The misplay let Grimm go to third. Taylor reaching base. Comorosky went up the left field bank for a spectacular catch of Farrell's drive, Grimm scoring after the catch. Root fanned, but Blair pasted a triple to center that scored the catcher with the fourth run of the inning.

Root showed a lot of class in the third when the Pirates scored only one tally, after having the bases loaded with nobody out. Errors by Farrell and Blair put Brame and Brickell on the bases and Paul Waner filled them up with a single to center. Grantham flied to Cuyler, Brame scoring and Brickell racing to third on the sacrifice. On Cuyler's throw to third P. Waner advanced a base. Comorosky sent a little fly to Cuyler, who held the runners, and then Root fanned Traynor.

The Pirates picked up a lucky run in the fourth. Bartell singled in the infield but was still on first with two out when Brame put up a fly to short left. Farrell and Stephenson staged the well-known Alphonso-Gaston act as the ball fell for a hit, Bartell scoring.

PIE DOUBLES TAYLOR

Zach Taylor started the home half with a single, but Traynor snatched Farrell's hot liner and then shot the ball to Suhr for a snappy double play.

Paul Waner pried off the fifth with a pretty double to left. A fast play by Blair stopped Grantham, Brother Paul taking third. Comorosky then doubled to left. His liner bounded high over Stevie's head. Commy was trying for three when Farrell relayed low and the Pirate scurried over behind P. Waner with the tieing run.

One was out in the fifth before the stage was set for Wilson's homer. Cuyler singled just before Hack weighed in with his drive to the bleachers.

Zach Taylor and Eddie Farrell merged a double and a single to give the Cubs another run at the outset of the sixth. The Cubs made their last run in the ninth.

Long's Sport Comment

wa only his fifth victory in his last 14 games, and only once in that stretch has he been able to win twice in succession. He is only a single game above an even break for the season—11 won and 10 lost—and in all probability it will require better work than that on the part of their highest-salaried pitcher to pull the Robins through.

THAT CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS are not always the strongest attractions in the fight game is likely to be demonstrated again at the Polo Grounds in New York next Thursday night, when Kid Chocolate and Jack (Kid) Berg meet for 10 rounds. There will be no title at stake—in fact, it will be an inter-class bout, with Chocolate, who is merely a featherweight, tipping the beam at not much more than 126 pounds, and Berg required to scale 134 1-2—but in spite of that there is every promise that the match will draw a larger crowd than did the one between Al Singer and Sammy Mandell on July 17. The fact that there will be no radio broadcast from the ringside is one thing that is expected to swell the attendance, but the main reason for the anticipated huge gate is the attractiveness of the battle itself. On paper it promises to pack more fast action and sultry mixing into 10 rounds than any other bout between boxers of the same size that has been staged in several years.

MAROONS OFF TONIGHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—The University of Chicago baseball squad, 13 strong, will leave Chicago tonight for Japan to play a series of 15 games with Nipponese college teams.

LOCALS ANNEX INTER-CITY NET DUEL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

Jack McLain, veteran Steel City racquet star, returned to competitive tennis yesterday to lead an embattled band of Pittsburghers to 5-1 triumph over Tack Hammer's accomplished Greensburg crew before a sizable gallery ranged 'round the Country Club of Pittsburgh courts. The contest was the first inter-city match for the local squad this summer and was productive of considerable fast and spirited combat, particularly in the number one doubles, in which Capt. McLain took the place of his husky son "Whitey" to pair with Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, to pull out brilliant 7-5, 5-7, 7-5 victory over the Hammer brethren, champions of Central Pennsylvania.

LOCALS NEAR SWEEP

The home array annexed three of the four singles frays and both of the dual events. O'Loughlin, flashing the spectacular form that has characterized his match play the past month or more, breezed through the elder Hammer, 6-1, 6-3. Tack was clouting 'em nicely, both forehand and backhand, but the Winged Head luminary's sweeping drives, some deep and others sharply angled, combined with decisive barrier work to account right handily for the perennial Westmoreland County titleholder.

Whitey McLain, despite recent dearth of practice, struck excellent stride to down Don Snyder, rangy Dartmouth graduate, who the previous day had sprung startling upset by spilling Johnny Hecker, Geneva satellite, in an inter-club joust at College Hill. McLain was putting Snyder's speedy and heavily topped service into play and the Greensburger, running afoul of an erratic streak off the ground, was guilty of enough errors to result in several breaks of delivery. The verdict read 6-3, 6-2.

Dillinger Hixson, cagy invader, who has developed quite a sturdy driving game the past year or so, whirled into a 3-0 lead on Sullivan, Pittsburgh third man, to inaugurate their melee. Sullivan then, after numerous misplays at the net, retired to the baseline and settled into a defensive driving system that proved more effective as Hixson lapsed into wobbliness, especially in handling lobs in forecourt. Sullivan's delivery prevailed in the tenth game for the set, 6-4, and in the second stanza Hixson, apparently fatigued from protracted exertion under a torrid sun, contributed a flock of outs and nets, especially off backhand, to wind up the going at 6-2.

Theodore Hammer, clever brother of Tack, registered the lone Greensburg decision, this by dint of out-steadying Jack Lauler, of the locals, 7-5, 6-4, in a lengthy duel in which Lauler amassed 5-2 margin in the initial set.

DOUBLES PLAY CLOSE

Jack McLain and O'Loughlin were forced to fight every inch of the way to their doubles win. Down in the first set, they rallied gallantly to pull it out at 7-5. They tussled to 5-all in the second, only to go under on a service break, but in the third, after slipping to a 1-2 disadvantage, they braced to knot the count and finally to win out as McLain sustained service in the concluding game.

Lauler was the dominant figure of the second two-man engagement. His splendid forehand was working to perfection on returns of service and his exhibition in other departments left naught to be desired. The summary:

Singles—O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, defeated Hammer, Greensburg, 6-1, 6-3. J. McLain, Pittsburgh, defeated Snyder, Greensburg, 6-3, 6-3; Sullivan, Pittsburgh, defeated Hixson, Greensburg, 6-4, 6-2; T. Hammer, Greensburg, defeated Lauler, Pittsburgh, 7-5, 6-4.

Doubles—McLain and O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh, defeated Hammer and Hammer, Greensburg, 7-5, 5-7, 7-5; Lauler and Sullivan, Pittsburgh, defeated Snyder and Hixson, Greensburg, 6-3, 6-1.

Ken Meyers Reveals February Elopement

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Ken Meyers, former champion oarsman and Reading Railroad fireman, was secretly married last February following an elopement to Belair, Md., with Miss Anida L. Jackson, of Wayne, the popular former national sculling champion informed friends here during a week-end.

Meyers' surprising announcement was made at a dinner celebrating the victories of the Bachelors' Barge Club, of this city, in five events of the Boston rowing regatta last Friday and Saturday.

Crabbe, Zorilla Denied Japan Tour

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, said today that Lester Crabbe, of Honolulu, and Albert Zorilla, of Argentina, both Olympic swimmers, had been refused permission to compete in Japan this summer because they previously had canceled an engagement to appear in Europe.

"After disappointing 10 nation in Europe, we could not very well give Crabbe and Zorille permission to swim in Japan," Ferris said.

TIGERS SIGN STAR

PETERSBURG, Va., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Jerome Lowery, third baseman of the Tubize team of the Tri-City League, yesterday was signed for the Detroit Tigers by Frank Moffet, Tiger scout. Lowery is 18 years old and lives in Hopewell, Va.

Comes now Gertrude (Trudy) Ederle, first woman to swim the rough English Channel, with denials of the statements attributed to her, that the feat wasn't worth while, that it robbed her of her hearing and that she has nothing left of the money that she earned in vaudeville and other exhibitions and has to work for a skimpy living as a swimming instructress . . . . It appears that the young Amazon of the swimming world is quite satisfied with her lot, and she does not attribute her hearing defect to her breasting of the Channel

What becomes of the lady Channel swimmers and the other long-distance swimmers? . . . . Well, Mrs. Mille Gade Corson, who duplicated Miss Ederle's accomplishment within three weeks and stole away a lot of the thunder and applause from Trudy by being the first mother to swim the Channel, is an instructress in a New Jersey pool and her husband is an assistant superintendent on a naval training ship anchored in New York . . . . Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmell, who didn't swim the Channel, but has won a lot of other distance swimming laurels, is making a comfortable living touring and giving exhibitions . . . . Despite the fact that she isn't in the so-called Channel swim, she probably has more to show financially for her aquatic activities than either Trudy or Mrs. Corson.

As Walt Winchell might put it, it's a caddie at the Vern Swartzfagers, born last Saturday.

Dave McDonald, for years the spark that has kept harness racing alive in these parts, says there is no decrease in interest among the men behind this pastime around here, although the sport has not been plugged as some others have in recent years . . . . Plans are under way, he says, to build a beautiful private barn at Schenley Oval, which should stimulate the matinee racing there considerably . . . . Millions of persons are entertained each summer with trotting and pacing events at the county fairs, and some 79 of these meetings are carded in Pennsylvania this year . . . . James D. Callery is campaigning two strings on the Grand Circuit under the direction of Will Hodson, of Hartford, Conn., and has three stars in the big stake events . . . . They are Harry D, 2:03 1-4; Trampsmag, 2:02 1-4, and the crack 3-year-old, Guy June, 2:10 . . . . Ned McCarr has Ima McGreager, 2:07, and the two 3-year-old trotters, Calamut Ardelle, 2:07 1-4, and Trampcomplete, 2:12 1-4, winning regularly over the half-mile tracks . . . . Harry Oliver's Scotland (2), 2:05 1-4, is the outstanding handicap trotter on the Grand Circuit and is unbeaten so far this season and gives promise of developing into a two-minute performer . . . . Henry B. Rea and Dr. T. B. Reed are two other local men whose horses are racing creditably and getting a lot of notice in the turf papers.

The lowdown on the widespread increase of the night baseball racket in leagues all over the country is said to be that there is no expense attached to the installation of the system . . . . The company backing it puts in the apparatus and then collects a third of the gate receipts for all of the night games . . . . Since the smaller towns can double or triple their intake at night they are more than willing to go along on this basis . . . . Scottdale and Johnstown join the other Mid-Atlantic League clubs in staging night games beginning this week . . . . The Mid-Atlantic League, by the way, has been having tough financial sledding this year and night baseball probably will prove its salvation.

The word is out that one of the winners in the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament completed at North Braddock last week formerly boxed as a pro and the officials knew it when they let him fight his way through to the title . . . . A protest was lodged against him before his final bout, but nothing was done about it.—HARRY KECK.

Chocolate Trains For Punching Fight

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(INS.)—Kid Chocolate is indicating in his workouts here that he intends to punch it out with Jackie Berg when they clash next Thursday night at the Polo Grounds. He is training to work at great speed and maintain a stiff punching pace, fans in his camp said today.

Chocolate's sensational outbursts received loud applause yesterday from the crowd of more than 600. The Keed pounded both Jimmy Slavin and Mel Aragon with hard rights and lefts from all angles during his four rounds of boxing.

Chocolate continues boxing this afternoon and tomorrow. He will leave here on Wednesday for New York.

Stribling to Sail for Home Wednesday

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Willie Stribling and his father-manager will sail Wednesday for New York. Sporting Life says they will be accompanied by Promoter Jeff Dickson, who hopes to arrange a fight in England between Max Schmeling and Stribling, whose stock in the pugilistic market took a sudden rise with his recent two-round knockout of the English champion, Phil Scott.

Bobby Enjoys First Dip in 10 Years

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Robert Tyre Jones has a yen for golf championships, but as a swimmer, once in 10 years is about the best he can do.

Bobby, atop of the who's who at golf, here at Sea Island Beach for a vacation, while reminiscing with friends revealed that his donning of a bathing suit and enjoyment of a dip in the surf was the first time in a decade he had been swimming.

When Bobby made his appearance in a solid black bathing suit has was besieged by photographers, who realized that getting Bobby in a bathing suit once in 10 years was sompin'.

NIGHT SPORTS.

This is a fast-changing world we are living in and competitive athletics are no exception. Following the lead set by boxing promotors who were the first to hold outdoor events at night, other sports are following suit rapidly.

Knute Rockne

Several years ago, Drake University began playing night football and the idea is being copied all over the country. The British-American track games to be held in Chicago on August 27 will be held at night. Night baseball was tried in Des Moines in the spring and has been used by the minor leagues in many places since.

Now John McGraw plays an exhibition game in Bridgeport, Conn., under flood lights. The first hint that the major leagues were leaning toward the trend to night games came when the Reds played under flood lights in Indianapolis against the American Association club.

In Toledo, Grand Circuit racing at night has proved decidedly popular. In Chicago a plan is under way designed to permit golf after dusk. Soccer has been played under floodlights for the past three years. In all cases the popularity of the sports has been maintained and attendance has been doubled and tripled.

At present, I see no indication that any of our so-called major football games will be played at any time but in the afternoon. Just now there is no reason for it. However, should football fall into any trough of depression, it would not be surprising to see night games follow in short order. Under this new modern floodlight system, our games can be played with just as much enjoyment to players and spectators in the evening as in the afternoon. However, when I think of the football games late in November, I prefer afternoon games, not waiting for the cool of the evening.

Pedley Stars Again In Polo Battle

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Capt. Tommy Hitchcock's Whites, representing the current varsity of American polo, gave the most impressive exhibition on the international tests yesterday in swamping a bewildered combination of Reds by the score of 24 to 10. Since the red-jersied "Jayvees" began with a six-goal handicap concession, the actual margin of the first-string team was 20 goals.

Eric Pedley, the sturdy Californian whose sensational play within the past week has just about clinched his claim to the No. 1 post on the American "big four" led the biggest scoring outburst of the season by tallying nine times for the Hitchcock forces.

Greensburg Golfer Seeks Hole in One

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 4.—James A. Bennett, Jr., of Greensburg, has joined the hole-in-one club.

Playing over the course of the Greensburg Country Club yesterday, Bennett sank a drive in the cup on the fifteenth hole. The distance to the green from the tee is 242 yards, Bennett's drive traveling 238 yards nearly to the edge where it rolled into the cup.

The hole-in-one is the second at the Greensburg Country Club this year, L. O. Robertshaw, of Youngwood, scoring one in March on the sixteenth hole, a distance of 127 yards.

TORN MUSCLE SHEATH—COMMONLY CALLED "CHARLEY-HORSE." THIS USUALLY OCCURS IN THE UPPER LEG BETWEEN KNEE AND HIP, FRONT OR BACK.

By BABE RUTH.
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

In this picture, Trainer Painter, of the Yankees, is showing the most common form of injury in the big leagues—it's a tearing of a muscle sheath—the thing we commonly call charley-horse. Young boys are not likely to be bothered much with that injury. Their youth and suppleness are pretty good safeguards against it. But, when a boy reaches the age of 18 or 20, charley-horse is likely to come.

Every muscle, you know, is separate from every other muscle. And each muscle is encased in a thin covering or sheath. If something happens to break or rip that sheath then the muscle underneath pops out through the sheath, forming a seat of lump or knot. That's a charley-horse. If you ever get one, you'll know it. They're very painful. And they ustually occur in the upper leg, between the knee and hip, front or back.

Nine times out of 10, a charley-horse comes from one of two or three things. A sudden sharp blow, like a foul ball, hitting a muscle that is tensed frequently will cause a bruise that results in a charley-horse. But the most common cause is quick starting and stopping or a sudden side-wise motion that suddenly puts a lot of strain and tension on a certain leg muscle. That is particularly likely to happen if players do not warm up before starting to play. Coldness contracts the muscles and makes them less supple, and, just as so many articles become more brittle when cold, so do muscles. That's why charley-horses are much more frequent on cold, raw days than in the heat of midsummer.

Now for the treatment. First of all, a charley-horse must have complete rest. The muscle must be given a chance to cure itself and the torn sheath must have opportunity to heal up properly. Next, heat applications. The reason for heat is that it makes the muscle supple and loose, takes out congestion and helps the muscle slip back into its proper place.

A charley-horse always should be bandaged, too—for a bandage prevents any further congestion, and, by its very support, helps relieve the tension on the muscle that is sore. Doc Painter says he has found that a rubber silk stocking is about the best possible bandage for a charley-horse.

There's no need of warning youngsters not to neglect a charley-horse. They won't. For a charley-horse is so painful that it does its own reminding. A real charley-horse will stop even the most enthusiastic youngster for awhile. There's this thing to remember, though: The minute you pull a charley-horse, put on the heat applications yourself. Then, when you've done that for about a half-hour or an hour, and the pain is somewhat relieved, go to some qualified trainer or physician and get treatment there. Don't fool around trying home remedies. Don't take chances. And, above all else, don't attempt to continue playing until the injury is completely cleared up.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER

Well Folks, here we are back home. We had a great time at the Bears' playground and just about run off with all the meat. If we stayed in town many more days with Commy, Pie, Dick and Bool going on a rampage, the Cubs would be about out of the pennant race by the time the week was up.

We did them little good as it was. You should have been here today and seen that Polish outfielder of ours strut his stuff. He was over the outfield snatching up hard-hit ground balls (which is no small matter in itself for an outfielder) and also making fine catches on fly balls. An old timer sitting on the bench said Commy looked just like the great Wagner running the bases on a certain play.

WHAT A PLAY

I will tell it to you as one ball player would to another and see what you think of the play.

In the fifth inning with our club two runs behind and two outs, and Paul Waner on third, Commy comes up and hits the first ball pitched like a shot to left field.

The Polishman rounded second where most any player would have stopped, but instead he just flew into third, which looked like a plain case of suicide, and with spikes flying, rolled into the bag. When the cloud of dust had cleared away Farrell had made a wild throw in a hurried attempt to stop him and before the ball could be rounded up Commy was across home plate with the tying run and as daring a piece of base running as I have seen in all my baseball experience.

BOOL GETS TICKER

And say, you should have seen Bool hit that one of his today. It was far over the left field wall. When he hit that one Steve, who was sittin' on the bench, said he thought the stand was fallin' in from the crash of the bat. The ball liked to knocked a tree-sitter out of his roost in a nearby tree-sitting contest.

There is a story going round on the bench, probably Larry or Steve started it as usual. You see they give watches away for presents to each one who hits a home run in the Cubs' ball park during the season of 1930. Al has done pretty well in the last three games and I believe that if he hits a few more he is going to start a general merchandise store somewhere in Nebraska.

U. S. Rower Third In German Meet

DARMSTADT, Germany, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—In finals of the international students athletics meet yesterday, Weimar, of Germany, won the singles sculls rowing championship over a course of 2,180 yards in 8 minutes 43 6-10 seconds. Finishing second, 10 lengths behind, was Mariani, of Italy, with Schoenfeld, of the United States, third.

In doubles sculls, the Italians defeated the Germans by three lengths. A German four defeated Italy by half a length.

Old Pete Fails To Show; Fans, Cameras Wait

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Fourteen thousand fans, a flock of newspaper photographers and 29 sound movie outfits waited at Swayne Field yesterday afternoon for Grover Cleveland Alexander to don a Toledo Mudhen uniform but old Pete failed to appear.

Where the veteran pitcher spent the Sunday that he promised to while away in the Toledo American Association ball park, is something that President Oscar J. Smith and Manager Casey Stengel of the local club were unable to answer.

Transportation expenses were wired to Alexander in Chicago Friday, President Smith said, and the wandering one promised to come here Sunday morning.

Club officials had made extensive plans for the debut of Alexander in the American Association.

FIRE DESTROYS NEW YORK'S VELODROME

Its frame track and seating stands burned like tinder when flames, apparently from a carelessly-tossed cigaret stub at last night's races, broke out near the main entrance, and although five alarms brought dozens of pieces of fire-fighting equipment to the scene the structure was reduced quickly to a charred ruin.

With seats for 18,000 spectators, and a landmark of uptown New York since it was erected at Two Hundred Twenty-fifth street and Broadway about nine years ago, the Velodrome was one of the largest cycle-racing stadia in the world.

Outdoor bicycle and motorcycle races were held there several times a year except during the winter, and most of the leading bicycle riders of the world had pedalled around its board track.

There were races at the Velodrome last night. At 3:30 this morning three employes, cleaning up after the night's racing, saw flames in the north bleachers. A fire was not unusual at the bowl, and the three men went to quench it with garden hose, but the blaze gained headway too rapidly to be quenched, and once it got into the track, soaked with oil which had spurted from countless racing motorcycles, it roared into other sections of the stadium and flung smoke and embers like a volcano.

The fire was visible for five miles and attracted hundreds of spectators.

Of the power that goes into a drive, what proportion should come from (1) the arms, (2) the wrist movement, (3) the swing of the body?

JOHN BLACK

The power that goes into the drive is divided as follows: arms, about 50 per cent; wrists, 25 per cent; body, 25 per cent; but you have to have all three in perfect timing with each other or the result will not be satisfactory. Arms first, body second, wrists third. If the body beats the arms, there will be no wrist action until you are past the line of the ball. You have to get the arms swinging first, body following, and the wrists will snap in at the right place, just naturally taking care of themselves.

Oil Producers Put Curb On Wildcat Selling

By B. C. FORBES

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—How California producers of oil finally brought output into line with consumption was told in a previous column.

Mr. Forbes

Here is the other phase of the latest developments, as gathered in a talk with President George Legh-Jones of the famous Shell - Union Company.

Notwithstanding all this constructive work, however, in the producing and refining branches, the recent disastrous gasoline war, when gasoline sold as low as 5 cents a gallon (of which 3 cents represented the state tax), has shown conclusively that general stability cannot be achieved until those engaged in retailing to the public have educated themselves in principles similar to those applied to production, namely, that a fair volume at a fair price is more profitable than an excessive volume at a low price.

A CODE of ethics, approved by the Federal Trade Commission has been in operation for many months and has undoubtedly contributed materially to the element of fair marketing practices. Most of the troubles and disturbances in marketing on the Pacific Coast have been occasioned by a very small percentage of retailers, who deliberately set out to take business irrespective of price or of ethical marketing practices. Now, however, the large majority of marketers are refusing to sell to retailers guilty of these vicious annihilating practices, disastrous to the whole industry and detrimental to the general public.

Certain refiners and marketers in the southern part of the state courageously increased their prices to a point yielding them something approaching cost for their products, although many others were selling at much lower prices, and the response left no doubt whatever of the publics belief in the reasonableness of fair prices and fair marketing policies.

SUMMING UP — The outstanding work of the oil industry in California in the last year has been one of education, within and without. There is a growing realization of the community of interest amongst all branches of the industry.

The marketer must realize that the co-operation expected from the producer and the refiner demands an ethical conduct of the selling business which will maintain prices at a fair level and return a reasonable price for the raw material.

The old days of excessive prices for petroleum products have, fortunately, disappeared forever, thanks to the competition of other natural resources and the development of synthetic processes. The industry undoubtedly feels that its profits in future can be made only by more economical operation, the elimination of waste, real conservation, and, perhaps above all, by wise co-operation in the different branches, so that the public should be given proper service at prices yielding a fair margin of profit.

Happily, recent events have shown conclusively that the public realizes the paramount importance of having an industry so vital to the whole of the Pacific coast in a healthy and sound condition, and that it will not lightly tolerate vicious practices tending to disrupt it.

Coal Trade Developing Machine Mining

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE COAL INDUSTRY is making rapid progress in applying machinery and large scale operations to mining. Until recently coal lagged far behind other industries in making use of modern invention to increase its production and to lower costs. While the development of mining machinery has been under way for a long period, it has only been in the past few years that the operators have been producing machine mined coal on any large scale.

The perfection of mining equipment and the necessity for cutting labor costs to a minimum resulted in a marked spurt in the installation of machinery during the last two years. This was reflected in a sharp increase in the amount of coal coming from mechanized mines.

Showed 75 Per Cent Gain

COAL PRODUCED BY mechanized mining amounted to 21,559,000 tons from bituminous workings in 1928. This increased to 37,862,000 tons in 1929, a growth of more than 75 per cent, according to a survey made by the Bureau of Mines.

Another large gain is expected this year since much of the new mining equipment was installed late last year and did not have a pronounced effect on the total production figures. The change marks a belated effort by the coal industry to adopt the principles of machine operation which have been responsible for the growth and success of other leading industries.

Many Machines Developed

WHILE THERE ARE many mining operations for which machinery has been developed, the principal interest of the industry is now centered on equipment for loading coal into mine cars after it has been cut. The figures published by the Bureau of Mines cover only this operation and do not take into account mechanical cutting or the increased use of electric locomotives for hauling. The survey is also restricted to underground mining operations and does not discuss the loading of coal by mechanical shovels in strip mining operations, amounting to about 20,000,000 tons a year.

Loading of coal into cars constitutes one of the principal items of labor in mining operations. A large variety of equipment has been developed to cut the labor costs in this operation. Last year 19,291,000 tons were loaded by machines which required no hand shoveling except for clean up work. Machines which loaded the coal into the cars after being fed by hand accounted for 18,571,000 tons, making the total of 37,862,000 tons of machine mined coal. The latter type of equipment greatly cuts the labor cost by reducing the height to which miners have to shovel the coal.

Growth Rapid

THE GROWTH IN THE USE of machine eliminating all hand labor for loading has been going on at a rapidly increasing pace as operators have realized the possible economies. In 1923 only 1,880,000 tons were loaded by this equipment. Over 10 times as much coal was loaded in this way last year.

Another phase of mechanization which is being carried out rapidly is the development of electrical hauling. The mule, once an essential part of every mine operation, is rapidly disappearing. The plodding animal with his single wagon of coal is giving way to the company mine locomotive which hauls a train of 20 to 30 cars.

Westinghouse Gets Big U. S. Steel Order

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has received an order from the United States Steel Corporation for electrical apparatus costing approximately $750,000.

Bituminous Coal Output Increases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Soft coal production in week ended July 26 was 7,993,000 net tons, an increase of 71,000 tons over previous week and compares with 9,607,000 tons in same week a year ago.

Investment Trust Probe Reveals That Firms Don't Sell Short

In its investigation of investment trusts, the state bureau of securities has uncovered the interesting fact that the trusts never sell short. A preliminary survey, says the report, reveals that short selling is practically non-existent among the companies under investigation. Only 10 of these companies have ever sold short at all and the totals are insignificant both absolutely and relatively. According to the report a further encouraging sign is the general adherence of trust executives to the policy of buying securities outright and not carrying them either on margin with brokers or subject to bank loans. The maximum amount of loans against securities outstanding in the case of each individual company, for the last 18 months when added together, reached a total of less than 10 per cent of the resources of all the companies. These borrowings were largely of a temporary nature and nearly half the reporting companies have never had a dollar of floating debt.

Importance can be attached to a decision of the Illinois Utility Commission placing natural gas costs on the basis of heat units consumed instead of on the number of cubic feet, because interests in the industry believe that the action will encourage more natural gas pipe line construction in the future. If the lead of the Illinois Utility Commission is followed in other sections of the United States wherein transportation of natural gas is an important development, shares of the companies interested in this industry will attract more attention.

August traditionally a month of moderately advancing prices in the stock market, has been ushered in under a virtual suspension of speculative activity. Stock sales on the big board on Saturday fell under a 400,000-share volume, the lowest in four years. Friday's total was approximately 1,000,000 shares, a new low record since May, 1926. Apathy is the chief characteristic of traders of all classes and Wall street reports a heavy exodus of those who normally account for a large share of the dealings in the stocks and commodity markets.

Investigation made by one of the large stock exchange houses reveals that the companies with large newspaper advertising programs are maintaining earnings in a remarkable way during the business recession. The list includes Coca Cola, American Tobacco, Reynolds Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, National Biscuit, Procter & Gamble and William Wrigley. These well known concerns have demonstrated to their own satisfaction that it pays to advertise, and by the same token an investor cannot go far astray in seeking as investments the stocks of the corporations showing a progressive sales policy, backed up by vigorous advertising campaigns.

The Consolidated Gas Company faces a shrinkage of 47 cents a share gross income as the result of the proposed downward revision in rates on electric current from seven to five cents a kilowatt hour for certain classes of consumers. Net reductions in income will of course be somewhat smaller, perhaps not more than 20 cents a share. Under the new schedule the return on the investment value of the company's property would be 7.29 per cent, against 7.67 at present. The reduction may in time affect the up-state properties controlled by the same group, and selling resulting from this factor was the main cause of the decline in utility stock prices last week.

Radio Corporation's semi-annual statement, to be issued next Friday, will not show a loss, as had been generally expected, but a slight gain for the first half of 1930, according to confidential information. Strong market sponsorship has been evident in the Radio Corporation group during the last downward movement.

Prairie Pipe Line Deliveries Decline

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 4 points to a decline of 4 points. There was some trade buying and covering in October and December, which was probably promoted by early weather reports showing little change in conditions over the week-end.

It appeared to be quite readily supplied by realizing and reselling by buyers of late last week, however, and the failure of the weather news to bring in a more active demand was evidently disappointing to holders of contracts. New October sold off to 12.60c, and March to 13.08c under the early selling, but there was enough buying to hold the market fairly steady, with prices showing rallies of a few points at the end of the first half hour.

Owing to the bank holiday in England, the Liverpool market was closed today, but will reopen for business tomorrow. Local map readers thought there was a chance for some showers in the Texas Panhandle, but otherwise looked for little or no rain in the western belt.

The market was quiet but fairly steady later in the morning. Offerings became small after the early decline to 12.60 for the new October contract and there were rallies on covering, which was probably promoted by the official forecast which was for partly cloudy weather in the western belt but held out no promise of rain. At midday the new October was selling around 12.70 with active months generally showing net advances of 4 to 8 points.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Sharply higher prices for corn today resulted from continued reports of severe crop damage from the terrific heat, with no general breakup of drought, one leading expert reported that the main damage to corn appears to be prolonged wilting of plants from top to bottom and is irreparable, wheat values sympathised with strengthening of the corn market, opening 1⅛@2⅛ higher, corn prices afterwards reacted somewhat but then mounted again. Wheat started ½@1¼c up, and subsequently hardened.

Hundreds of corn fields were reported today as promising a return of only poor fodder, an outlook that in many districts is bringing about general selling of all farm animals and poultry owing to dearth of feed. Other sections sent messages saying that as the result of the longest, hottest, rainless period ever experienced, corn is deteriorating rapidly, that tassels are burning up, and that a large percentage of stalks have no ears at all. On the other hand, scattered reports of showers tended at times to induce numerous fluctuations in prices.

Wheat quotations went upward today, not only on account of higher prices for corn, but also as a result of indications of a let-up in the marketing of wheat southwest and west. Not so much hedging pressure from newly-harvested wheat was in evidence here, and Minneapolis reported an increase in buying orders there at existing differences under the Chicago market. An opposite factor, however, was relative lack of export demand, owing to holiday abroad. Oats were firmer with wheat and corn.

Provisions also showed themselves responsive to upturns in cereals.

California Crude Oil Output Down

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—With a drop of nearly 5,000 barrels from preceding week, California crude oil production averaged 602,700 barrels daily during the week ended August 2, bringing the state total output nearer the 596,000-barrel level than it has been for any week since the latter part of June.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—The curb market began the new week as it had ended the previous one—exceedingly dull. The usually active stocks appeared on the tape infrequently today and the ticker was idle almost as much as it was busy.

In view of the stagnation in speculative sentiment, price movements were meaningless and the leading shares varied fractionally from the Saturday close. A slight sagging tendency came out during the morning, but the market stiffened around midday, although activity failed to pick up.

Much of the trading was in a few utilities.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

PRICE RANGES NARROW IN TRADING

Firmer Market Tone Felt As Radio, Autos Rally; Crop Damage Buoys Grain

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Opposing speculative groups took turns trying to arouse the slumbering stock market today, and the bulls managed to stir up a flicker of life, but achievements were modest, indeed.

Resumption of activity at the automotive manufacturing centers and a slight acceleration of steel mill activity in the Youngstown area were reassuring, but failed to bolster the bull cause effectively. Trading was about as sluggish as it was last week.

Reports of severe crop damage in the Middle West buoyed up the grain markets, which helped stocks a little. The stock market, however, could not interpret the news very bullishly on the basis of information now at hand, for unless the advance in grain prices is sufficient to compensate for smaller crops, farm purchasing power will suffer.

BEARS MAKE RAID

Further selling appeared during the morning, when bears endeavored further to depress the utilities. Losses of a point or two were numerous, but bearish activity was rather timid, and resumption of activity in Radio and a few other shares by the group of bull operators who have been directing the forward movement of late, reversed the trend before midday.

Public participation in the market remained negligible, however, and few market letter writers or advisory services felt justified in advocating much but sidelines policy. Moody's pointed out that there is as yet no means of gauging the extent of the expected seasonal recovery in business, and Standard statistics found the economic background "distinctly unfavorable to large scale bullish operations." The Harvard Economic Society continued optimistic over the prospects for business recovery.

RADIO POOL ACTIVE

The revival of pool activity in Radio was accompanied by board room gossip to the effect that the first half report of the company, expected within a few days, may not be as bad as has been forecast. Expectations are, however, that the company little better than broke even, and the market activity appears to be based largely on the improved outlook for the remainder of the year.

The bank holiday at London and Liverpool acted as a damper on speculative activity here. Credit was a little firmer, reflecting the influence of the return of August 1 payment checks for clearing. There was some calling of loans, and call money was firm at 2 per cent. Foreign exchanges moved uncertainly, but further gold exports were widely anticipated. Sterling cables are now close to $4.87½, and while the outgoing gold point has been calculated heretofore at about $4.88, at least one international banker is planning a shipment as soon as the rate reaches $4.87½.

STEEL IN DEMAND

In addition to Radio, such shares as U. S. Steel, American Can, and Standards of New Jersey and California were well bought, rising a point or more. American Telephone was taken in hand, now that the new financing has been completed, and sent up a few points. Westinghouse Electric, Du Pont, International Telephone, National Dairy, Vanadium, American Tobacco B, Liggett and Myers, Electric Autolite, United Aircraft, American Smelting and Atchison were among issues rising 1 to 2 points, or more. Diamond Match was a wide mover, rising more than 6.

Warner Bros. was a soft spot during the morning, dropping 2 to a new low at 33¾, then rallying a little. Directors meet for dividend action on Thursday.

INTENSE HEAT SLOWS UP TRADE

Economic Nationalism Gains In Nations of World; Bull Movement Lacks Support

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The spirit of economic nationalism continues to grow more intense in various parts of the world.

The passage of the high Hawley-Smoot tariff, itself an expression of unreasoning economic nationalism, intensified tendencies in that direction in various parts of the world. The victory of the Conservative party in Canada was a triumph for the idea of Canada for the Canadians.

M. S. Rukeyser

A typical expression of the growing opposition to financial internationalism, especially to the penetration into other countries by American interests, is to be observed in a protest in the current issue of the Financial Post of Toronto which reflects financial sentiment in the Dominion. The occasion for the comment is the report that an American dairy company is about to make an offer to absorb a Canadian enterprise.

The report says:

"Canadian stock exchanges and the financial community generally must view with concern the tendency of Canadian companies to sell out and thus become subsidiaries of United States organizations. It inevitably follows that the shares of the Canadian company sold to foreign interests are taken off the Canadian exchanges and, even if the shares of the parent company are listed, the real market remains in New York City."

NO WAR ECONOMICS

This spirit of economic nationalism dates back to the war, when countries perceived the desirability of economic self-sufficiency from a national defense standpoint. Thus far, there has been no movement for economic disarmament. The trend has been in the opposite direction, what with the erection of barriers to trade through tariffs and otherwise.

This yielding to the emotion of nationalism, rather than to analysis of the facts in each case, helps to explain why international trade is sick, and why the world is depressed.

Perhaps the depression will induce practical statesmen to cease ignoring the almost universal advice of economists, whose plea is that trade and capital be allowed to flow through natural channels. This is no plea for a reversal of policy in the direction of economic internationalism, but for a new orientation and a disposition to examine the facts in each case, rather than to follow the counsel of fear and prejudice.

The Financial Post's protest is reminiscent of the ancient Greek's belief that all foreigners are barbarians. It ill behooves England and its colonies to attack financial international penetration, for England taught the rest of the world the system.

Irrespective of the logic of the bull contingent in Wall street, it has failed to attract a popular following. These newer economists in brokerage offices will learn that the collective will to speculate depends on subtle psychological impulses, even more than on the logic of statistical analysis. And yet canny, patient investors, who analyze fundamentals and ignore mob psychology, do very well for themselves over a period of years.

HEAT AFFECTS TRADE

With trade still lagging and commodities unsettled, this column still adheres to the view that the salvation of the average investor lies in a balanced financial diet, consisting of some cash, long and short term bonds, preferred shares and selected common stocks. Where an individual's funds are too limited to permit such diversification, the investor should use the savings bank, or, if more venturesome, the composite funds conducted by a number of leading trust companies.

Midsummer dullness has put a restraining hand on current business. The intense heat and drought have added to the factors making for quietude, which is seasonal as well as a phase of the business cycle. However, iron and steel, copper and automobiles showed signs of greater activity. The automotive industry, like residential building, is a balance wheel of prosperity, and is of special barometric significance.

Emphasizing the importance of residential building to the general economic situation, President Hoover has appointed a commission to study factors needed for the "removal of influences which seriously limit the spread of home ownership, both in town and country." President Hoover has long felt that a revival of home building would be the surest cure for unemployment.

New York Banks Planning Merger

A plan has been formulated for consolidation of Chemical National Associates, an investment trust, with the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., and its securities affiliate, Chemical National Company, on a basis of 2½ shares of associates non-voting stock for one share of chemical bank stock. Formal action on the plan will be taken by directors soon.

Aircraft Output Totals 785 in Quarter

Production and sales of airplanes produced in the second quarter of 1930 showed a decided improvement over the first, according to Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America Inc. Sales of commercial aircraft actually delivered during the second quarter more than kept pace with production, indicating that airplane inventories are fast being depleted.

The report shows that production and deliveries of commercial airplanes sold during the first six months reached their highest peak in May. Deliveries on military airplanes sold reached their peak in February, while April and June were the biggest months for production, June slightly overshadowing April.

STEEL PRICES HOLD LEVELS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—Some irregularity still is noted in steel prices, although quotations for the most part are holding at established levels, according to Daily Metal Trade. Occasional shading on attractive business is reported, but a real test of the market is lacking since the bulk of current demand is confined to small lots, business which ordinarily does not induce price shading. Sellers are confident of a pickup in buying this month and the opinion generally prevailing is that the worst of the lull was passed in July.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was good today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets remained steady, demand fair, supply adequate, with slight changes in egg quotations.

Car lot receipts were nominal, with 57c rate on track. Arrivals included 10 cars of apples, 2 bags 2 cabbage, 14 carrots, 3 grapes, 2 cucumbers, 3 lemons, 7 onions, 4 onions, 5 oranges, 26 peaches, 5 pears, 7 pears, 2 California fruit, 4 plums, 30 potatoes, 2 sweet potatoes, 7 tomatoes, 6 mixed vegetables and 30 watermelons.

Tide Water's Plan Due to Long Study

Recent decision of Tide Water Oil Company to manufacture and market nationally a 100 per cent Pennsylvania grade motor oil is the result of several years of experimenting with Bradford and Allegany crudes. Since the beginning of 1924, to end of June, this year, company has run through its Bayonne refinery some 11,332,280 barrels of Pennsylvania crude, the through put increasing annually. During that period, company spent some $39,000,000 in purchases of Pennsylvania oil.

During the first six months this year, total throughput of this grade of crude amounted to 1,498,680 barrels, a daily average of 8,280 barrels. For all of 1929, the daily average throughput was 7,400 barrels, while in 1928 it was 5,200. In 1927, 1926 and 1925, daily runs averaged 4,300 barrels, 4,050 and 3,370, respectively, while in 1924 the daily average was 2,600 barrels.

Foreign travel is without doubt a first-class index to the spending ability and spending spirit of a country. It is a definite luxury, reflecting a definite prosperity. The number of American passports issued this year greatly exceed any past year in our history, a fact which should cause serious thinking among the calamity howlers and pessimists.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Bond trading was slow and changes were of a minor nature today. High grade issues showed no change of trend, holding firm, with here and there a small fractional gain. Stock privilege issues were dull and irregular.

Predictions in bond circles that August would be a quiet month for new offerings received some support in the absence of new offerings on the first day of the week.

A favorable factor which financial circles believe may lend further strength to the bond market is the increase in savings deposits throughout the country.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Miss Crusoe'

There's that author chap, of course, but he doesn't count," Will Hendley said.

"No—keeps to himself too much; sort of a dead one. Delores likes 'em lively," Mrs. Hendley agreed.

The Hendleys were recently married, and planned for a gay two weeks down in the old Hendley plantation that Will had fixed up into a vecation home. It was near enough to the city for week-end trips, and since Will came into his fortune he had done wonders with the place.

"Oh, come now," Harry Gilbert protested. "that author chap's all right. He's no drug store cowboy, if that's what you mean, he doesn't hang around Tulley's and make wise cracks about our crowd and lap up nut sundaes, but he's regular."

"All right, Patty, if you say so," Will agreed.

And so, along with the others who were to have a two weeks' playtime on the river shore at the Hendley plantation was this author chap—the quiet one who never told you that he had stories in magazines and never bored you with explaining that he wrote under several different names.

Patty Gilbert liked him, which was one thing. He didn't like Greg Carter, which was a second thing, and a third thing was that the author chap had fallen hard for Delores Allen.

Now, since Greg Carter seemed to take it for granted that just because he favored a girl he owned her, Patty Gilbert hated to see Greg and Delores at the Hendley party and the author chap away. Patty didn't want Greg to win the fair Delores and he did hope that his author friend would succeed with her.

As for Delores—who could tell which of their crowd of lively young men impressed her most? Not Patty Gilbert.

Pleasant Chap

There were 15 of them down at Hendley's place.

The author chap was pleasant, but quiet.

He didn't shine much at tennis and he didn't once climb to the top of the diving platform, but satisfied himself with slipping off the float and swimming about, always within a dozen yards of the shore.

He was something of a wizard at bridge, but few of the young folks cared much for bridge so long as they could find something else to do. Greg Carter liked to see the author chap at the bridge table with Mrs. Larcomb and the Hendleys because he would grab Delores for a dance and always dance around as close to the bridge tables as possible.

Greg thought he had some swell lines.

Whenever he'd be dancing with Delores within hearing of the author chap he'd say, "Well, Hon" (all girls were "Hon" to Greg, and he thought he got away with it), "bridge is a swell invention for the old folks. I suppose when we lose our pep we'll be playing bridge."

Delores would laugh.

Nothing that Greg could say ever bothered the author chap, but whenever Delores Allen laughed and he heard it, he almost forgot what trumps were.

Patty Gilbert's "heart" was Eileen Abbott. Eileen was rather chummy with Delores. Patty tried to "pump" Eileen as to the heart and the mind and the inclinations of Delores toward Greg, and also toward the author chap.

"Ouch—one of these 'knocks-me-cold-burns-me-up' attitudes, eh?"

"Looks like it, Harry."

"What has she got against him—he's one swell guy."

"Well, he's dumb about tennis and he certainly is no water spaniel, and he'd rather play bridge than dance—what could you expect?"

"He's no wind-bag like Greg, he's regular."

"Aw, Greg's lively—he's a champion diver and he dances like the answer to a maiden's prayer. What you trying to do, Harry, be a matchmaker?"

"I got no use for that stuffed shirt—"

"I thought you liked him!"

"I mean Greg Carter. He likes to pose—he likes to boast about how all the girls are crazy over him."

Delores Laughs

"We are all crazy over him," Eileen declared.

"We?"

"Sure."

"If I see him trying to do any necking with you I'll bust him wide open!"

"Or set on him—that would flatten him out."

"I thought you were different, Eileen—nobody likes a fat boy, I guess. I thought it was all settled that we'd get married."

"Next year, Harry."

"Shucks, Eileen—the world may come to an end by then."

"In which case we wouldn't have to think of getting married—look, there's Delores and Greg now."

This encouraged him.

"Only has-beens play it," he went on.

"Like Bobby Jones?" the author chap asked.

"Aw!" said Greg, who couldn't think up an answer to that one.

Greg whispered something to Delores, who laughed again, and they walked away. The author chap watched them quite a while.

"I'm not so sure Delores has a lot of sense; she sees that my friend is real, and that Greg is a puff ball, full of smoke."

"You hate yourself, don't you, Harry? Well, I'll tell you what I'll do—if you make a match of it between your author chap friend and Delores, I'll marry you the moment we hear they are engaged."

"That's a bet," Harry Gilbert cried, but he didn't feel so cheerful about it as he pretended.

After sundown, a few days later, they were all on the big veranda. Harry and his author friend came along just as Greg was indulging in his favorite occupation, talking about himself.

"Shucks," he said, "Delores and me explored Crusoe's Island this afternoon—there isn't a rattler on the place, and that cave where they say ghosts guard Captain Kidd's treasure, why it's nothing at all."

Loves Heroes

"Did you go in?" Eileen asked.

"Delores was afraid to go," Greg explained.

"It was damp and muddy in there, but I wasn't afraid."

"Well, sir, talking about speeding—I never went so far as I did down the bluff slope road when I saw a car afire down there. I managed to get there and haul the two women out and save them."

"What two women?" Gilbert asked.

"I didn't ask them their names. I put sand on the gas tank just in time to prevent an explosion. I know I was likely to be blown to Kingdom Come, but a guy has to do the right thing, you know. The women thanked me and drove away. They had an Arkansas plate on their car."

"I love heroes," Delores exclaimed.

"Thanks, Baby—I love girls who loves heroes," Greg said.

Eileen winked at Harry Gilbert.

The author chap didn't say a word, he was showing his host how to tie dry flies for his fishing outfit.

The next day Delores paddled out to Crusoe Island all alone. She was gone quite a while.

When she tried to come back there was the current to contend with, because Crusoe Island was down river.

He paddled down easily and overtook Delores struggling to keep even abreast of the island in the current. He got her in his canoe and tried to come back, but they lost ground.

"For a fellow brought up here, he's rather — er—slow-witted," the author chap said. He took the third and only canoe left and started out. Greg had cast off the empty canoe because he thought it retarded him.

"If you'll get in my canoe, Miss Crusoe," he said, "I'll take you ashore."

"If I can't make it how the devil can you?" Greg demanded.

"Hey, you're going away from the plantation," Greg yelled. "I knew you were an awful sap!"

The author chap paddled down diagonally to the shore, and, turning with the backwater, easily came back to the landing. Gregory saw what to do, and meekly followed suit.

Two days later she visited Crusoe Island again, all alone. A terrific storm came up and, before anyone knew it, washed away the two canoes.

Swims to Island

"In that storm? Be yourself. She's all right, she won't drown."

"But she'll get soaking and perhaps try the canoe and be drowned," Mrs. Hendley wailed.

"Why, what's that?" she asked.

All of which was true.

But the author chap did make it.

Delores he found in the cave. Back of her was a grotesque and hideous "ghost," all light and flame.

"What the devil is that thing?" her rescuer asked, going up to it. Then he laughed.

"You made it on the rock with phosphorus," he accused.

"Don't tell. I made it to scare Greg—he's such a darn coward," Delores explained. "I wasn't afraid to go in the old cave—he was. Don't tell him. I want to show him up."

"Why bother with him, Delores?"

"Didn't you become frightened, Delores?" Mrs. Hendley asked as they came on the veranda, where everyone awaited them.

"No," she said, "but I became engaged to Len."

"Len" was the author chap.

Wife—"Have you finished wearing those garters you got last month?"

Husband—"I started to put them on—but I never could quite find time to get them hooked."

Wife—"Hurry up and get through with them—I promised to loan them to Mrs. Jones. They are going away over the week-end."

Husband—"I'll try to wear them tonight."

Wife—"By the way, I put the June garters in the lock-and-key case."

Husband—"Why?"

Wife—"They're a little off color—I didn't want the children to get hold of them."

A determined man, small in some ways, but having a large outlook, leaped from a train arriving in Washington last week and ran as fast as he could to the offices of the Federal Farm Relief Board. Naturally he was panting when he burst into Chairman Legge's office. But, breathless, he managed to propose a plan which will doubtless bring prosperity back to the soil. In short, he proposed Federal aid in establishing miniature golf courses throughout the wheat belt. He pleaded eloquently, and convinced Mr. Legge that such action would cut down the potential wheat acreage—thus boosting prices—and, better still, would cut down the time farmers waste planting and harvesting their crops. The man's name, be it said, was H. Hamhock Doakes.

Railroads Attempt to Settle Rate Dispute

The railroads have admitted the justice of this district's fight for the retention of reasonable rates on short hauls of steel products between plants in Pittsburgh.

The compromise offer, made by the carriers last week, came in the midst of preparations for the final hearing on the case before the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg on August 12. Since the shippers have completed their case, the railroad proposal is believed to be equivalent to an admission of defeat.

If the railroads had any genuine interest in the prosperity of Pittsburgh which, incidentally, would mean prosperity for them, they would have made this offer to the shippers three months ago before the new rate schedules were placed into effect.

They would have saved 60 shippers and themselves the enormous expense of bringing a highly technical case before the Public Service Commission. They would have relieved the shippers of the burden of paying the increased rates while the case was under dispute.

The terms of the compromise have not been made public and the shippers have not reached a decision on the proposal. It is to be hoped that the railroads have offered to make adjustments which will be acceptable to industry in this district. It is distinctly to the advantage of the carriers to make a fair settlement.

Pittsburgh Reds Not to Be Taken Too Seriously

Two girls, one 16, the other 19, are serving terms in the Allegheny County Jail for advocating Communism. They are charged with being "suspicious persons."

The girls are glad to be "martyrs;" for "the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church." They "made the first page" of the newspapers by gettitng committed to jail, and thus attracted some attention for Communism. Possibly they were influenced also by the fact that in the Soviet Union the persons most honored are those who have "suffered for the cause."

Their case recalls that of an aged woman in a little Western Pennsylvania town who, during the war, scandalized the community and caused no end of embarrassment by praising the Kaiser. On any and every occasion she would tell whoever would listen to her that Wilhelm was a great and good man.

Agents of the United States Department of Justice were summoned. They hardly knew what to do. It seemed that the woman ought to be punished; but on the other hand she was very old, she had always previously been respected, and there was no evidence that her praise of the Kaiser was doing the United States harm. So they did nothing, and in the course of time nobody paid any attention to the woman. Who can now doubt that their course was the sensible one?

Our Pittsburgh Communists are in some respects very much like the old woman. They favor things that are hateful to loyal Americans, and give offense by airing their views. But the very openness with which they preach their doctrine makes it difficult to think of them as spies secretly plotting revolution; most of them are too young to be very influential, and there is no evidence that they are doing the United States harm.

Federal Prison System A Disgrace to Nation

Every candidate for Senator and Representative in Congress, at the coming election, should be compelled to make a straightforward answer to the following questions:

Are you aware of the fact that "the prison system of the United States is an unendurable disgrace to a civilized country?"

Do you know that 26,000 violators of federal law are sweltering today in prisons, all of which are notoriously overcrowded and most of which are ill-administered?

Are you shocked to hear that of the 26,000 men, women and children sent to prison by the federal government, 13,000 are inmates of state, county and municipal jails over which the federal government has practically no control and little influence upon their administration?

Do you know that in most of these non-federal jails in which federal prisoners are boarded young prisoners are kept in idleness and forced into intimate association with the worst criminals, who turn these jails into schools of crime for the young?

Will you try, if elected, to support the efforts of Attorney General Mitchell and Sanford Bates, his superintendent of prisons, to better the federal prison system of the United States by voting the authority and the appropriations necessary for that purpose?

No candidate for either House of Congress who will not answer "Yes" to the last question is fit to sit in the Senate or House of Representatives at Washington.

At the session of Congress recently ended, a beginning was made toward the alleviation of the awful conditions under which the prisoners, for whom the federal government is responsible, are now confined.

But the prison legislation enacted was only a beginning. Much more must be done along the same line by the next Congress before it can be truly said that the United States is civilizing its barbarous prison system.

The federal prison system ought to be a model for the several states and a credit to the United States. But it has long been, and is now, a warning to the states, a disgrace to the nation and a scandal the world around.

There's Bigger Game Behind You, Uncle

By Hal Coffman

The greatest menace of this country is not Prohibition by any means—but a force far greater and the REAL cause of the crime wave and murders. "DOPE." Every criminal is at heart a coward, and before starting out to murder and rob is in most cases "hopped up" to get the nerve to do it. If the government would divert more of those millions from the futile attempt to stop the liquor traffic and REALLY go after the dope and narcotic dispensers, we would really be getting somewhere with the taxpayers' money and for the good of the country.—H. C.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

A Thrilling Sea Yarn

There actually is, or was, a radio station controlled by the Consolidated Hootchboochers of the Atlantic Coast and points expensive.

"Bugs" Baer

It was discovered by a customs inspector who had little to do.

While his fingers wandered idly over his 110-piece radio set he was startled to hear current prices quoted without the currents.

Rye was all over the dial. He couldn't tune it out.

What made it worse was he couldn't tune it in.

He tried to locate the mother station knowing that papa would be there. Then he started to analyse the contents of his ears and discovered that this was the world's only evening entertainment with a morning after.

The station was finally located by triangulation and higher coast artillery firing data during the Scotch hour.

The Scotch was sent out on a short wave length. There was an undertow of resentment among the radio audience.

Nobody wanted his, or her, Scotch in short waves.

The radio entertainment was sent out in remorse code. It was a series of dots and dashes.

The dots were before the eyes. They were so big you could hang your hat on them.

And 22 miles off shore in a fresh northeast breeze, the investigators grabbed the radio station loaded to the shoulder blades with a million-dollar cargo of drinking benzine.

They nailed it at the twitching hour of midnight. And believe it, or what, the captain of that boat was not there to challenge Sir Thomasso Lipton.

He had only himself to blame. He stood too close to the microphone. And, while the inspectors hadn't seen him in 20 years, they recognized him by his breath.

And that, my children, is the sad story of Cinderella and her glass ship. There were 12 glasses to a bottle. Nobody could make her talk. Her lawyers argued in vain. She was silent.

The district attorney harranged and gesticulated. She wouldn't talk. The judge tried to break her long silence but still she kept her mouth closed during the weary months of trial.

ADAMS AND LE VERRIER

By Archibald Henderson

As long as the annals of science are preserved, the story of the identification and discovery of the eighth major planet, Neptune, will be triumphantly recorded. The fullest investigations into the records have convinced astronomers that the honors in that great achievement must be shared in equal measure by an English astronomer, John Couch Adams, of Cornwall, and a French astronomer Urban Le Verrier, of Paris.

Only within recent years have astronomers assigned to Adams his full due for an equal part in the discovery with Le Verrier. So diffident had he been in presenting his discovery that, at first, little importance was attached to it; and public priority was accorded to Le Verrier.

John Couch Adams, born at Lidcot, Cornwall, on June 5, 1819, early displayed a deep interest in the observation of the heavens. About the age of 20 he attended St. John's College, Cambridge, where he read with interest and burning curiosity the account of the observed irregularities in the orbital motion of the planet Uranus. Following the prediction of Bouvard that an unseen perturbing body was causing all the trouble, young Adams undertook the task of locating this unseen planet in the sky, which the great mathematician, Bessel, was prevented from undertaking by his sudden death. Historic is the entry by Adams in his dairy, July 3, 1841:

"Formed a design, in the beginning of this week, of investigating, as soon as possible after taking my degree, the irregularities in the motion of Uranus, which are as yet unaccounted for; in order to find whether they may be attributed to the action of an undiscovered planet beyond it, and if possible thence to determine the elements of its orbit, etc., approximately, which would probably lead to its discovery."

This memorandum, lost among his papers, was not discovered until 1892. It was a sort of rediscovery of Neptune!

After taking his degree in 1843, Adams devoted the next two years to completing the laborious calculations, using the results already recorded by Bouvard. Sir George Airy had expressed to Bouvard in 1837 the view that it would be almost impossible to locate the new planet, assuming its existence.

Imagine the astonishment of Prof. Challis, director of the observatory at Cambridge, when the young undergraduate, Adams, his pupil and protege, informed him how and when the new planet was to be found. Through a failure of Adams to find Airy at Greenwich, and a later delay in correspondence, Adams' discovery was long delayed in announcement. In the meantime, the announcement of the new planet's discovery by Le Verrier was made on November 13, 1846.

But Le Verrier had only begun his work seven months after the solution had been found by Adams.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Nasty explosion the other day. Two men killed in a boiler explosion—a third blinded. Now everybody wants to know how it happened that the inspectors let 'em get by with a boiler like that. Why wasn't it junked long ago?

Pretty fussy we are about boilers. Yet our streets are filled with perambulating perils a thousand times more deadly than the biggest boiler and we don't do a thing about it.

ONE SIMPLE-MINDED DEGENERATE PERSON IS A MORE VICIOUS MENACE THAN ANY AMOUNT OF MACHINES. BUT NO LAW PROTECTS US AGAINST THAT MENACE. IF WE DID LITTLE JIMMY ELLIS WOULD BE ALIVE TODAY.

Jimmy was 3. You know a 3-year-old loves puddles. So, of course, he followed chuckling when La Verne McDonald asked him to go wading. Perhaps he even chuckled when that 7-year-old hand first pushed him under the water. But he didn't chuckle long. For the hand went on pushing, with hideous, cool deliberation—harder, harder. And presently the little body that had struggled so wildly lay still. Then the hand let go. It was satisfied. It had found out "how long he could stand it."

Why did a youngster of 7 kill a baby of 3? That was why, said La Verne to the jury, with never a flicker of emotion in face or voice. He was curious. He wanted to find out. And when he wanted to do things he had to do them.

That wasn't the first time he had given that reason in court. Last November he undressed and beat 2-year-old Patsy Cavanaugh. And ever since he could clutch and gouge and twist he has been torturing small animals. Why?

Because he wants to—"has to." And to young La Verne's twisted mind that seems a sufficient answer. Why should he be blamed for anything so reasonable?

Why indeed! But how about the police officers who caught La Verne beating Patsy last November? How about the people who saw him torturing animals for all these years? How about you and me, who permit a hazard like this to go unguarded? We don't permit dangerous machinery to go unguarded. But a faulty mind is infinitely more of a menace than faulty machinery—yet we let thousands of them run at large.

If we were half as civilized about babies as we are about boilers, little Jimmy Ellis would be alive today. For it's just as possible to prevent such murders as it is to prevent boiler explosions. How? By exactly the same methods. Expert inspection—and junk and reject the unfit.

We're not doing that yet because most of us do not realize the menace of the unfit. We shudder at a La Verne when he gets into print, but we smile at him when he smirks and slinks down our back alley. We think that people must make queer faces or noises before they are dangerous. But the craziest minds are often the most charming and well-behaved. A flawed boiler does not "look funny," but it's galvanized death nevertheless.

We should inspect our humans as carefully as we inspect our boilers. There should be compulsory mental examination of all children . . . and the guarding and segregation of the unfit.

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Brave Hearts Forget

Brave hearts forget and leave the past
To sink in time's abysses vast;
They greet each morn
With hope new born,
Find each day lovelier than the last.

Brave hearts ignore the griefs they knew
And in the dawning's rosy hue
They read aright
The promise bright,
New dreams to dream, new deeds to do!

Brave hearts cannot be satisfied
To linger where hope bloomed or died;
For they must climb
Fresh heights of time
That their desires be not denied.

Brave hearts leave longing and regret
Behind, when each day's sun has set;
They only see
Glad hours to be—
Brave hearts, how wisely they forget!

Text for Today

For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven.—II. Corinthians, 5: 1, 2.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The skeleton, on the other hand, is not liquidated, because there is no fuel value in the lime salts that stiffen our bones. Thus, as the other tissues shrink there finally comes a time when the muscles are spread with a lamentable attenuation over the undiminished bony framework; they are unable to move it properly, and the glands are too much wasted away to produce their necessary secretions; the creature dies.

No such limitations beset the Planarian. He has no skeleton and, if he can profit by experience at all, the profit is negligible compared with the value of his straight forward reflexes and instincts.

H. G. Wells

Every one of his tissues can be liquidated, and when he is starved he keeps a sense of proportion by destroying all his tissues to the same extent.

Finally, in view of the vital importance of the ductless glands in keeping life's activity up to the mark, might not this renewal of their activity abolish the senile symptoms?

The most obvious method of renewing the supply of sex-hormone is to graft in bits of reproductive organ from young animals.

There is also a second method—to tie a ligature round the vas deferens, the narrow tube along which spermatozoa leave (the testis). It had previously been found that the back-pressure of the sperms thus prevented from escaping will cause the sperm-producing tissue lining the testis-tubules to degenerate.

This meant that there was more food and space for the interstitial tissue between the tubules; the interstitial tissue therefore grew, and since it produces the male's sex-hormone, more sex-hormone was accordingly produced.

Steinach tried both methods, and with both he achieved what he had hoped for. The successes were not invariable; grafts do not always take, and the vas must be tied in just the right place if there is to be effective back-pressure.

But they were numerous enough. Old male rats successfully treated in either of these ways threw off their senility. Their appetite improved, their coat took on its old gloss, their weight went up.

Instead of sitting apathetically in one spot, like a decayed old villager on the alehouse bench, they began to display that incessant activity and inquisitiveness so characteristic of adult rat life. Potential mates were no longer treated with indifference. In brief, the aged beast reverted to a condition of normal maturity.

This renewal of vigor lasted up to six months or so, and then old age appeared a second time. The twice-senile animal could be again rejuvenated. Indeed, one rat was rejuvenated four times.

First one vas was ligatured, then the other, and then it received testis grafts from its younger relatives; and by this means its span of life was lengthened by 13 months. These prolongations do not sound large to us; but they mean a good deal to rats.

The normal span of life among Steinach's untreated rats is about 27 months; thus the maximum prolongation which Steinach's rats achieved was nearly 50 per cent of this, which would be over 30 years in terms of human lifetime.

The experiment with reported rejuvenation yielded a new fact. Each spell of renewed vigor was shorter than the one before, and was terminated by a more abrupt relapse into senility, until at last the animal collapsed all at once, like the deacon's "wonderful one-hoss shay" in the poem. Thus rejuvenation, of this type at least, is at best a temporary setting-back of the clock. There is some part of the body which is progressively ageing all the time, in spite of the best possible provision of hormones. We do not know for certain what this organ may be, but may reasonably guess that it is the central nervous system. For in higher animals, brain-cells, unlike gland-cells or skin-cells, never divide. We end with the same equipment of brain-cells with which we were born. And it is a fact that brain-cells show marked shrinkage and other degenerative changes when they grow old.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

LEIPZIG.—We spent the night at Weimar, the ultra high-brow city of Germany, and motored to Leipzig in the sunrise. Weimar is saturated with culture, ancient and modern. Grand opera, art exhibits, philosophical lectures, etc., are on the boards nightly. The waiter at breakfast talked of Friedrich Nietzche, a local boy.

It was the home too of Frans Liszt, Johann Schiller, Charlotte von Stein and Goethe was associated with its intellectual splendor. We visited the Liszt and Schiller homes, gazed at death beds, tarnished mursls, velveteen coats and quill pens and while it is not my kind of sight-seeing I have it to refer to.

The drive to Leipzig was through another stretch of beautiful farmlands with red poppies and blue wild flowers sprinkled through shimmering aqua-marine waves of wheat. Germany's outlands bespeak plenty. It is difficult to believe a few years ago its agrarian outlook was as black as its bread.

Women with capacious baskets strapped to backs trudged the roadside to cold little market places, leaning on canes. Farm wagons have double shafts but use only one horse attached to the left side. It gives every wagon appearance of being out of plumb. Germany nods pleasantly to strangers.

Jumbled impressions entering Leipzig are of strolling students reading books, glass phone booths in public squares, a blind man puffing a fat cigar and a beribboned dog on three legs, the fourth amputated. Leipzig boasts 800,000, is the economic center of the Midlands and has the grandest depot in the world.

It always has a fair—a fur fair at the moment. Richard Wagner was born here and Robert Schumann is an illustrious son. The Leipzig Academy of Music and the University of Leipzig you know about. My hotel window at the Astoria looks down upon the biggest esplanade I ever saw—the Blutcher platz.

It is slit by five different promenades, four street car tracks and three enormously wide driveways. There is a noticeable lack of automobiles and electrical advertising signs. The city is formal, culture conscious and homes are aloofly palatial with high iron fences. Everybody looks painfully studious, foreheads are high and all neckties are black.

* * *

I am continuing hotel push button experimentations. The one here offered "kellner," "madchen" and "diener." I buzzed the "madchen" one and how's everything with you Prof. Ziegfeld? The response was so bright, blond and pretty I had to think up something for her to do so gave her a brand new handkerchief to press.

* * *

An afternoon paper had a brief interview quoting me as being impressed "with our fair city" and a half stick of tourist twaddle. I marked copies to mail several ink-stained poltroons who cannot read German, with this notation along the side: "All German propaganda. I only crawled under the table when they began shooting."

* * *

Mendelsohn conducted for years at the Gewandhaus, but until I saw his statue in front of it I never knew his full name was Felix Mendelsohn-Bartholdy.

The city has a murmurous mellow quarter, like that in Frankfort, called Old Leipzig. Here in narrow streets delivery carts are drawn by teams consisting of a dog and man. I'd like to hitch myself up with a certain dog and make him do all the work.

German hotels are excellent. But bathrooms take the cake. They suggest the Grand Central rotunda. Mine here among other flub-dubs has a tooth brush basin and a finger-nail spray.

Newspaper sellers wear bright blue military coats and white caps. Taxis are a rich maroon, sombre and sedate. The city is reputed to be without beggars, so the two shabby gentlemen who accosted me today were probably just kidding.

Leipzig is the center of Saxony and famous for its beautiful blonde blue-eyed ladies. I ran into a school of Marilyn Millers, serving as waitresses in a coffee shop at noon today. And I lingered drinking so many cups I expect to spend the night in the wide-eyed manner of the deceased gold fish. (Next morning addendum: I spent the night figuring out what time it was in New York.)

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

How do your children treat guests who come to your house?

Because the presence of guests may interfere with the young people in their plans do they make this felt by the visitors?

And do you permit them to be so impolite?

Parents have a tendency to put off certain instruction till the child is older, when it should have been started from the first with little folk.

If your child is saucy and impudent you are to blame.

If required punishment were administered at the time of each offense and the child knew surely that it would suffer personally from wrong doing, there would be less crime today.

The misbehavior of children is an indictment of parents.

Friendships of many years' standing have been broken because of the selfish disregard of certain sons and daughters for the friends of their parents.
